AN eXCeptional YEAR '88

Why? Because we were the eXCellent, eXCiting, eXChanging, eXClusive, eXCeptional Colts and we had come a long way in ninety years. XC years of tradition and pride had built a feeling of uniqueness. Pride justly deserved and earned. EXCellent in sports, spirit, and scholastics, eXCiting and eXClusive, but always willing to eXChange points of view. We were all these things, but above all — eXCeptional!

Burst A Balloon. Rhonda Pitts, Erin Kennedy, Joelle Wilson, and Colleen Alvo are ready for the winner of the class competitions to pop a balloon and find a prize.

You Deserve The Best. Happy birthday balloons are a popular way to say that you are special and Felicia Tillman and Melenie Candelaria enjoy the special remembrance.

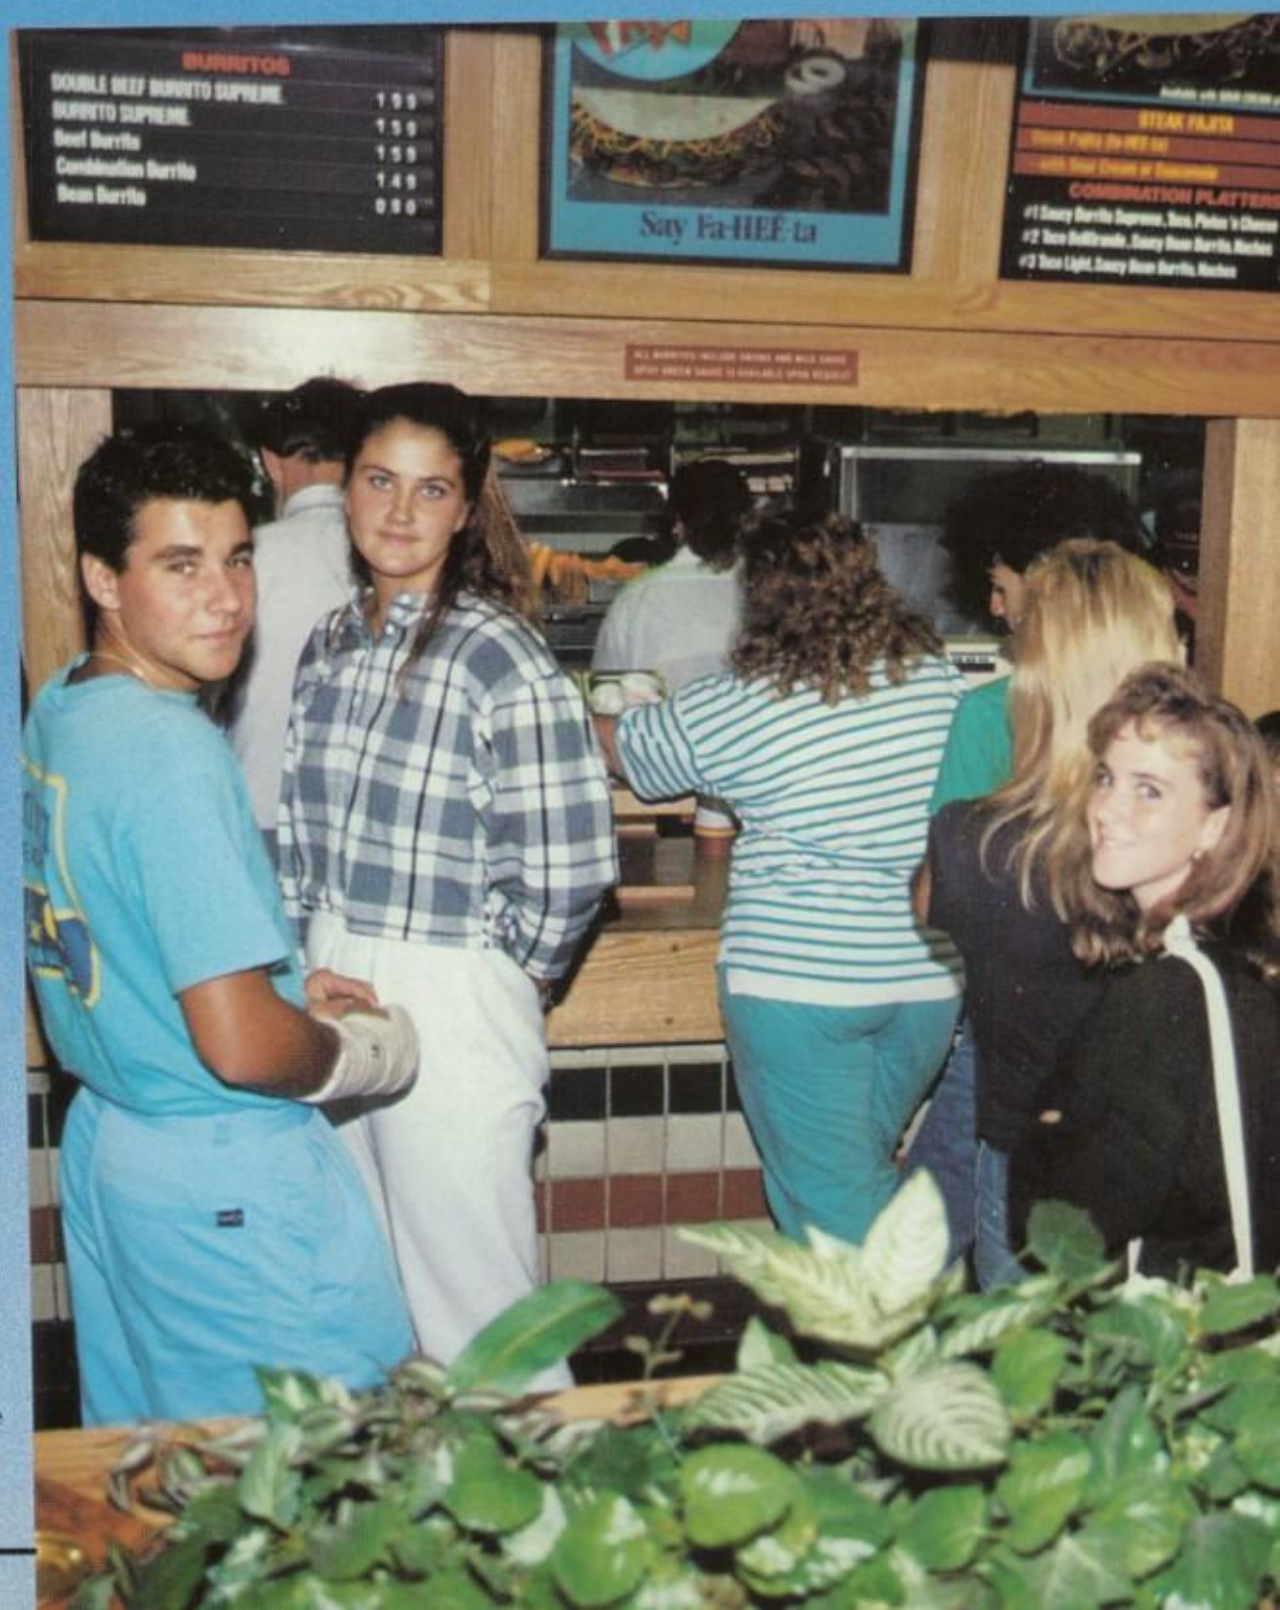
The Dudes. Coaches Collins, Kendrick, and Bell are ready for a special Friday night rumble.

If a birthday was an exiting event for a student, imagine the excitement for a school to celebrate its 90th birthday. Since Covina High first opened in 1897, it has seen many changes. Originally the Colts called a temporary site at the corner of Citrus and Gladstone home, but then a new building was opened in 1909 at the corner of Citrus and Puente. The student body outgrew the beautiful old two-storied building and the sprawling "new" campus at the corner of Puente and Hollenbeck came into being in 1957. As the years continued to roll by many things changed; new faces, new styles, other high schools were added, a farming community became part of the Los Angeles megalopolis and a new way of life developed, but the legend of the Colts remained. You will remember your friends and all the good memories. This 90th year was both exciting and memorable for us: A year of celebration.

Do you know what a real friend was? It was someone who you could share things with—a good listener. These special friends made the good times seem great and even the bad times seem so much better. If you had that special friend who could listen without criticizing or putting you down you were so lucky, because you could really be yourself and not have to pretend to be happy when you were sad or upset. Somehow it almost seemed that listening was a lost art and not very many people had the patience, time, or the sympathetic ear to lend when you needed it most. When there was no one to listen at least there were a few moments of quiet now and then when you could just sit and think it all out and get a new perspective on the problem.

A Wistful Look. Lorene Loomis has that certain far away look that seems to say that she has something important to share with a friend who will take the time to listen to her and she is lucky enough to have people who care about how she feels and what she has to share with them.

Who Is That Girl? Doug Egler and Glen Boettcher seem to have their eyes glued on one of the pretty girls on campus or are they just concentrating on the next big game?



eXcerpts of GOOD TIMES

What exactly were Good Times? Diversified that was what Good Times were. Everyone had his or her own way of spending the free time he or she had. A few minutes between classes and a chat with a best friend about the great party the night before or a lazy glance around to see who was lookin' good that day ranked high on the list of the Colts' priorities. There was always time to check out some friends in old yearbooks in the library between study sessions or just to size-up the competition through a pair of tennis-colored glasses. When some new experience was necessary there was always lunch off campus. Of course, this was limited to the select few seniors and juniors who had active off-campus passes and a ride to the nearest fast food facility.

Need Another Class? While Veronica Teran and Stephanie Gonzales check out classes, they exchange smiles over a piece of gossip as Rudy Enriquez bravely rushes in the lion's den.
I Didn't Know She Was That Old. Brian Seaton looks over some pictures while waiting for friends to begin a study session.
Thirty Minutes Isn't Enough! According to Mark Dorf, Jennifer Kendrick, Kim Sehnert, and Jonee Schott, lunch should be lengthened so you can eat it after you buy it.
I Can See You. Michelle Bedrosian watches a match with super magnified tennis ball containers.

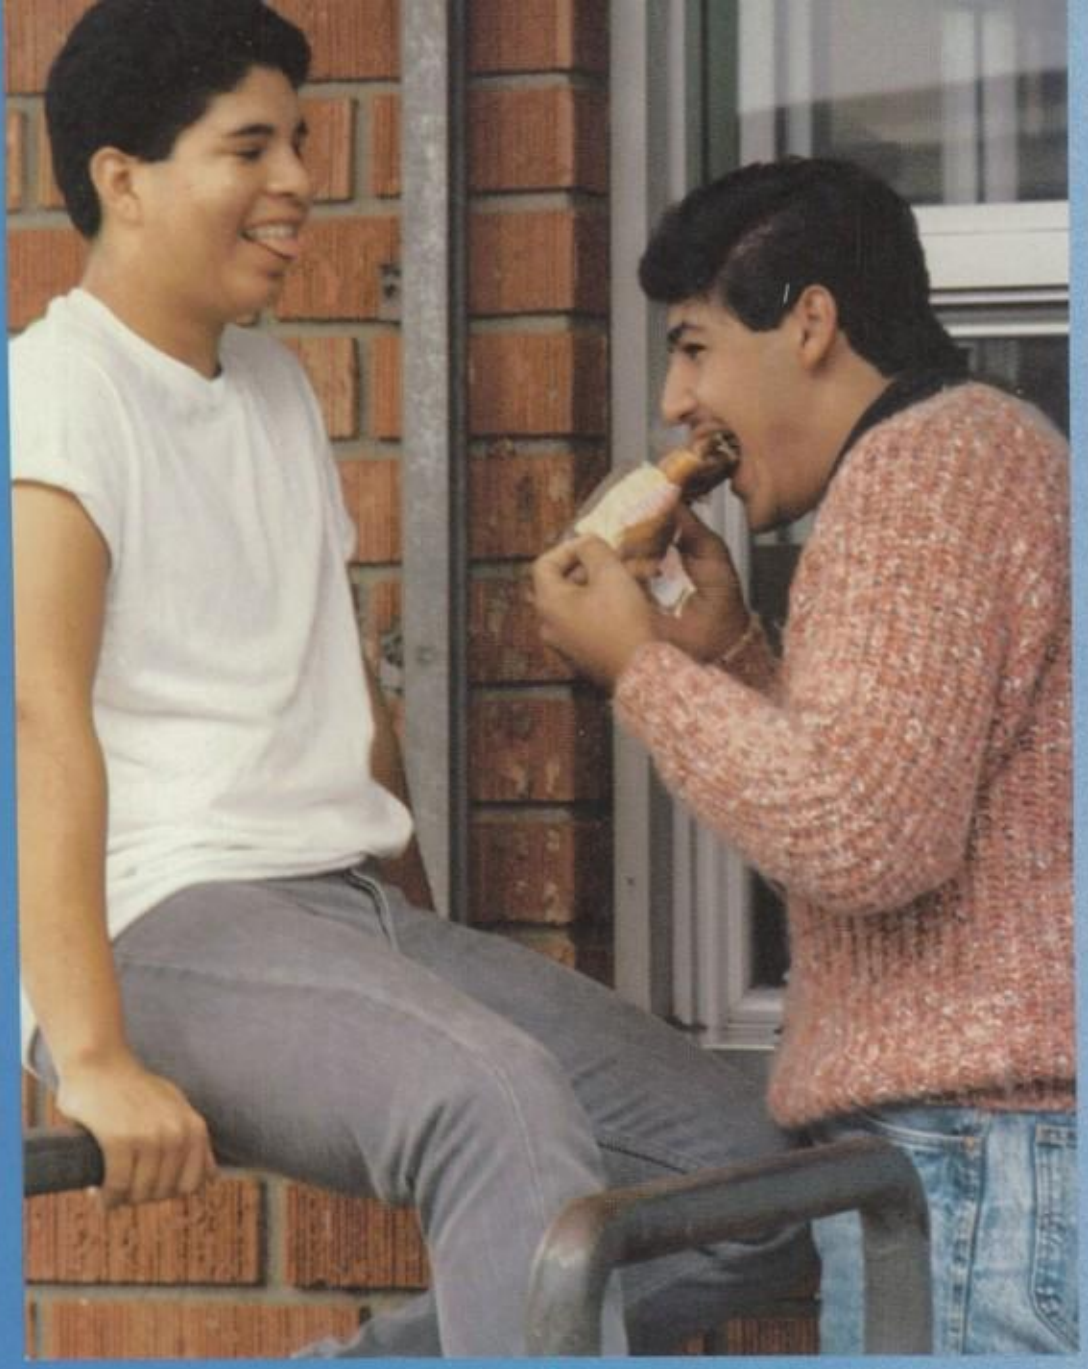
A Very Different Perspective. Gene Escamilla sees the world somewhat topsy turvy.

The Thrill Of Victory. JV footballer, Gene Escamilla gets to see and hear the cheers of support that he is usually to busy to notice.

A Bunch Break. Brunch is the perfect time for Brenna Cruz, Tony Urrea, John Rodriquez, and Christina Hays to share time.

Not Everyone Owns A Porsche. Friends, Bill Mouser, Tami Williams, and Jason Cochran take some time to enjoy the morning before school starts.

Sunny Days And Pretty Girls. A wink of Danny Piantinida's eye lets you know that both are present today.



eXchanging GLANCES

As Sweet As Honey. George Hajj refuses to share even the smallest bite of his sticky, sweet honey bun with Reggie Alverango, but Reggie doesn't seem to mind anyway.

Last Minute Talk. Cheryl Buckley, Krista Coventry, Melanie Mount, Jenny Smith, Ana Davis, Carla Bernardo, Heather Scott and Jennifer Wilkinson exchange a last few minutes of chatter on the way to classes.

Nothing brought about those good feelings as just seeing your friends. Whether you exchanged a furtive romantic glance with the one you love, looked into the tearfilled eyes of your best friend as she told you her most secret secrets, gagged at a pig-out friend, or desperately tried to work your way through the crowded campus with enough time left to be able to stop and talk in front of the classroom door before the notetaking began. No matter what the reason, there was no greater satisfaction than the fun-filled glances you shared with your friends.

A Pick-up Artist? Matt Riggio and Angelica Lozano have some time to talk about the next assignments in class.
Don't Be Late To Class. Heidi Garcia warns Ron Broussard that they have to rush if they don't want another tardy to class.
A Touch Up Here. Jodi Castello, Karen Kain, and Claudia Fuentes give Tamara Payne a bit of help with her great new "do."

About 35 miles straight east from the Pacific shore nestled in the center of San Gabriel Valley was a place known as CHS. For 90 years, thousands and thousands of students passed through the doors of the three major campus sites and most of those thousands thought it was an excellent place to be. Why? Because there was plenty of study, friends, and fun. Anywhere on campus was a place to have a good time and enjoy all that was going on. Everybody had their own private place, but CHS was their favorite public place.

Hidden Help. Being a lollipop kid according to Sachi Ezaki, Mary Letourneau, Tanya Stephens is impossible without at least three other people to help you.

Need A Shave? Mondo Vargas, Pete Lopez, and Stephanie Gonzalez all think Bilo Arellano should stand a little closer to his razor.

A Wet T Shirt Contest! Danny Piantanida seems unconvinced, Gonzalo Padillo is absolutely sure, and Gary Favero doesn't agree that guys are as good as girls in a wet T shirt contest.

What An Embarrassing Position. Being kissed by your mom in front of a 1000 students doesn't strike Jeff Salberg as such a great deal.

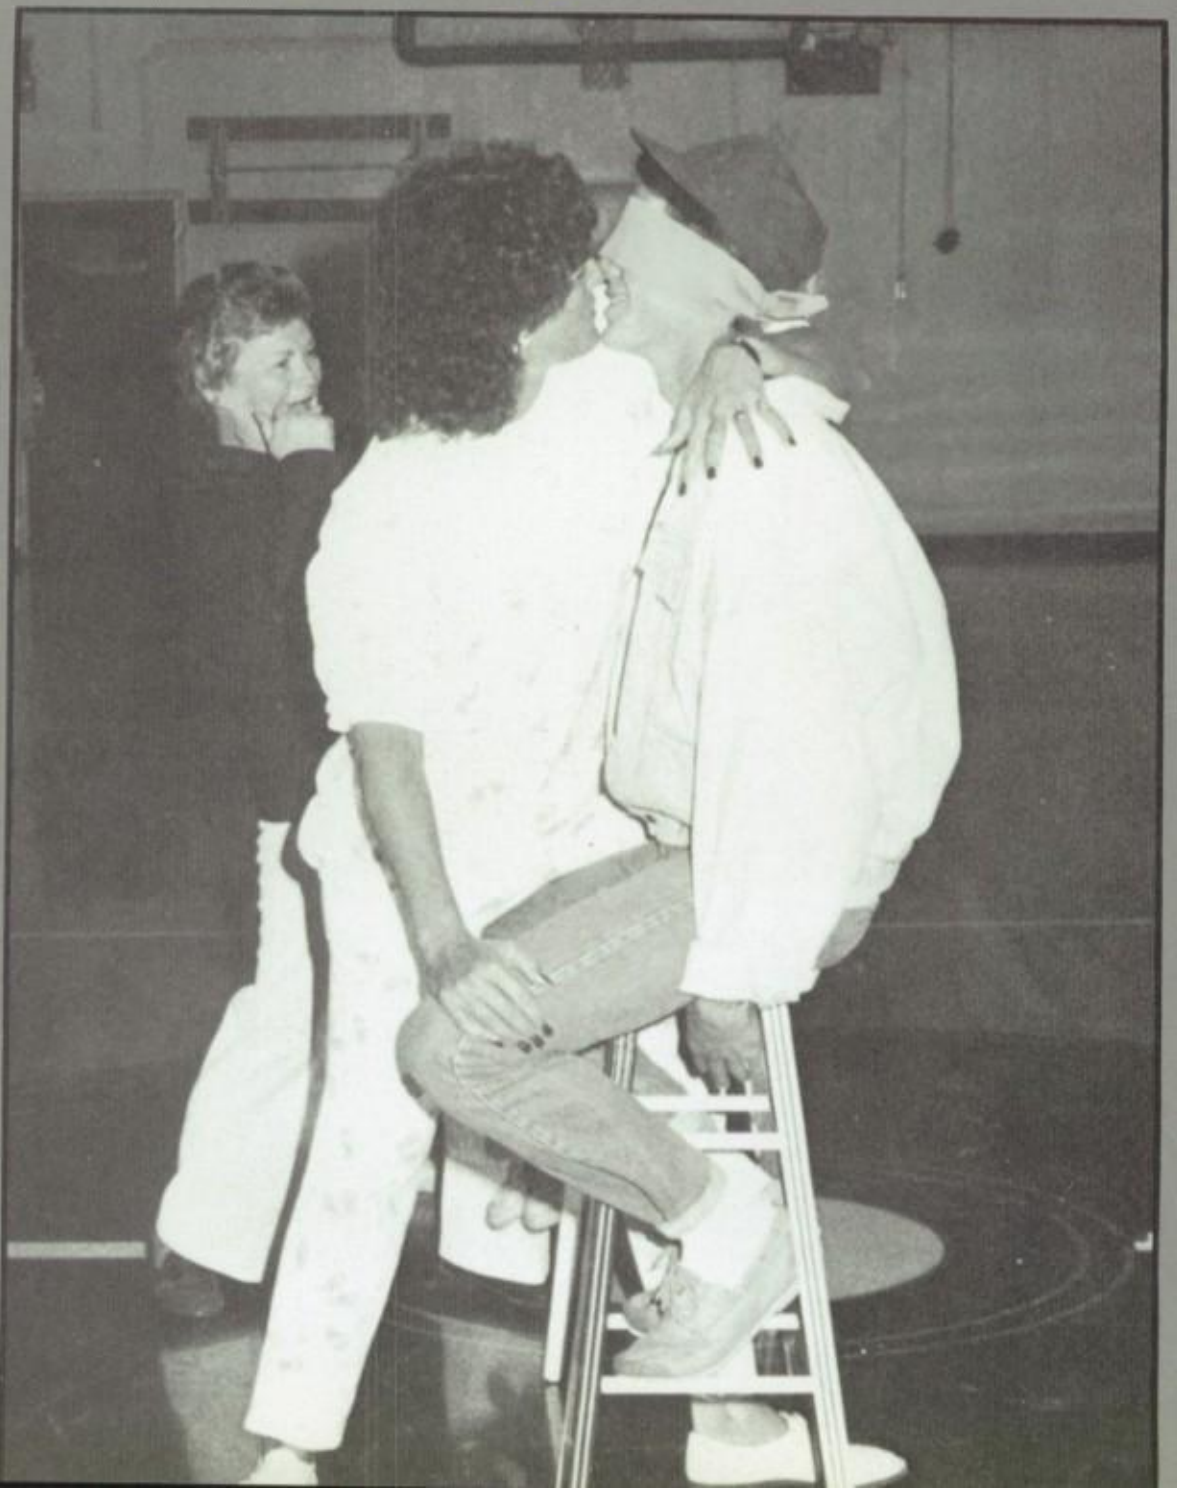
IDEAS



A Foreign Breeze. Marci Baena keeps cool by getting her feet wet in the waters of Cancun, Mexico. Cool Girls. Michelle White and Vianey Ojeda seem to think that swimming is the best way to beat the summer heat.

Dry Can Be Cool. After a day at the beach, Shelley Ralstin, Liz Hernandez, Debbie Kavanaugh, Melissa Fobel, and Sherrie Ward grab a cold drink.

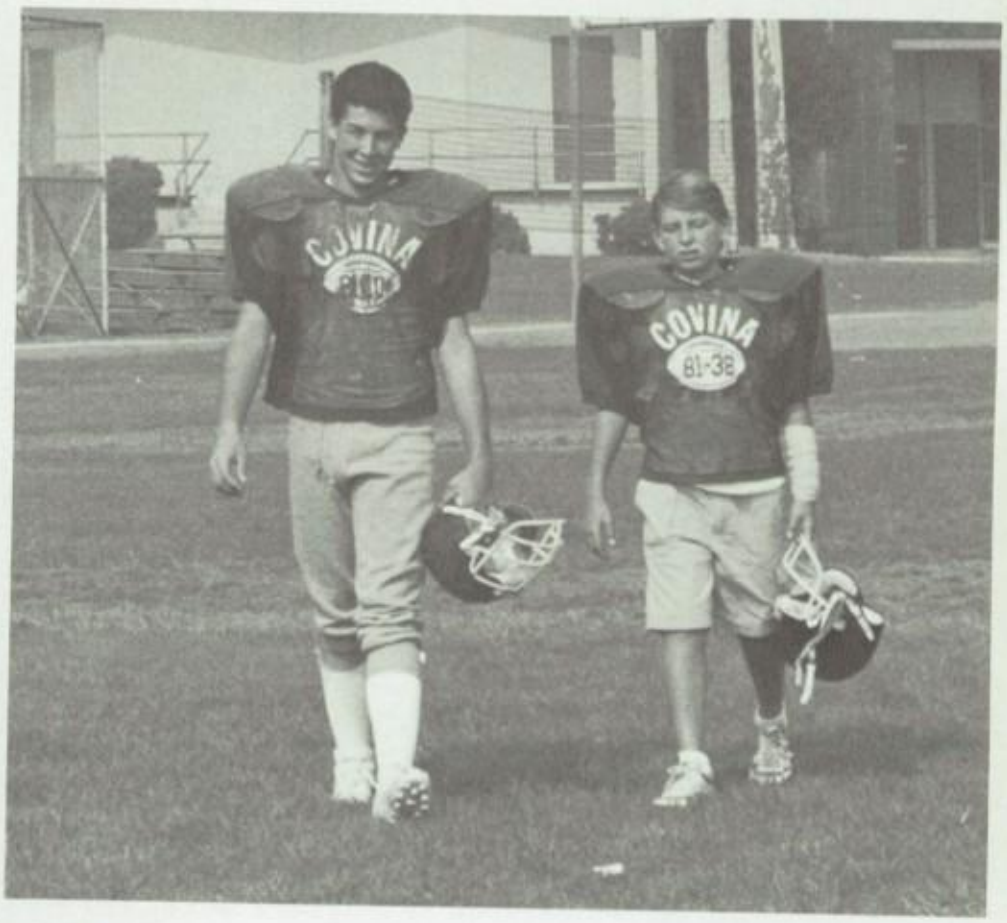
What's the best way to beat the summer heat? Covina High students already knew the answer and mastered the art of looking "hot" while staying cool. The favorite remedy for combating a day of relentless heat consisted of a swimming pool, something cold to drink, and an adequate supply of Coppertone. The more sporting types preferred to spend their time surfing and boogie-boarding at the beach. Or, if you'd just as soon stay further inland, maybe jet or waterskiing suited you better. During the vacationing months, some colts were nothing short of amphibions and had the "rad" tans to show for it. Where there was water there were Colts. No matter how you had your fun in the sun, chances are you rested hard and played even harder. In any case, Colts found that the best way to cool down before another scorching school year began (if you were smart you took full advantage) was to make a quick dash for anyplace where they could splash!

eXciting SUMMERS

Hold On Tight. Just one slip of the ski can be disasterous for Ron Bobick, but he seems to be a natural.
What A Pro! Mark Dorf shows his stuff at a private lake in Barstow.

eXCel in STUDENT LIFE

From the twinkle of an eye, to the perk in the step, WE stood out. Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen together were the prestigious Covina Colts. Whether involved in sports, clubs, student government, or simply a Colt enthusiast, each played a key role in the structure. The classes split for class competitions or when trying to decide who was the best, but together we stayed. The lunch pass made the "squids" envision with fondess their senior year, while Seniors and Juniors were bound to homework and life (college) plans. The Sophomores, "the rowdy bunch," were fired up with spirit. The booming campus seemed to burst from the seams with students and there was always something going on. Practicing a sport after school, putting together a newspaper, laying out pages for the yearbook, making cards for convalescent homes, gulping down a Cocke, or just finishing off the last minute homework problem — all these were part of student life and the part that added all the color and fun.



Open House. The best part about Parent-Teacher conferences was money made by the Junior class selling baked goods and Tami Angiuli's cherry pie went first.

Wha-Hoo Touchdown. Jazzed fans helped boost the football team's morale by their enthusiastic cheers.

School Daze. Memorizing your schedule to find classes was a good idea for Becky Mellaci.

Struttin Their Stuff. Dave Martinez and Chris Davis gather their equipment to practice "hard" for the next game.

If ever there was a place to find a warm, friendly atmosphere, this was it. Everywhere you looked you could find a sea of smiling faces. Not only did the students get along well, but the student-teacher relationships grew throughout the year. Brunch was a great time to get together and talk to your friends about almost anything. Every group of friends seemed to have their own special place to meet. If you ever needed to find one of your close friends, you always knew just where to go. Lunch time was also a time to spend with your friends. While Freshmen and Sophomores enjoyed lunch together in the school cafeteria or just a little snack from the student store, they counted the days until they had a pass to leave legally. Some students didn't use lunch time to eat, but just simply to talk and share with their friends or to cram in a few last minutes of study before a test. While the lower classmen share their lunch together on campus, the juniors and seniors enjoyed going out to such places as Taco Bell, McDonalds, or Arby's. It didn't really matter where they went, just as long as they were together. When people look back and think about their high school years, they will be certain to have nothing but great memories.

Let's Pile! Julie Payton, Tatiana Ramirez, and Kim McIlwain enjoy the hilarious sight of Randy Solar, Mike Solar, Walter Bergman, Jim Sullivan, Tim Kearns, Jeff Salberg, and Danny Lisso, enjoying a friendly dog pile. Need A Hug? Tanya Brown lets Ben Powell know she just doesn't have time to fool around. A Big Sis. Stephanie Leyva always depends on Noreen Leyva for help.

LEAN on ME

Feel The Excitment? The spirit of Pep Rallies always excites Julie Burns, Vianey Ojeda, Marci Baena, Becky Parker, Sissy Trujillo and Annette Moore.

Smiles Everyone! You can always find Susie Mesic, Jennifer Hartman, Jennifer Kendrick, and Christy Santos with a smile on their faces.

It's So Nice Not To Be A Squid. Dangelo Robinson, Gabriel Rodriguez, Andy Paredes, Stephen Chadwick, and Kurt Brown make sure they have front row seats at the freshman orientation.

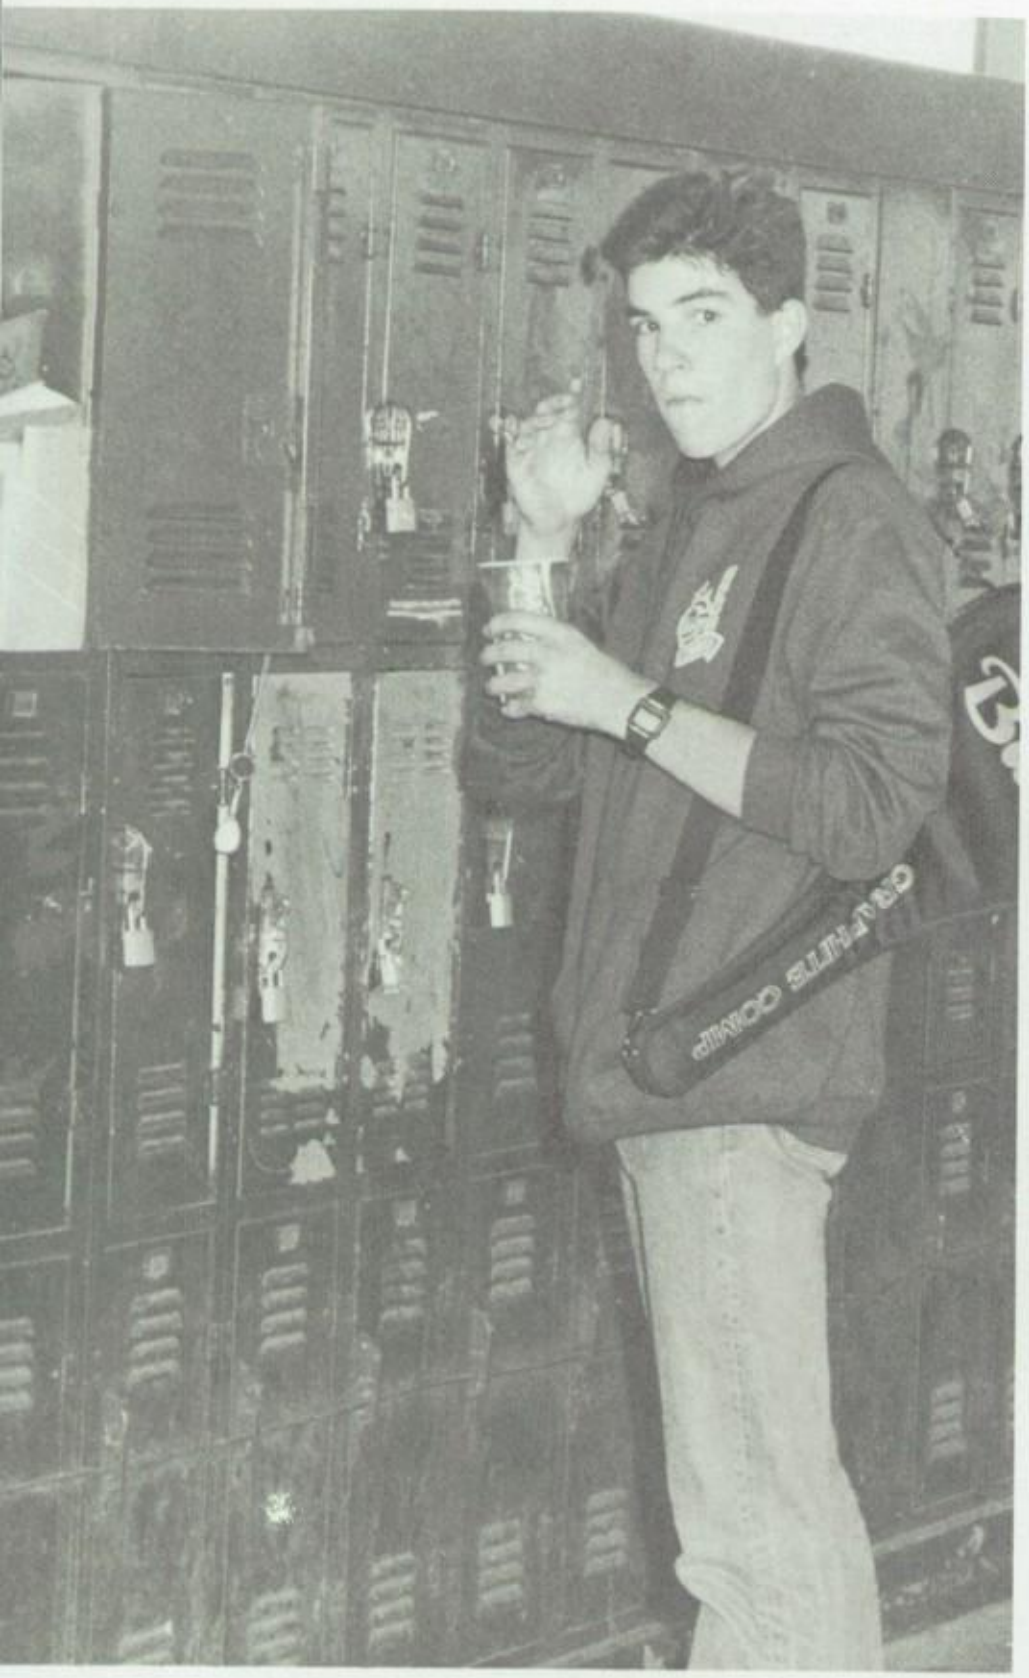
Even though school takes up the majority of a students time and energy, the hours spent off campus were just as important. Free time was often scheduled around school such as dances, sports, and other extra-curricular activities. Football and basketball games always drew big crowds, clubs and organizations kept you running around, and dances were usually the main social spot of the night. When students really decided to break away and experience the real world, they ventured from Korea to Canada and anywhere in between. After vacation, coming back to school was hard, but at least it was familiar. If you weren't studying too hard on the weekend, you probably spent time with friends from school. High school, no matter how time consuming and difficult, proved to be an important factor socially as well as academically. At least once, we all found ourselves straying back to campus after school hours for one reason or another. It became the center of our lives and a place that we would never forget.

Youth And The Old. Visiting Seoul Korea, Kevin Hwang stops to take a picture in a beautifully serene area.

Relaxation Is The Key. Bernadetta Madnid rests against a tree to pass the time of day with a friend.

Don't Kill The Ants. Sometimes when Ken Haner and Gary Okerson are restless, they stomp ants behind the boys' locker room.

FREEDOM for the ELITE



A True Colt Athlete. Wearing a Big Red Machine sweatshirt and carrying his trusty tennis racket, Ryan Price, is a dedicated "sporter."

Oh No, I's The First Day! Trying to figure out what classrooms to go to, Antoinette Canales and her mother, examine THE list.

Football Fanatics? Cheering on the colts, Julie Flamenco and Angela Christensen are distracted from the game.

View Of A Pair. The Pacific Coast attracts many sun and surf fanatics, such as Jennifer Hartman and Susie Mesic.

What's There To Do Tonight Guys? After school, Paul Branconier, Walter Bergman, Tim Kearns, and Danny Piantanida avidly discuss their weekend plans.

Just One More Bite. Half time deserves a good chili dog, at least Hinh Hoang thinks so.

The Latest Gossip. Monica Martinez asks her friends, Marisol Lopez, Jennifer Schaetzel, Claudia Martinez, and Deanna Seese what they did over the weekend.

What's The Score? Shelley Ralstin and Bob Maybury take time out to talk at the exciting South Hills game.

Stick 'Em Up! "Beware!" says Debbie Carter, "or I'll shoot." Jennifer Hartman, Susie Mesic, Christy Santos, and Derrick Fagins seem unimpressed.

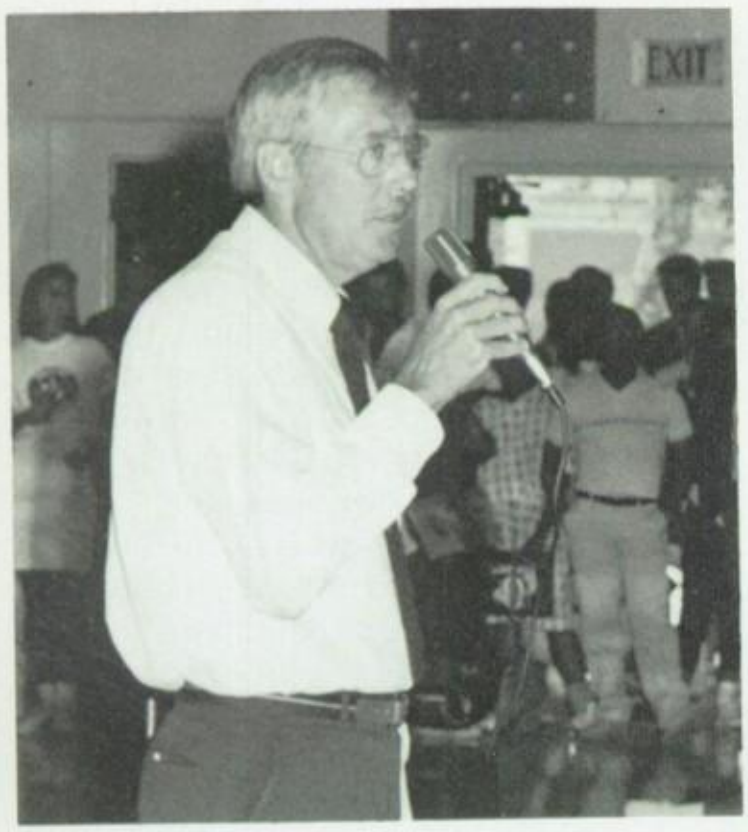
Let's Toga! Getting ready for the Toga party, Melissa Fobel, Liz Hernandez, Debbie Kavanaugh, and Sherrie Ward primp before leaving.

LIFE of the WILD

Who said school wasn't fun? Colts insisted boredom was a state of mind, not a state of being. Anyone who had experienced Colt enthusiasm, and energy, could have told you that. So what made us so special? Dedicated seniors, restless juniors, good-natured sophomores, and timid freshmen were on the lookout for a good time. School was a place to socialize, study, and have fun. If you were at a loss, there were football games, dances, rallies, and active clubs around campus. These took up most of your time during the week, but weekends were a different story! Parties were popular, while some preferred movies, or their usual hang-out. When Monday rolled around, a few suffered "Monday Syndrome" but most found they could make any situation fun. Whether you searched out the most happening spot on campus or chose to stick with the more familiar places, chances were you spent your time having fun.

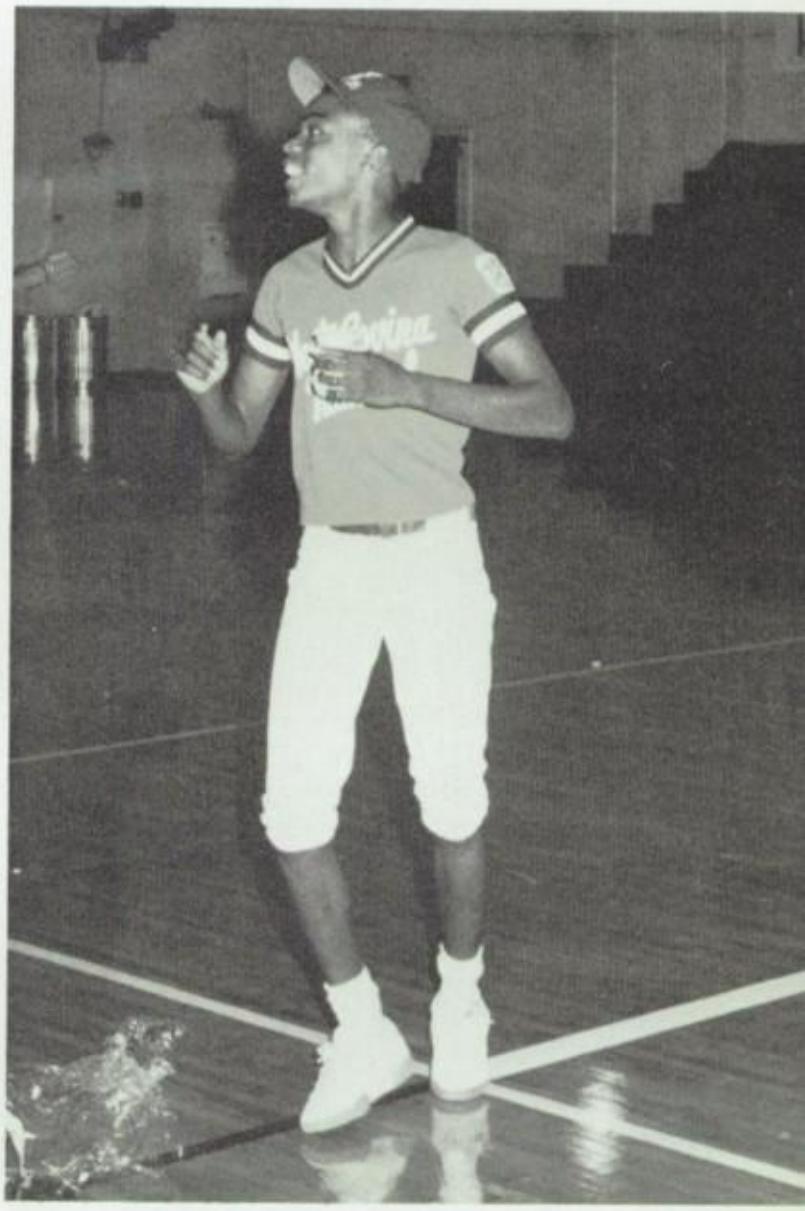
ACT of CLASS



Come On Guys. ASB gets the troops together to begin the year's first brunch rally.

Testing 1, 2, 3 . . . Mr. Sanderson speaks to the student body about the upcoming events.

The main objective of a rally? "To build spirit" and the rallies did just that. ASB, Pep, and the Colossal Colt Band combined for some memorable fun and excitement. The Commissioners of Rallies, Patty Autran and Ronda Pitts discovered early what a difficult job faced them. Countless hours of very hard work went into every rally produced. Everything from searching assiduously for participants for the class competitions, to the always difficult organization of skits and presentations - hopefully with the cooperation of the lively bunch known as ASB. Lots of practice, practice, and more practice made the rallies come across well. The Pep squads pieced together high-spirited cheers, which brought high enthusiasm to everyone. The units led the class yell at rallies, which allowed the individual classes to show their support of the teams, and that the worlds "Covina High School" meant serious business. In all, the rallies stood for fun, excitement, and plenty of unforgettable memories. The students proved their appreciation of the hard work and effort of the rallies by their great support and never-ending enthusiasm.



Bet Classes Don't Get This Much Attention. The rally has the rapt attention of freshmen Trina Doyle, Lisa Paiz, and Anik Martin.

Out Of Breath. Victor Ramierez takes a short break during the announcements of the next activities.

That's All Folks. The varsity song unit shows what it takes to be a member.

Spoiled. "I got an ice cream, but you can not have any." Dangelo Robinson makes sure that everyone knows he has an ice cream and you can't afford one.

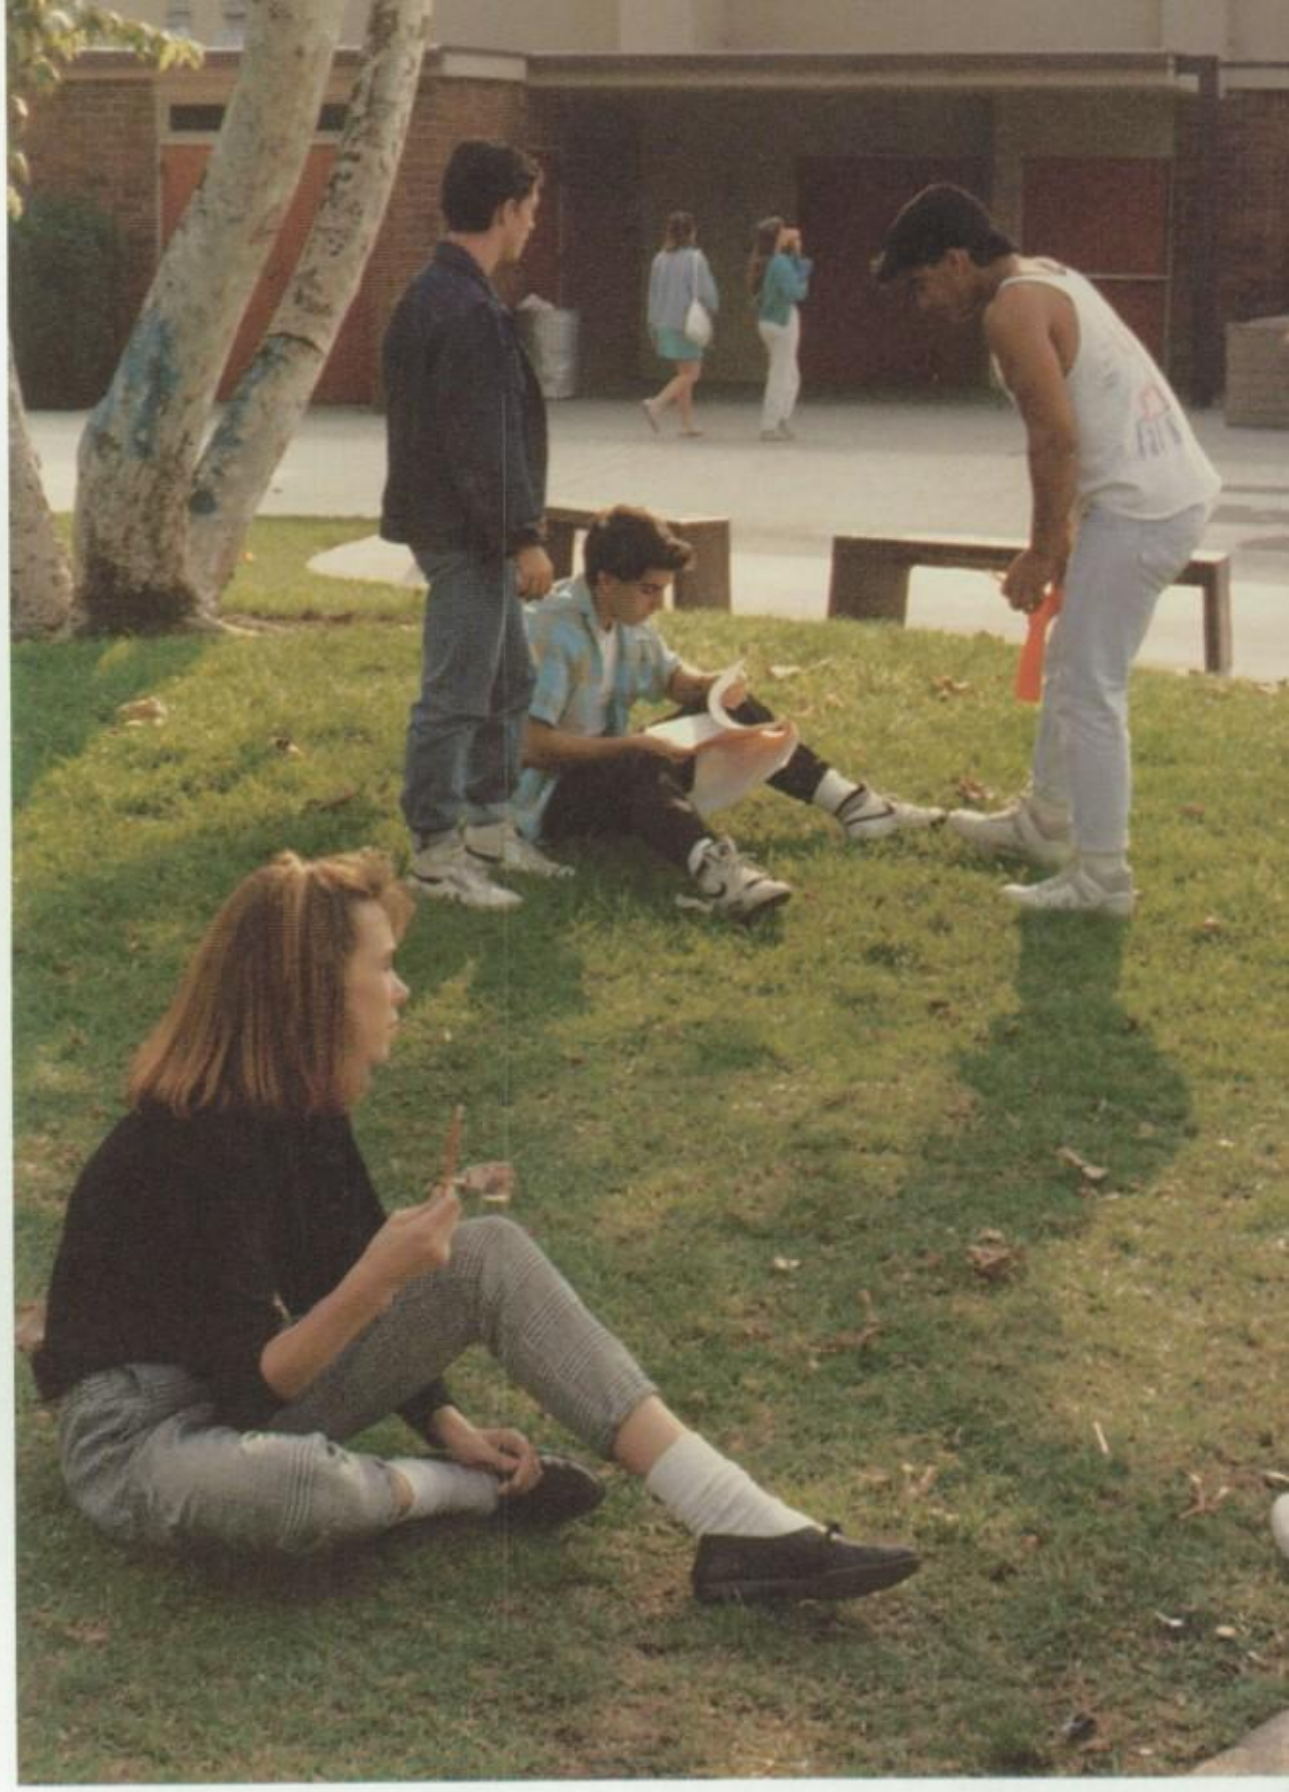
And The Next Princess Is . . . Looking forward to their hug from the next homecoming princess, Jeff Salberg, Danny Lisso, and Ken Gunderson nervously announce her name.

HINT of FASHION

"Is George There?" Wearing the ever popular Quaker sweater and a funky hat Alicia Davis makes a call on the too buzy outside phone.

Life After School. Julie Payton wears the basic black and white, while Tony Trujillo, Ralph Deligio and David Caraveo, wearing faded denims, exchange a few last minute notes.

What An Eyeful. The patterned shirts of Claudia Novoa and Nish Raja are really some of the most comfortable clothes worn by the female members of the student body.



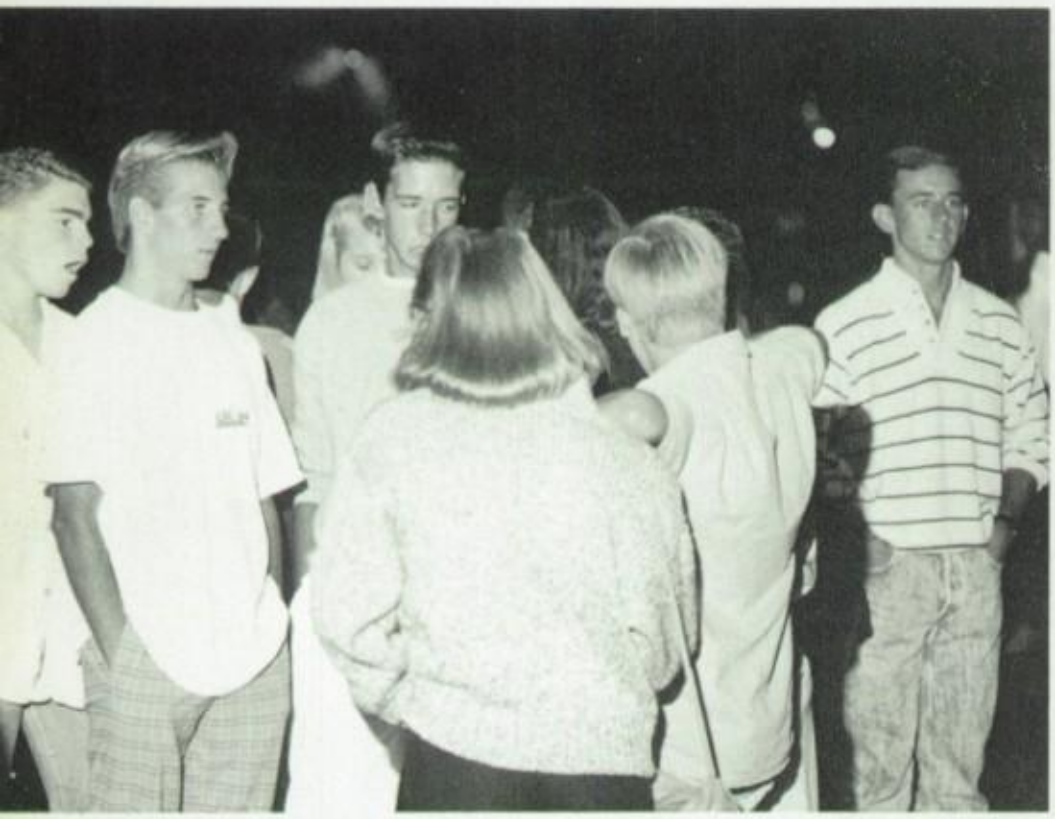
Anyone who ever set foot on CHS's campus could tell you that Colt wardrobes were as different as night and day. For Covina students, the secret to looking good started with carefully planned attire - individuality and creativity were the key here. First of all, you had to avoid the common Mecca's of chic and search out that rare and little-known shop downtown. A colt's worst nightmare was to walk down the hall and find he had a "twin" - a fate worse than death! Most girls favored dropping the androgenious look and took on a tasteful view. New mini-skirts truly earned their name. Guys for the most part weren't as progressive and open to change; most stayed in the surf-skate look of brightly colored T's and self-hemmed pants. The more conservative preferred a pair of comfortable levis. Originality was a must. Taking a so-so outfit and turning it into dynamite was one of the best kept secrets. A few groups distinguished themselves as worthy of notice. Signs of post-punk seemed to trickle into the mainstream - black, studded leather, and "docs and creeps." Disco also proved to be alive and well - cheap chic, tight leggings, and hairspray helped achieve the desired look. Hair turned out to be a controversional issue: Should you go short, long, wavy, straight, gelled, moussed, or dyed? Such crucial decisions were often of upmost importance. The majority of the girls favored longer tresses, even some of the guys too! The guys liked their hair stylish, but easy to maintain. A few thought the best way to do this was to cut it all off. Now that you know the secrets of the well-dressed, all you had to do was decide which look was right for you, but that was a different story altogether!

Strutting Their Style. Zara Zaharak, Jill Wiggins, Christine Miller, and Nicole Walters dazzle the imagination of many with the preppy to mini clothing.

It's Skating Time. Once schools out, Tommy James grabs his trusty board and heads to the nearest ramp.

Comrades Forever. Buddies Adam Shanks, Andi Trujillo, Serena Weiford, and Debbie Lochridge are examples of the many colors introduced.

After returning from the summer months, wasn't it nice to wear your favorite pair of shorts and comfortable T shirts well into the first month of school? Some knew it made the transition easier. That way you could show off your golden tan while remaining presentable for the riggors of education. Pretty soon the shorts turned into pants, the T's into sweaters, and the tan into ... well, something less than the desired bronze. Most of us cringed in horror as we dove into our closet the first day of the rainy season, only to find there wasn't a pair of boots or even a jacket in sight! From this time on, most of the pastels of summer gave way to winter colors: black, grey, navy. Cozy coats shielded you from endless wind and rain while you wondered if you'd ever have a use for your sunglasses again. Not long after, the perplexing situation of cold foggy mornings turning into hot afternoons again. You didn't want to freeze midmorning or boil by noon, but some how you managed to withstand all the elements, until once again summer arrived. After all, who didn't have a welcoming sign of relief when once again you could grab your swimsuit and head for the surf.

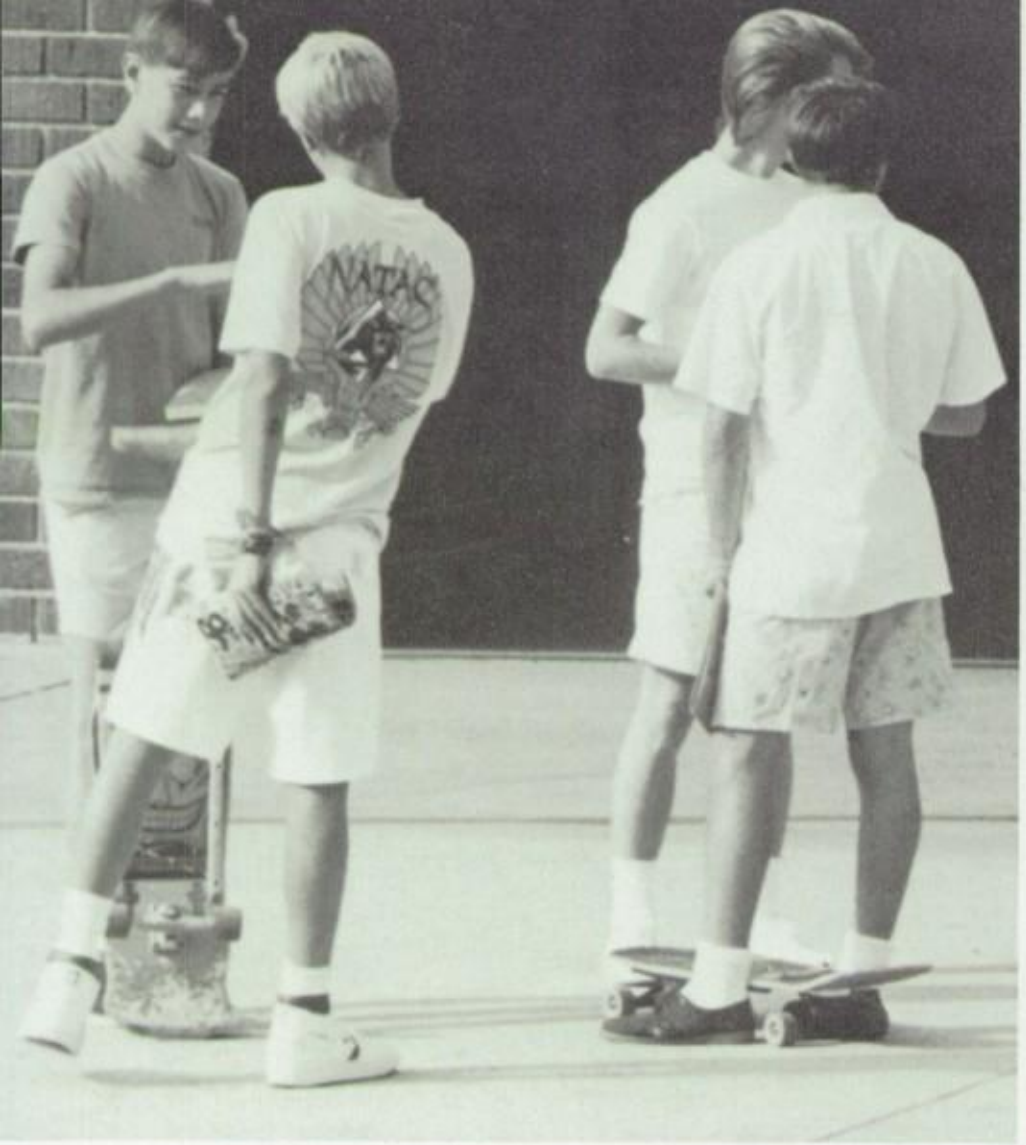


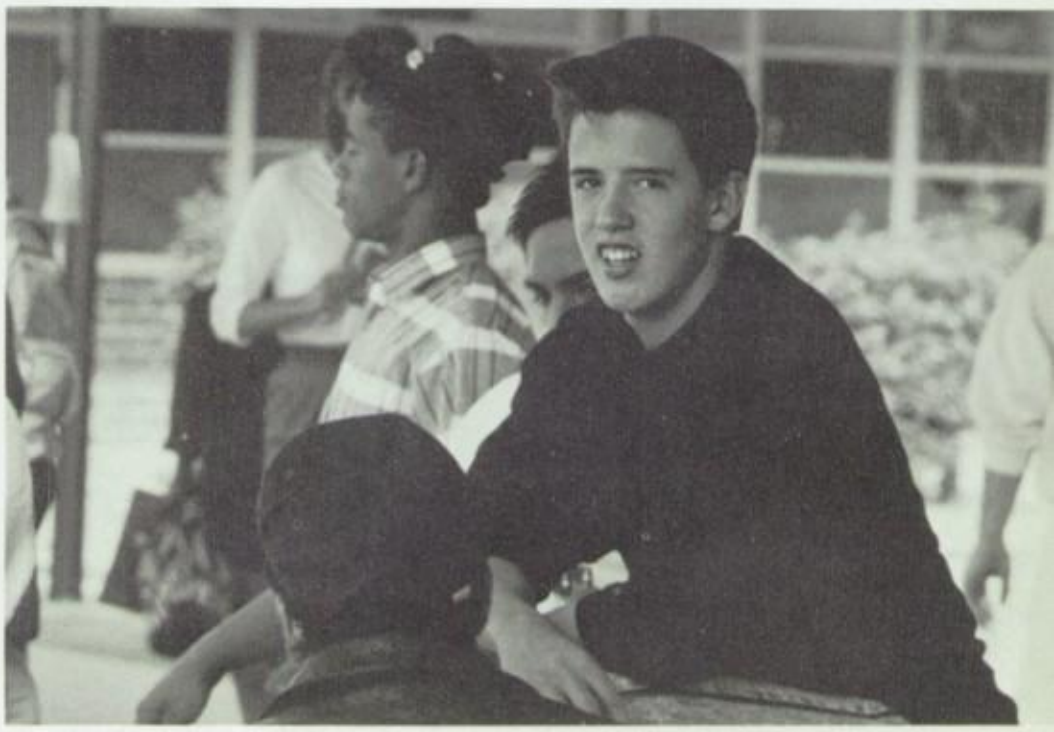
Fashionable Football Games/ Dressed in sweaters and baggy pants Kevin Elser, Jay Henson, George Relock, Melanie Mount, Gary Kirk, and Danny Piantanida socialize during half-time.

Making Waves. Crimping hair became a favorite trend and Tamara Payne has it done to perfection.

It's Social Hour. Stylishly clothed in the new baggy look and bulky belts, Derrick Fagins, Debbie Carter, and Lisa Smith wait for class to begin.

SWIRL of STYLE





Check It Out. John Hodges, Anthony Price, Matt Joseph, and Eric Sanderson stay "cool" with shorts, T's, and bright colors.

You Pose So Well. Dan Zandejas cooly checks out everyone on campus during brunch.

She's Got Legs. Checkered pants are a favorite of Mike Quinn, but Tatiana Ramirez prefers leather minis and ruffled shirts.

Quiet Contemplation. Between classes a morbidly dressed Bridget Kane watches as everyone scurries to class.

Attention! Disguised as a jester, Nathan Wielandt conducts the Colossal Colt band in the National Anthem.

Shiver Me Timbers. At brunch Kathy Orosco shows her Halloween spirit, but her friend Tony Verjan is not as spirited.

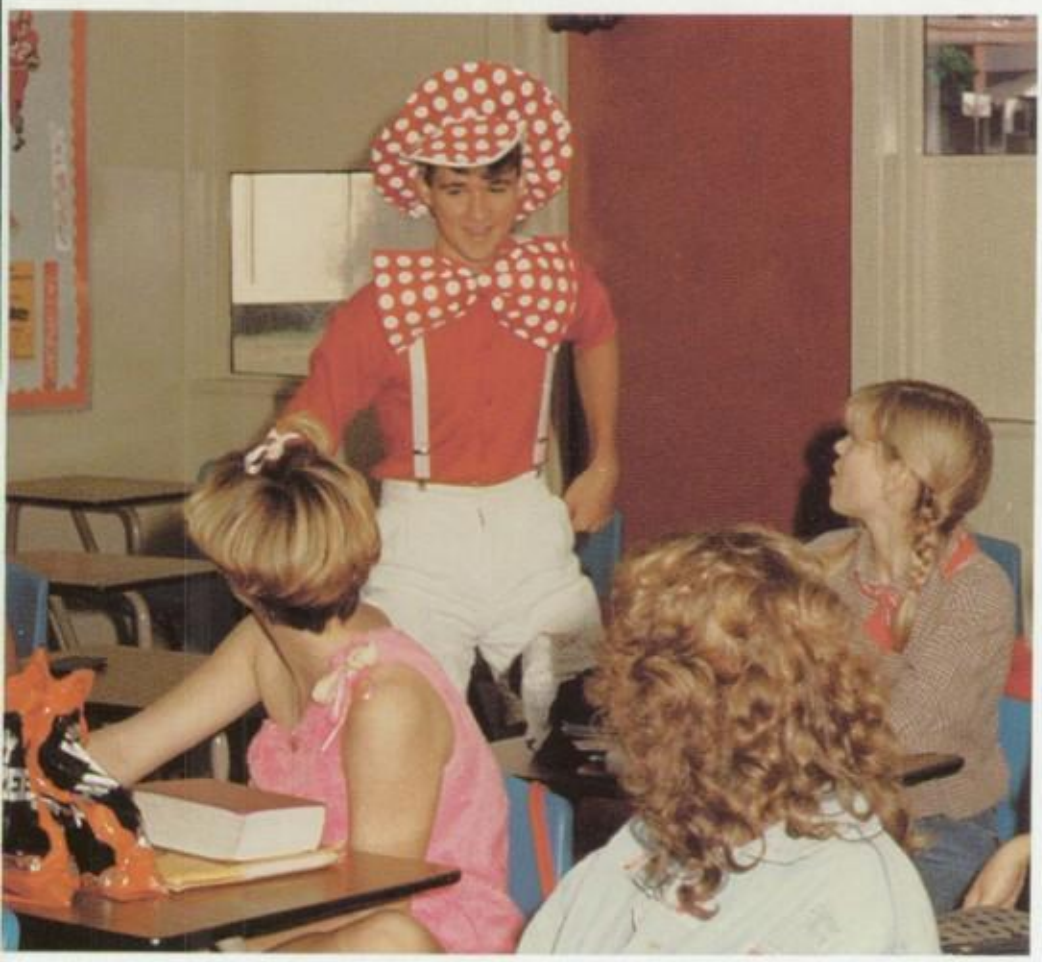
The Innocent And The Humorous. The innocence of Joe Shawn was masked by the humor of his friend Jim Peterson as the Pink Panther.

EVE of FRIGHT



Halloween came but once a year; and October came none too soon for the ever-enthusiastic Colts. Every year, students and faculty alike took full advantage of the situation and managed to rival the ghastliest goblin and the most wicked witch. Some adorned themselves in outlandish and daring outfits; while others just looked down right bizarre. Everybody seemed to get in the spirit by participating in the annual costume contest, which never failed to produce the most creative Colts on campus. Clever costumes filled the classroom, along with any stray candy that they could get a hold of. All in all, things didn't go too badly. By fourth period your perfectly planned attire had suffered a few "Alterations," and you couldn't distinguish friend from "Fiend." By this time you were asking yourself why in the world you put yourself through this much torture (you were crazy?); but by the end of the day (guess what?) you'd already begun to ask yourself, "What am I going to be next year?"

"Hey, guys don't you love my costume?" Richard Smith does a little dance for his English class.

Just Clowning Around. Two of the secretaries, Mrs. Purington and Mrs. Durr decide to get into the Halloween mood.

¿Como Estas? Is the question asked by the "Three Amigos" Rolo Barrio, Fernando Gallardo, and Raul Herrera.

"What are you going to be for Halloween?" Some of us couldn't wait to get dressed up, while others tried to avoid the subject altogether. A few students spent weeks of preparation - shopping, planning, primping, or if you were one of the latter, you waited until the last minute to get your ensemble together. Step 1. GETTING STARTED. Your first question was, "What am I going to be?" You looked everywhere for inspiration and something besides the common witch or the ever popular ghost. While a few undertook one of those do-it-yourself outfits, most preferred the easy way out (that being a rental or thrift store). Step 2. PUTTING IT TOGETHER. Once you'd figured everything out, it was finally time for a dress rehearsal. Whether you grabbed something out of a dusty box in the attic, spent an immense amount of time getting organized, or simply threw on a mask, you were ready to face the world looking slightly ridiculous. Step 3. PLAYING DRESS-UP. After getting over the initial stares and snickers, dressing up was kind of fun! Halloween was one day that you could act a little strange and look even stranger!

Wild Woman, Beware! Savage but sweet, Marci Baena, Michelle White, Vianey Ojeda, and Siouxsie Bland choose to look a little primitive.

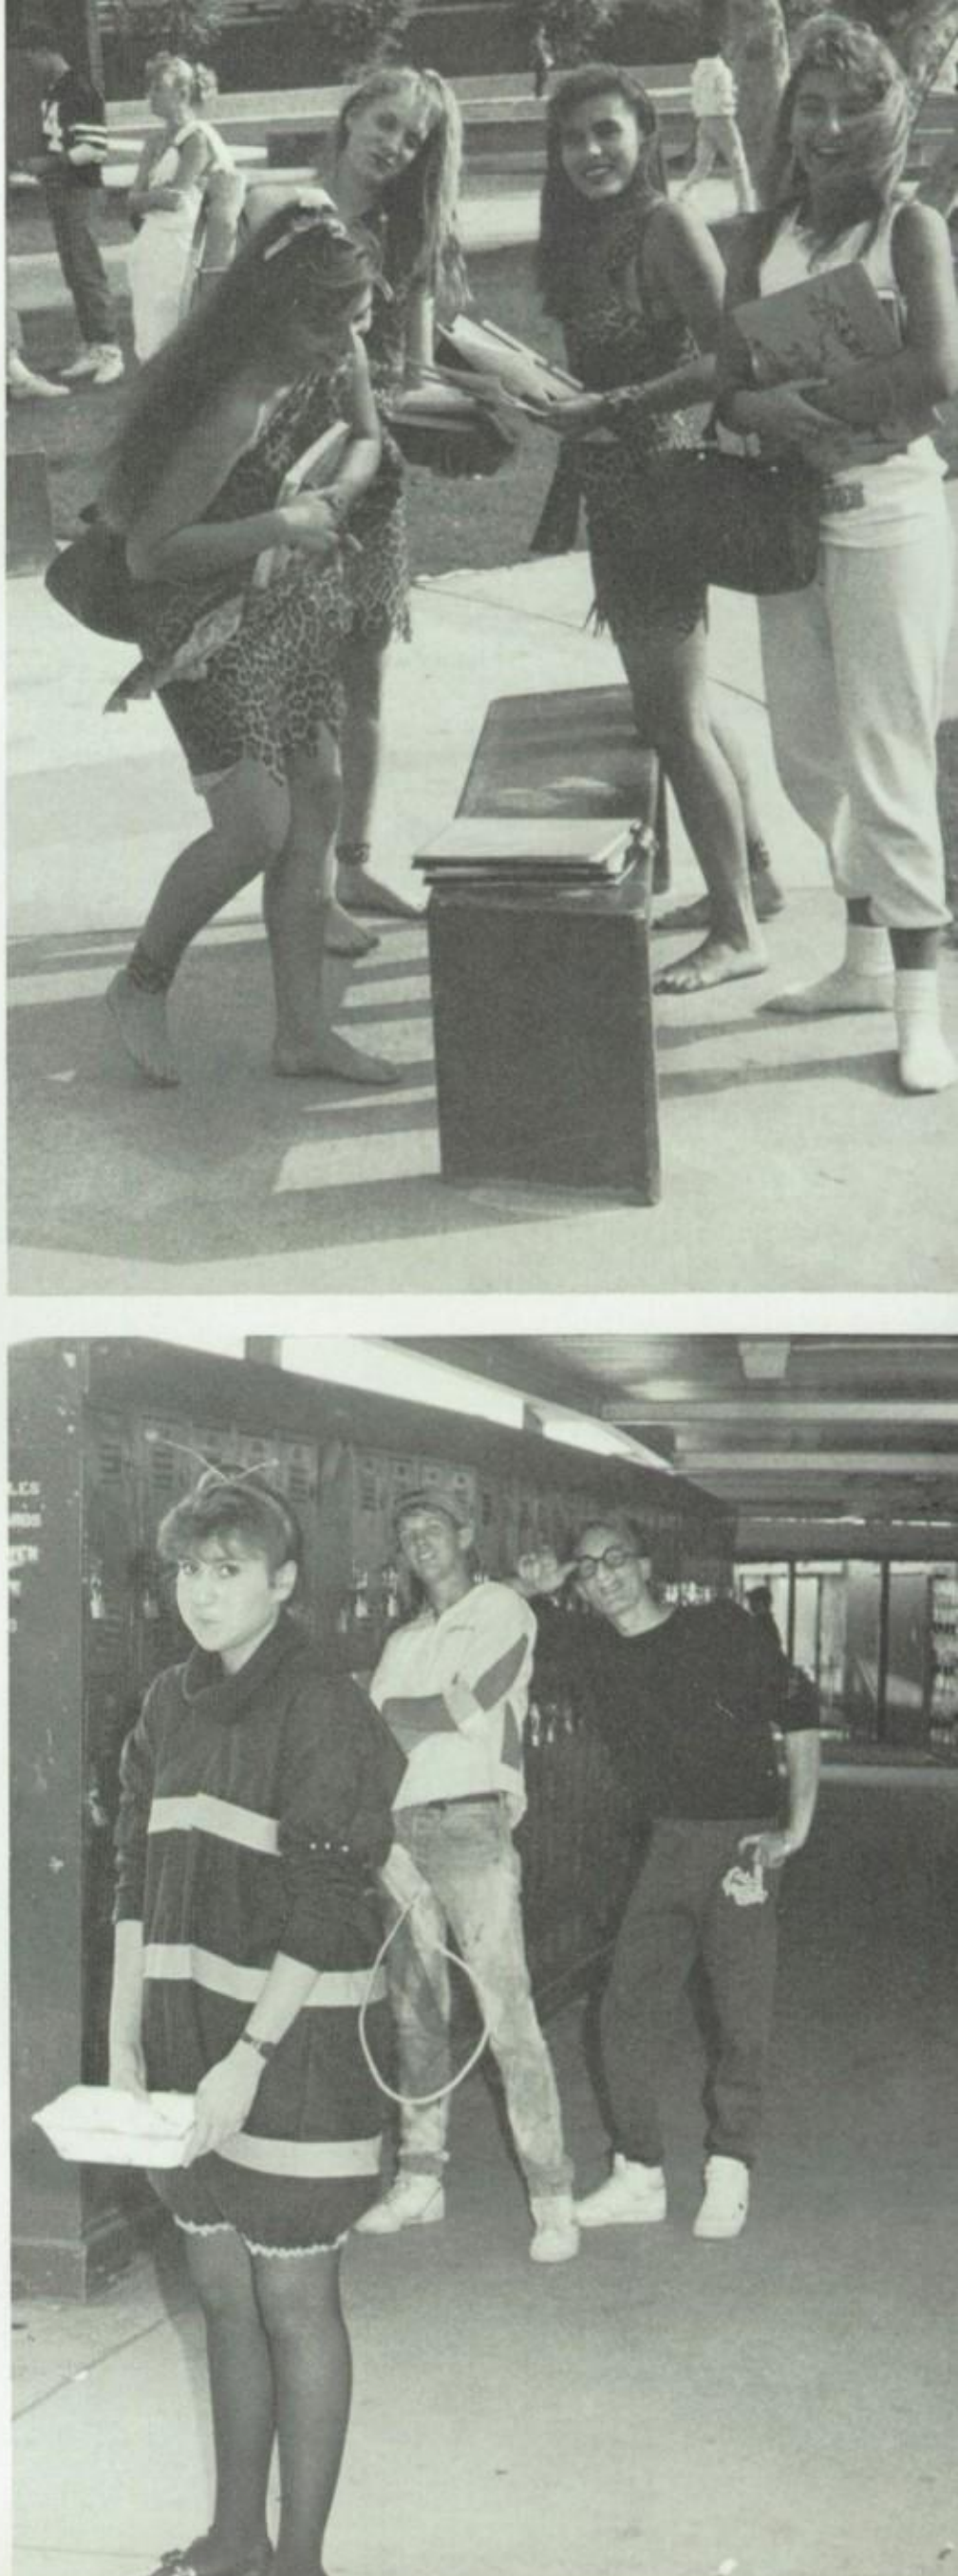
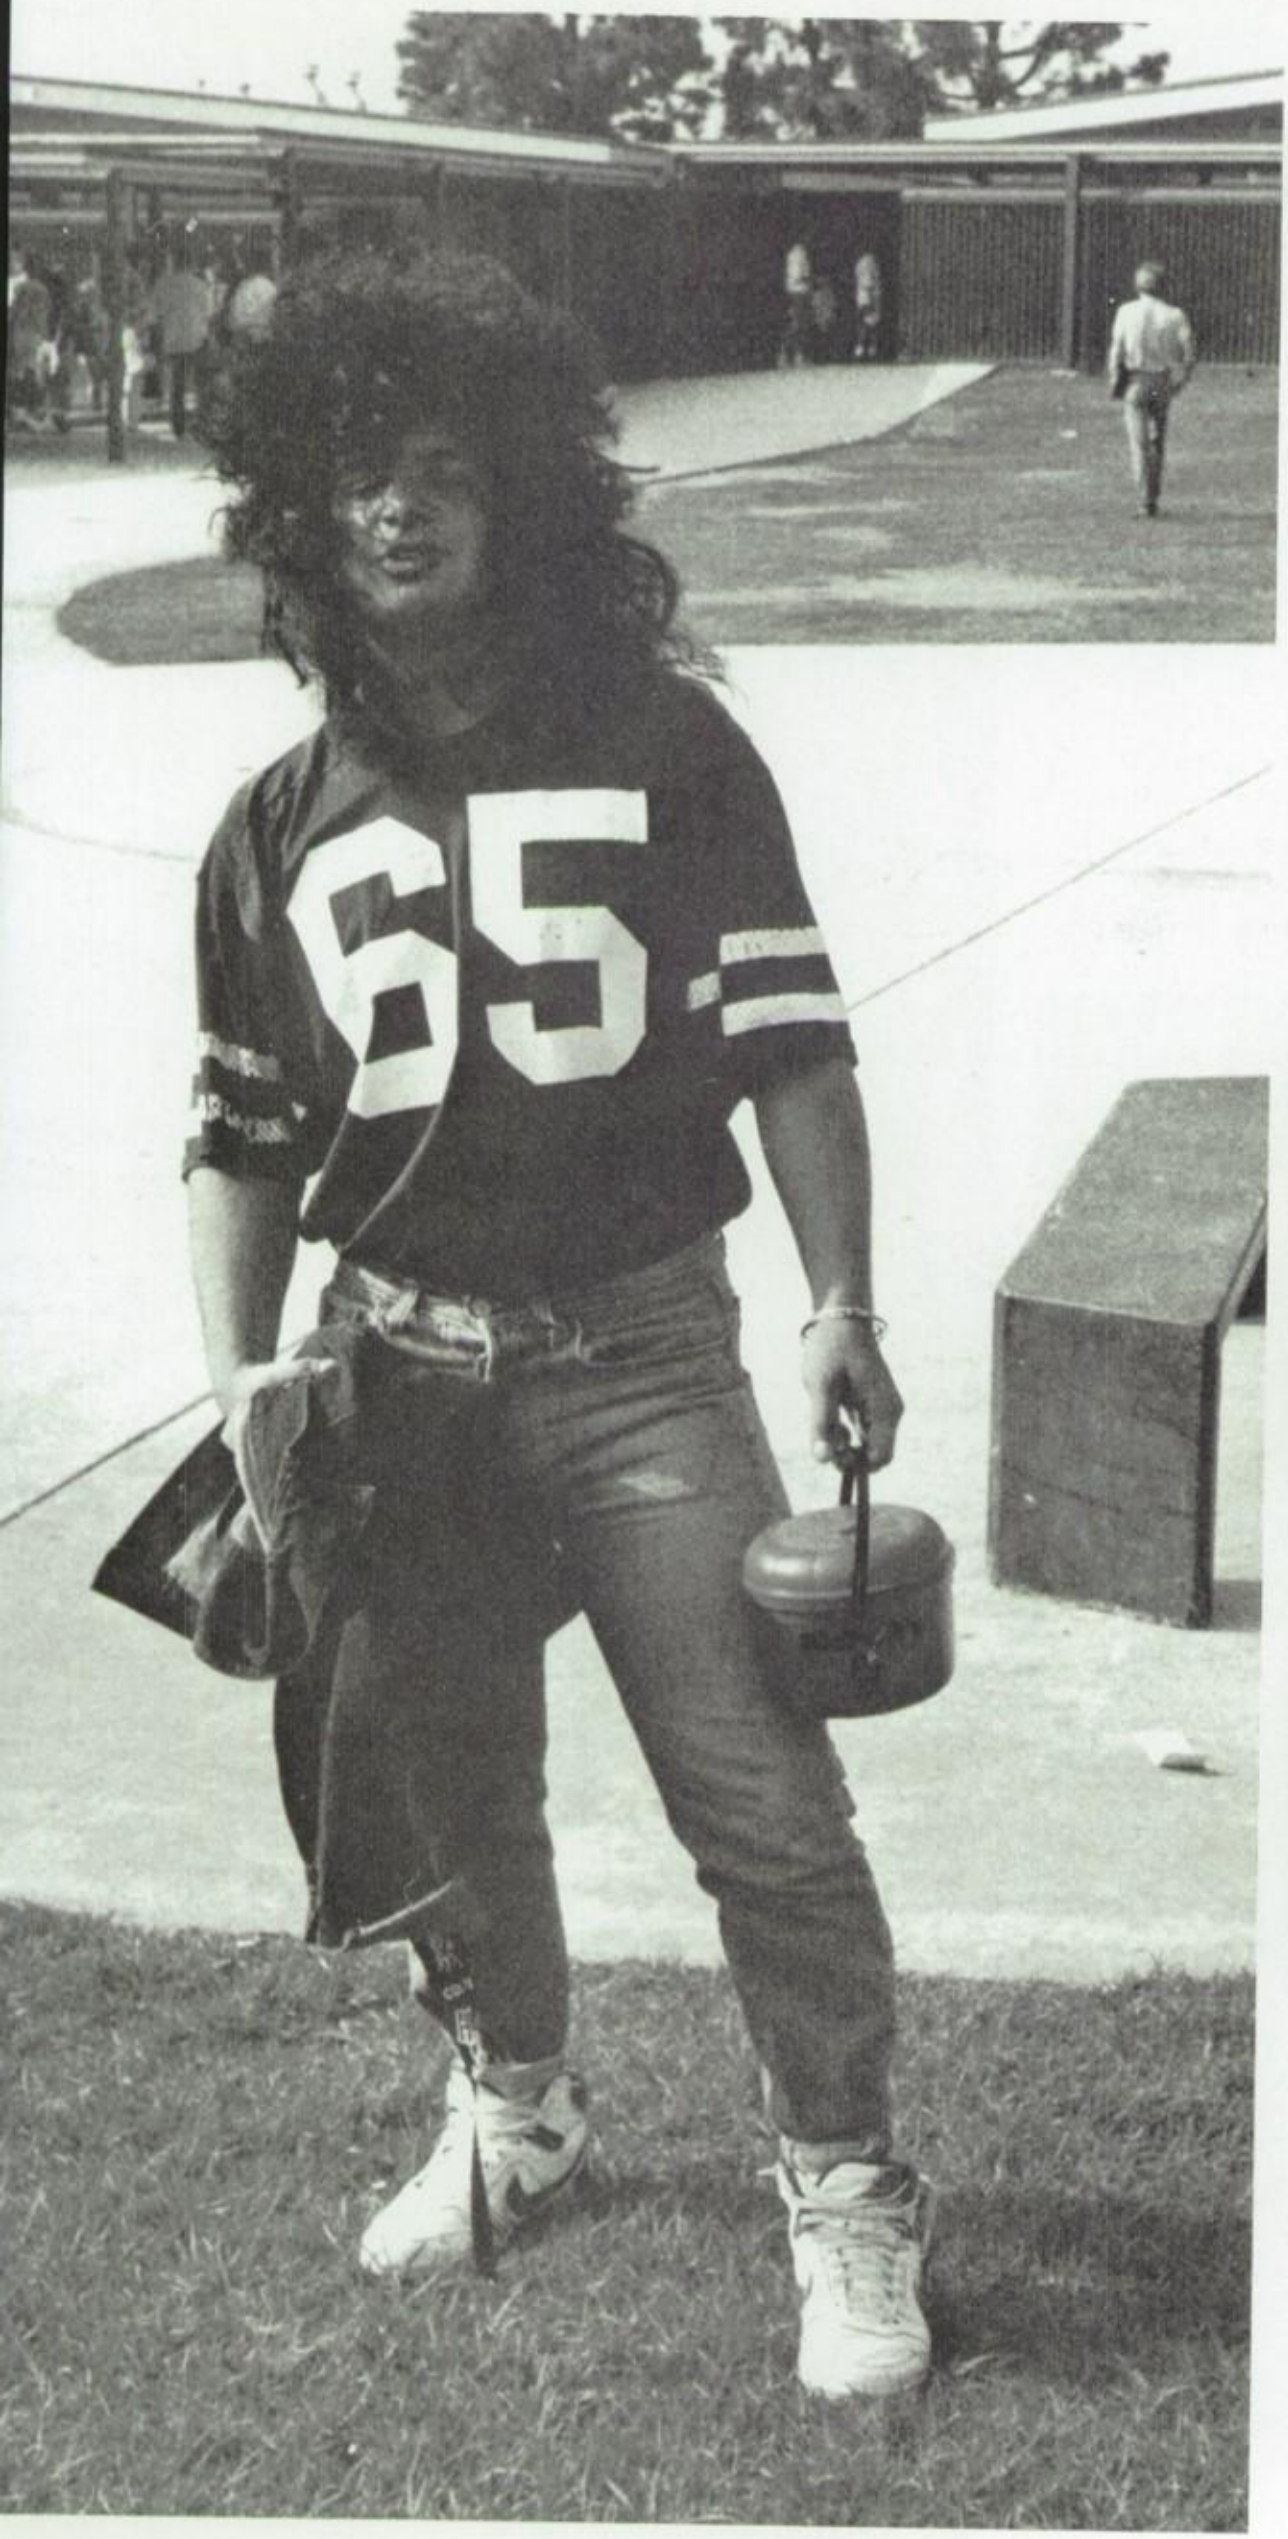
And The Winner Is . . . All enjoy dressing up for the ever-popular costume contest, some of the participants Eddie Howard, Monique Goetz, and Allan Carroll are just a few.

Bussy As A Bee. Even though Andi Trujillo's day is a busy one, she finds time to baby-sit a pair of "babies" for PFL.





TIME to HAUNT

Bang Your Head. Mike Sherman finds his long tresses a little difficult to tame.

Rebel With A Cause. The unsung hippie, Mr. Chedester tells his views to Mr. Earl, while Paul Branconier prepares for his next brain surgery.

If one had to choose a word to describe the days, unique would surely be it. Beside from the usual day to day class schedules, students had to find time to fit in extra-curricular activities. Such activities went from a simple get together with friends during brunch to pizza eating contests, Marching Band performances, and the exciting moments of the ever popular Pep Rallies. Interests were not limited to on campus activities. Many students were able to take advantage of the ROP classes available to upper classmen. These classes enabled students to learn different skills such as computer, law enforcement, and fashion skills. The experience gained in these classes helped the students to determine their course of study for future years. The number of available classes at Covina was endless. The students had such a wide variety of classes to choose from that it was difficult to find two schedules exactly alike. This bit of variety enable students to have a unique year.

What Are You Trying To Say? Christina Reza looks bewildered as her friend asks her a confusing question.

BIT of VARIETY

Stuff That Face. Danny Lisso rushes to eat a piece of pizza in the hilarious pizza eating contest.

Give Me Five. After a great report from his teachers, Sean Clemens shares his good news with M Schlenz.

That's Amazing! Excited freshman Anna Kim watches with awe the stunning performance of the Pep Units.

PFL, Pyschology of Family Living, was one course that gave the students some hands-on experience. Their annual 'playschool' let students have a taste of what parenting was really all about. Still, three weeks of amusing and caring for young children was more fun than they expected. Every student was assigned to a child (ranging in ages from 3 to 5) whom they were to look after during classtime. At first the kids were a little apprehensive about their new environment, but a call from mom and a little reassurance was all they needed to feel right at home. The children kept themselves occupied by playing on merry-go-rounds, teeter totters, and tricycles. Since there were fifteen little ones total, most students did not find it difficult to spend a great amount of time with their charges. The senior quad was always a popular attraction and they usually spent most of their brunch there. The playschool concluded with a visit from Santa, our very own Mr. Cluff, and Barnaby the Clown. It was a little hard for the students to say good-bye to their playschool children because they had become very attached and had formed special relationships with each other.

It's Child's Play. Kimberly McGowan tries to comfort Ashley Molloy who wonders where all her other playmates have gone.

Teeter-Totter. It's been awhile since Colin Gallagher and Patrick Carrico have played on a see-saw but James Smith shows them the ropes.

Here Comes Santa Claus. Not even Mr. Cluff can refuse a hug from Nina Hobbs, who thanks Santa for her Christmas present.

Peek-A-Boo. Playing hide and seek is one of Caitlin Carrico's favorite games but Christine Grimes is having a little trouble keeping up.

Thank Heaven For Little Girls. Is Ashley Molloy really as shy as she looks, or does she just want Laura Marshall's attention?

Group Effort. Joe Cipres and Janet Day don't mind doing all the work for Caitlin Carrico and Patrick Carrico, Jessica Stroh, and Frankie Salas.

Say 'Cheese.' Getting David Ulrich to smile for the camera isn't as easy as Erin Kennedy thought it would be; Monica Montoya, on the other hand, has no trouble amusing Ryan Zylstra and Daniel Ulrich.

BACK to PLAYSCHOOL

Despite all of the trends and fads, we struggled to bring out our own individuality and unique touch in everything. Whether it was our style of dress, what we drove, or our eccentricities of personality, having our own identity was more important than just 'Blending In.' We were more apt to shrug off other's opinions and indulge, no matter how bizzare or inappropriate they appeared to be. We were fortunate enough to have more than our share of talented and dedicated students. Excelling in sports, music, student government, and academics was a sure way to draw attention to ourselves. Of course, recognition was given where it was due. The C & W featured a boy and girl of the month, which highlighted the achievements of an active senior. Homecoming courts were chosen by the students to honor outstanding service and involvement in school activities. The year-end awards assembly focused on scholastic excellence and other select areas. Standing out in a crowd also meant being ourselves. Conformity gave way to novelty and students became best known for innovative ideas or personal style. Whether you did it for yourself, standing out in a crowd gave us our own identity and a certain sense of confidence.

On A More Serious Note. Anxious to make her point Anne Phillips enjoys some quiet conversation in her spare time.

In Fashion. Christina Reza displays her unique sense of style, which never fails to attract attention.

Surveying The Scene. Brandon Starkey checks out the latest trends on campus.

Gee, I Wonder. Dreaming can be a big part of a warm spring day especially to Jose Pichardo.

STANDOUTS in a crowd

Come On Down! Darrin Newkirk shows that he can rise to the occasion despite a case of the football 'blues.'

Just Ducky FFA is a time-consuming organization, but Cathy Shadley and friend seem to find it worthwhile.

FUN in DOUBLE

We Made It! The five princesses, Natalie Rodriguez, Jenny Smith, Jennifer Kendrick, Tanya Stephens, and Jennifer Payne are chosen to be the royal princesses of the Homecoming court.

For You. Jenny Smith receives the crown from the '86 queen, Robin Henrich.

Dreams Come True. Queen Jenny Smith leads her court in the opening dance.

Homecoming was more than just a single event. It was an extravaganza that was to be remembered forever. This year was double the fun since it was also Halloween. The excitement began two weeks before the game and the dance when the ten princesses were announced and the excitement built when the five royal princesses were announced at a special rally. The morning of Homecoming there was a rally intended to raise the spirit of the football players and this was certainly accomplished. Everyone, with the spirit of Halloween, was in costume. Even those that were not, felt the wave of excitement throughout the rally as the costume contest went on. The fun, excitement, and enthusiasm did not end there, but continued on through the football game. The main event of the evening was the "Walk Through the Candyland" when Jenny Smith was crowned the Homecoming queen. After the game, the festivities moved onto the dance floor where the queen and her court danced the evening away.

Getting Nervous. The escorts, Jim Holmes, Mark Dorf, Eric Rowe, Danny Piantanida, and Richard Smith, have a final chat before the long-awaited, main event.

Up, Up And Away. With her father to escort her, Queen Jenny takes an adventureous winner's ride in a hot air balloon.

Typically, Winter Homecoming has been given less attention and considered basically a follow-up of the more prestegious fall Homecoming. Not so in this case. ASB worked hard to transform the gym into a winter wonderland while Varsity Basketball fought hard to win the game. At half time, the court enjoyed some much deserved recognition and shared the spotlight with their dapper escorts. The princesses were also accompanied by their own fathers who were beaming with happiness and pride on this auspicious occasion. As the tension mounted the crown was finally placed on the head of an unexpecting Colleen Alvo. The perfect ending to a perfect evening was, of course, the homecoming dance. Everyone participated in the festivities and congratulated the new 1988 Winter Homecoming Queen Colleen Alvo.

Three's Not A Crowd. Colleen Alvo the Winter Homecoming Queen is escorted by two handsome men Mr. Alvo and Chris Burnett.

Show Of Affection. Stunned by her victory, Colleen Alvo receives a congratulatory hug from princess Tanya Leavitt.

The Royal Court. Queen Colleen Alvo and her four princess, Amy Smith, Tanya Leavitt, Patty Autran, and Claudia Autran pose for their first picture of the evening.

This Is It. After being escorted by their dads, Tanya Leavitt and Colleen Alvo whisper a last wish of good luck.

NIGHT of GLAMOUR

Don't Stop The Music. As the evening's tension breaks, the court gets a chance to relax with a dance.

Double The Fun. Some fathers are lucky enough to have one daughter on court, but Mr. Autran is double lucky to have two, Patty and Claudia also escorted by Ken Gunderson and Adam Shanks.

And The New Queen Is ... At last year's reigning Queen Suzie Fekete passes the crown over the five princesses head's, each anxiously awaits the outcome.

Grab Your Guy, It's easy for Debbie Kavanaugh, Shelley Ralstin, and Liz Hernandez to keep hold of their guys when they're Kory Boogren, Bob Maybury, and Bob Gleason.

You May Kiss The Bride. After the ceremony Manuel Gonzalez is able to get to the fun part, kissing his bride Monica Molina.

And The Winner Is . . . Diligently counting the ballots, Elvia Mesquita and Corrina Gilbertson try to figure out who the next Sadies King will be.

Kissin' Cousins Rollo Barrio and Martin Politti are lucky to be escorted by Vianey Ojeda and Marci Baena, who are true to life cousins.

TOWN of GHOSTS

For some girls the Sadie Hawkins' was the opportunity of the year, a rare chance to ask the guy out without appearing overly forward. The guys, on the other hand, had no argument with this, actually they were quite flattered by all the attention. The idea of being treated to an evening of fun obviously had great appeal. Keeping with the tradition of a country theme, the gym was decorated and decked out until it resembled an old ghostown. Such a transformation looked easy when done by a handful of dedicated Alcyonians. There were no expensive tuxes or or formals needed here, in fact, the only prerequisites were that you and your date had matching shirts and a good time. The Sadies has to be one of the most entertaining dances of the year. The ho-down was kept alive by the DJ who was spinning records, if you cared to dance. Or maybe you just preferred a 'shotgun' wedding followed by a honeymoon in the kissing patch. If you were lucky, you and your date could spend some time in the county jail. Finally, to make the evening complete, you could pose for the photographer on bales of hay, Sadies style of course.

Lets Get Hitched! Tracy Shaw and David Nelson are one of the many couples who tied the knot temporarily.
King For A Day. Sadie's King, Ralph Deligiom revels in all the attention as he takes the title by a landslide.
"I Do" Pierre Rausini and Michelle White participate in 'illegal' matrimony.

NIGHT of STARS

A Romantic Evening. Prince Richard Smith and Princess Andi Trujillo take a short break to enjoy the music.
A Regal Court. Queen Monique Serna, Princess Charlene Castro, Princess Eileen Tang, and King Ralph Deligio take a few minutes to walk the gardens.
A Little Leisure Time. King Ralph Deligio takes a few minutes to talk to Prince Paul Branconier and Prince Richard Smith.
Spring And Stars. Prince Eric Rowe and Princess Ronda Pitts have a few minutes before the next dance.

Each year the Junior Class tries to out do the previous class by putting on an absolutely dazzling and unforgettable Junior-Senior Prom. By raising their own funds, spending hours of planning and preparation, and making sure everything was just right, the class of '89 succeeded in creating a magical evening of 'Starlight Dreams.' The location was the beautiful Bonaventure Hotel, which was the perfect setting for getting dressed up in fabulous formals and debonair tuxes. Of course, the festivities would not be complete without an elaborate buffet and dancing to KROQ's DJ 'Poorman.' The final touch to an already beautiful evening was the crowning of the 1988 Prom King and Queen.

And The King And Queen Are . . . (Drum Roll Please) The 1988 Prom King and Queen are RALPH DELIGIO and .obMONIQUE SERNA.
A Great View. Princes Eric Rowe, Richard Smith, Paul Branconier, and Mike Solar take time for a stroll with Princesses Andi Trujillo and Ronda Pitts.

It was surprising the number of students you ran into at various stores around town these ambitious kids juggled school, homework, sports, and a social life around their part-time jobs. You were most likely to find students at restaurants such as Steak Corral or Marie Calendars, the Malls, or grocery stores. While some Colts worked for a little extra pocket money, others took on a job of a different sort. Invaluable volunteers relinquished their weekends in order to help with fundraisers like the aluminum can and newspaper drives. Sports Fans donated their time and enthusiasm to cheer on the Colts no matter how stiff the competition. Covina High teachers, who may have one of the busiest jobs of all, not only taught in the classroom during school hours, but coached a variety of sports. They also organized numerous clubs, as wehl as producing the C&W, Cardinal, and annual musical. Teachers and students alike gave their time to other social activities such as dances. Chaperons, hostesses, and ticket sellers were all needed to help make the dance a successful one.

Frozen Fun. Brian Smith and Tom Cornet find time to talk between hours at Penguins.

Wahoo!!! Enthusiastic fans root on our girl's varsity basketball team to victory.

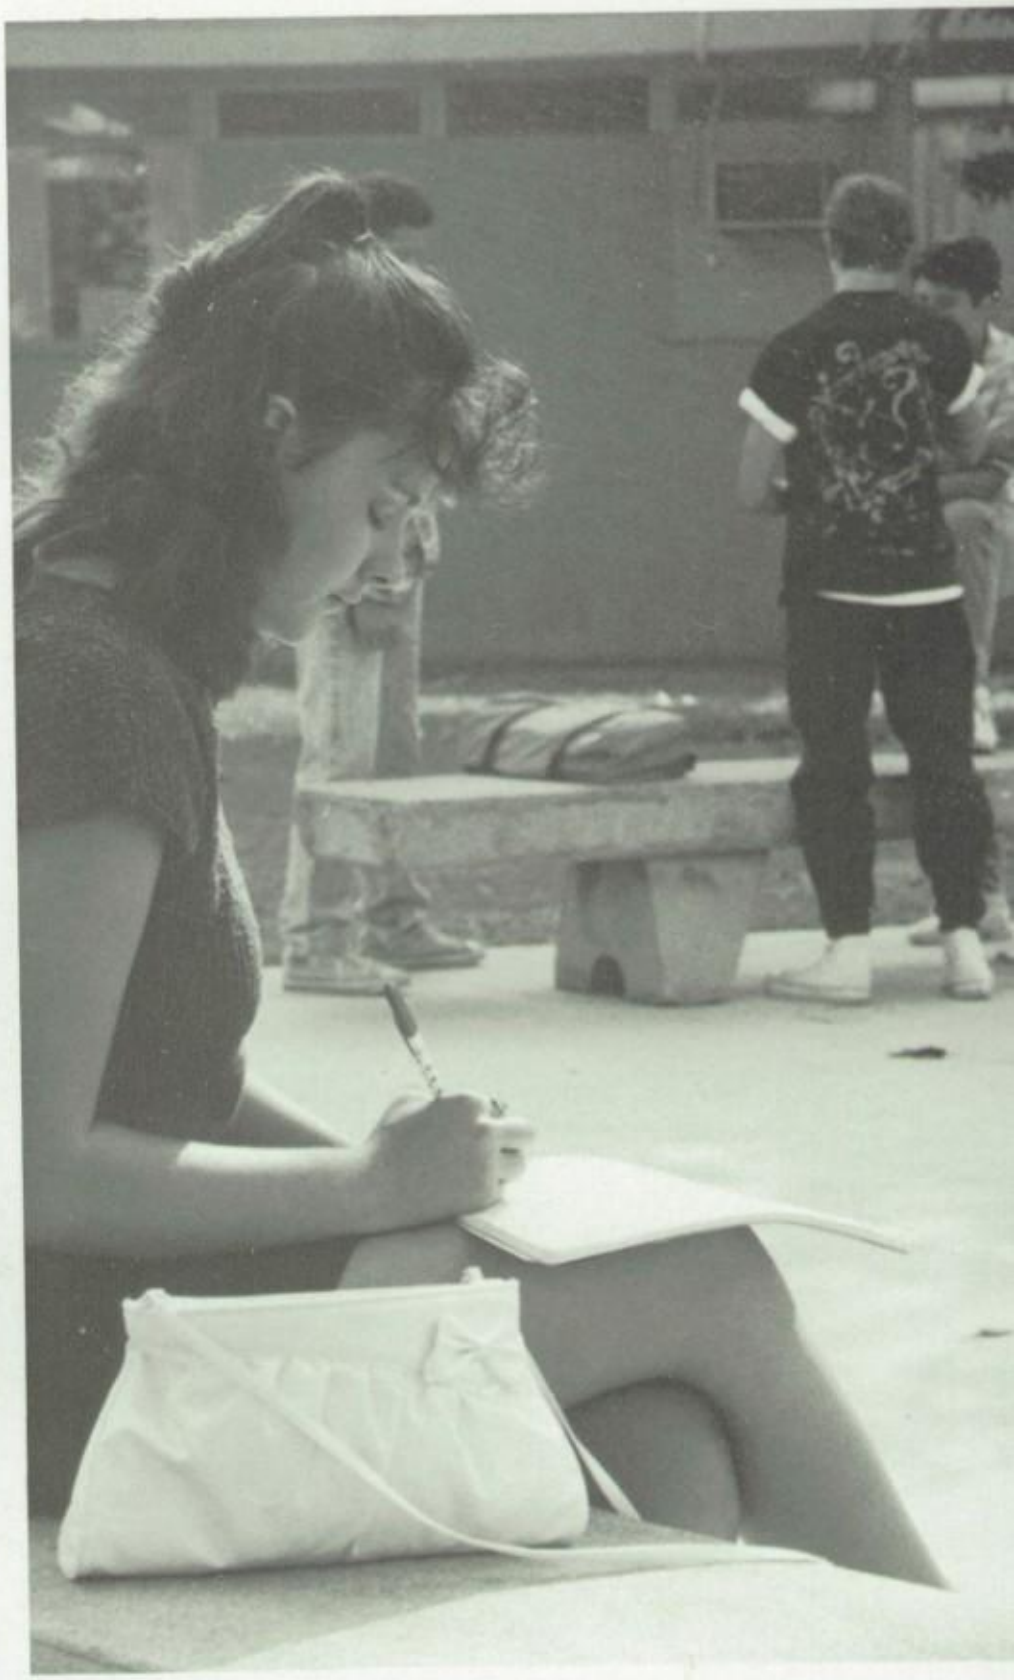
Will That Be All? While working the drive through window Marci Baena takes time to ring up Denise Happe's order.

Toot Your Horn. The Jazz Band shows their own way of how to cheer on our team in a CIF Tournament.

Group Work. The Junior Boosters put all the cans together that they can to earn money toward the Junior -Senior Prom.

WORK for PRIDE

Needed a place to study, talk, or just straighten out your thoughts? Colts found the library, quad, and classrooms the perfect spots to get their essential tasks finished. Early bird students, along with "after-schoolers" were seen deep in thought trying to finish their projects. For some, they needed extra time to study or do their homework. Last minute assignments would send Colts dashing to local public libraries. Students were tutored to understand classes better. People would come to school early just to study for that "important test." Some were even here on Saturday to get that last few minutes of practice in before a big field cimpetition. Others felt "Home Sweet Home" was the best place to study, do homework, or sit and relax.



What Was My Homework? Thinking back to her first period, Kim Whippie tries to remember her assignment.

I Don't Want To Go To School. Shelley Ralstin tells Lori Loomis, "Let's ditch!"

On A Saturday! "Weekends are for fun, not for school," say Carol Edgar and Dana Smith.

Test time. Studying hard and getting good grades is the best idea to Jason Dabe.

Come On, I Have To Study. Trying to keep from laughing Winessa Wesley tells a friend to let her study.

Whistle While You Type. Nimble fingers are the trick of speed and to Farid Durr it's a breeze.

PLACES to BE

TOUCH of COLOR

They've Lost That Lovin' Feeling. Singing to Homecoming Queen Jenny Smith, Tim Kearns, Paul Branconier, Jeff Salberg, and Mike Solar show their stuff.

Come On Down. Dangelo Robinson and Nicole Romant ham it up at the rally as they announce the student of the week. Adriana Montoya.

Red Hot Chili Peppers. The Seniors sizzle with spirit as Brian Shively, Jason Cochren, and Christine Anderson let everyone know that they are big bad seniors.

Red, white, and blue plus a touch of green were the colors of the annual spirit rally. The Seniors always favored red and the Juniors chose white (CHS colors, of course!), the Sophomores decided on basic blue and the Freshmen were stuck with green. Each class had to make the best of its color and using balloons, streamers, posters, and just about anything they could get their hands on. The biggest asset was class spirit, since the final decoration to each section was the class itself. The Senior section was on fire with poms poms and siren red streamers, the Junior chilled out with snowflakes and togas, the Sophomores were a sea of cool blue balloons, and last but not least the Freshmen cleverly chose a green "Gumby" as their mascot. Each section was proud to show its color and expressed its spirit during the class yell. After the rally was over, it seemed such a shame to tear down all the brilliant color; but everything ends. The SOPHOMORES succeeded in chalking up a few more spirit points by capturing the title of COLOR RALLY CHAMPIONS.

Bubbling In Blue. The class of 1990 gets carried away with Sophomore Spirit and wins the title of COLOR RALLY CHAMPIONS.

Green And Proud Of It. The spirit of Amy Wasserman, Becky Harder, MaryAnn Wren, and Cindy Cagle make the other classes green with envy.

Bright In White. Juniors do the traditional spell out.

eXCel in SENIORS

Let's take a look back 44 years to the class of '44 and see if that class had anything in common with the class of '88 In 1944 we were in the midst of WW II. While there was no world war there was tension and fighting in the Persian Gulf, Lebanon, and Nepal. The US was presided over by Democrats - Franklin D. Roosevelt and Henry Wallace and now Republicans - Ronald Reagan and George Bush. Dr. Hilda Thelander became the first woman physician in the medical corps of the US Navy. Women worked in factories. Recently women have won major battles in equal rights. On the light side in '44, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the St. Louis Browns in the world series, and the Green Bay Packers were the NFL champs, but the Indy races had been cancelled until the war was over; in '87 the Minnesota Twins beat the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants won Super Bowl XXI, and Roberto Guerrero won at Indy. Not a lot of changes, but an interesting world to enter and make a mark in.

Creative and Artistic. Adam Montes and Tracey Goods are definitely a credit to their class and are proud, unique, and talented seniors.

Kick Back And Relax. At brunch everyone came out to eat and play and breathe a sigh of relief before third period class began.

The Wanderer. Roaming around campus, Mike Shaw finds all kinds of interesting people to talk to.

Pete Has The Beat

Talent was what Peter Garcia had. Famous for his handling of the quads, many did not realize what a diversified musician he was. During his career in the Colossal Colt Marching Band, Jazz Band, and Concert Band, he played not only in the percussion section (his famous drums), but also in the horn section. He could play every thing from the Sousaphone to the trumpet and it was not strange that he wanted to persue a professional career as a musician. While music was his number one love his 4 X 4 was his second. He spent whatever free time he had looking for some off-road action and enjoyed all of his time when he was not practicing.

Devotion To Duty

Joelle Wilson was probably one of the most dedicated students Covina had during the four years she attended. Joelle, who did not miss one day of school beyond the third grade, made endless contributions to Covina High. She was a member of Alcyonian Service Club, a four-year band member as a flauist, an Associated Student Body legislator both her junior and senior year, and for a short time a high jumper on the track team. In recognition of her outstanding services to the student body as a whole, Joelle was chosen to be part of the elite honor guard of the class of '87—the daisy chain. There certainly was no doubt that she was an "exceptional" Colt.

The Right People To Follow

Busy people always had time for everything, and Paul Branconier and Nicole Romant were two of the busiest. Not only was Paul ASB President, he was involved in three major sports — football, basketball, baseball. With his spare time he was part of the Lettermen's Club and managed to maintain a positive attitude about everything. While school government was one of Nicole Romant's interests (she served as Secretary of Activities), dance was her first love and she spent hundreds of hours practicing with and choreographing for the Drill Team. She had plenty of experience for this job since she had danced at the '87 Super Bowl and was an instructor of dance during the '87 USA Santa Barbara.

"They're So Great . . ."

When asked about the special relationship she shared with a select group of CHS students, Kelly Jacobs opened up with exuberance and sincerity concerning her favorite interest - working with handicapped children. Kelly was one of the first to admit that teaching wasn't exactly one of the easiest jobs, but for her, the time spent devoted to these special students was worth every minute of hard work. It wasn't until her junior year, when she needed an extra class, that she jumped at the chance to work with these kids. She found the experience to be extremely rewarding. In her own wards, Kelly said she provided encouragement, praise, and a genuine friend they could trust. After spending countless hours with these kids, Kelly observed many things, "They play with each other, fight with each other . . . They know they're different and they live in their own little world." Being a first period teacher's aide to Mrs. Jensen and Mrs. Briggs was Kelly's favorite class, something she looked forward to everyday.

"I Don't Quit"

Randy Frost was one of those special people on campus who never gave up. He worked extremely hard in his classes and was one of those that CHS could point to with pride. Randy competed several years in the Special Olympics and came away with several firsts and seconds and a plaque for special honors. Randy had a cheery smile and a friendly "Hello" for everyone he met. If he had a special love, it was probably for the Los Angeles "Lakers." He spent some time making a special banner that let everyone know that the "Lakers" were his favorite team. Loaded with energy and enthusiasm he said, "I don't think you should ever quit."

Talent And Brains

Quiet spoken Su Yon Cho, with a 4.0 average certainly excelled scholastically. Strength in physics and math added to her plans to major in Aerospace Engineering. She was also brilliant in art and took Commercial Art for three years. At the same time she participated in Art Instruction School of Minnesota, which was a home study program. During her freshmen and sophomore years she found some extra time and played softball. As a senior she was ASB Commissioner of Public Relations and still found time to belong to several clubs including the prestigious CSF and Alcyonians.

Music, Music!

Anyone who attended the '87 Rose Parade could be proud to say that Cynthia Bailey was part of the world famous Rose Parade Band. Not many people had the skill to be part of such a prestigious unit, but Cynthia had talent to spare. As a senior she was Co-Drum Major of the Colossal Colt Marching Band and had three years experience in music.

Musical talent seemed to abound on campus and Chris de la Garza was a musical asset to the marching band and the jazz band. Not only was Chris a talented musician he was a member of the swim team and enjoyed biking when he had some spare time away from the pool and his trombone.

"Spike It" might have been something you heard fans say to Jennifer Kendrick who was a very talented athlete. Jennifer was well known for her exceptional talent and aggressiveness in volleyball where she lettered for three years. She was also a member of basketball and track. In track she threw the discus. She was chosen to serve on the Daisy Chain in '87 and was also one of the Fall Homecoming princesses. During the last four years Tanya Stepens excelled in many sports. She received the MVP awards in both varsity basketball and track. She was also a member of the CSF and was part of the Class of '87's Daisy Chain. As a senior she was ASB Secretary of Athletics.

Sing! Sing A Song

Fun, cute, sweet, intelligent—all described Jennifer Smith. She was known for always having a smile on her face and a kind thing to say. Jenny made many contributions among them were chorus, ASB, Alcyonians, varsity basketball and volleyball. Jennifer was also a member of choir. Besides having such a beautiful voice to cheer us with in concert and musicals, she always made Covina a little brighter with her catchy smile.

Eric Smith was far more than just a choir member. This talented Colt won the outstanding singing award for three consecutive years. This could be easily understood if you have attended any of the musicals in which Eric played leading roles. This was not the end of Eric's talent he also acted in the drama section and was part of speech and debate. Eric's favorite past time was collecting model trains.

An intense athlete Mike Solar was quarterback of football team and was famous for his rifle throws. He was also elected co-captain of the team. Mike impressed people with his quick moves. Not only did Mike play in sports he was also one of the athlete scholars on campus. While being involved in several major sports, he maintained a better than B average overall.

Jeff Salberg fascinated people with his hard hits in football. As a varsity player, Jeff dedicated many hours to long practices. If you said jump, Jeff would do just that. He participated in track in the high jump, to help get points for the team. Jeff once said, "If I could invent a game, I would make it as physical as possible!"

Brains And Beauty

Cathy Chang had a list of achievements a mile long and she was one of the most popular in the senior class. Cathy was '88 class president for three years and then ASB Commissioner of Fund Raisers. Along with her academic skills, Cathy was a wiz in sports. She played varsity tennis for three years and was number one in '87. Also she had a talent for prize winning art. She was truly an all-around talent.

Creative, intelligent, active, and friendly. This was what came to mind when one thought of Kelli Butler. Having been in art class for two years at Covina, Kelli showed much talent in her creative works. Kelly first started to draw at CHS where she, along with her teachers discovered her unique talent. Kelli also enjoyed sports and her academic classes. She had a way of making everyone smile.

Seeing Doubles

The Class of '88 had a very unique group within its count. There were four sets of twins. Now not all of the twins were exact look-a-likes, but there definite resemblences. Anthony and Joseph Hanshaw, who did not make the filming, were a pair of brothers and no one was quite sure if they were identical or not, but they had an interesting birthday Christmas day. Richard and Jenny Smith were not identical, but goodlooking. Richard was the senior class president and Jenny was song leader. Marck and Martin were identical, Martin was the youngest by several minutes, and both were interested in journalism. Marck on the newspaper and Martin on the yearbook. Claudia and Patty Autran, identical, were two of the busiest seniors on the entire campus. Claudia was a song leader and Patty was in ASB.

Gab, Gab, Gab!

Jason Matthews wasn't your every day "normal." He was very much involved in speech and debate and he won numerous awards for his incredible speaking ability. Jason was also involved in Model United Nations and he did well for the nations he represented. Not only was he a great speaker he was also a very good student. Finally add to Jason's achievements the art of drama where he starred in several plays.

Mike Shaw was another of the talkers of the class of '88. He was part of the speech and drama sections and had an incredibly glib tongue. He shifted to student government in his senior year, but was still a part of the Model UN and was another excellent representative. This played to his favor since he acted as the CASC representative to ASB.

Although Brandon Starkey started Covina as a sophomore, he managed to fit in and excelled in track and in band. He played the baritone for the Colossal Colt Band. Brandon said, "Even though what I do takes up a lot of time, I enjoy everything I do, and I wouldn't trade it for anything!"

excel in ORGANIZATIONS

If you were a happy-go-lucky and adventurous person this school had an organization just for you. There was a wide selection just for you. There was a wide selection of activities ranging from agriculture to political clubs. No matter which club you were a member of it was a lot of hard work. But most of all it was working to have fun. All these clubs deserved thanks for the things they gave and did for the school on the memberships free time such as dances, yearbooks, newspapers, decorations, fundraisers, carnivals, candygrams, music, spirit, and so on. All the organizations were a great way to get involved because of all the people who cared. One of the best fringe benefits was all the new friends you made while doing the work.

CSF, California Scholastic Federation, was an elite organization. To be a member of this unique organization you had to have at least three A's and two B's in academic subjects. You could not have a U in any class. These were the people that got up early every morning and helped tutor any student who was having trouble in an academic class. They also sponsored the annual college night that was so helpful to those who had to fill in the complex application forms for the many colleges and universities they were interested in. But there was some time for fun, too. The members attended the taping of some TV shows, several plays and other productions. The end of the year was marked by the annual trip to their sponsor's, Mrs. Hertel, cabin in Big Bear for some much deserved R & R.

'The Truth Is That It Is Not Always Easy . . .'
Paul Branconier, A.S.B. President

What does the Associated Student Body, better known as ASB, do? This was a common question among the uninitiated. If it wasn't for all the dedicated members of this highly organized unit there would be no assemblies, rallies, dances, or sports contests. One of the major ambitions of ASB was to instill spirit and enthusiasm, not always an easy job. The hours spent in drawing up posters and updating the marquee were only part of the small details that all the members kept track of. The referees that officiated at the games were paid for by the moneys handled by them, too. They made arrangements for all the food and drink that was sold at all the sporting events, dances, and soc hops. Transportation to and from events was another of their jobs, but that was only surface. Next came the plans for baccalaureate services and finally graduation. There were other jobs that had to be done at the regular 7:15 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday meetings. Those tedious and demanding little jobs of ordering paper for posters and making sure that special bulletins were arranged. All in all a demanding schedule to maintain, especially if you were involved in sports and other activities.

Mr. President. Always the wit, Jason Matthews, adds his touch of humor to one of the well-planned rallies.

'Don't Hesitate To Join And Let's Get Enthusiastic,' Mr. Jadrick.

The Colossal Colt Marching Unit was made up of wind, brass, and percussion instruments and, of course, the very talented Drill Team and Tall Flags. The units performed at all football games giving support to the players as well as entertaining the audience at half time. Taking part in field competitions was important to these units. They attended West Covina, Claremont, and Cal Poly and gave extrordinary performances and these were just the beginning. By special invitation, they performed at Disneyland. During the year they were heard at award banquets and their final performance of the year was at graduation. They not only worked hard to perfect each and every note and movement performed on the field, but they also conducted fund raisers that helped pay for the field trip to Valejo.

Colt Fight Song. The pep band 'musicating' force at all the rallies.

This Is Tough. Have you ever tried to be part of a marching band with a broken leg? Eric Starkey manages it well from the side lines.

Leader Of The Band. Co-Drum Major Cynthia Bailey.

Proud To Announce. The Christmas Parade is hosted by the Colossal Colt Band and April Holk and Rima Zahr carry the band colors.

Leader Of The Band. Co-Drum Major Nathan Wielandt.

A Touch Of Nerves. The Drill Team seems just a bit nervous before it begins its showtime routine.

'We Add Flash And Zip To The Show . . .' Michelle White, Drill Lieutenant

The Drill Team and Tall Flag units have always been known for their hard work and dedication. Long hours of practice perfecting routines was what made this year a particularly successful one for all members of the Colossal Colt Band. Under the direction of Mr. Jadirch and Drill Team adviser Mrs. Dahlberg, who were invaluable in planning and organizing field shows, competitions, and parades, the units provided 'flash and zip' for the band. Months of rehearsing and choreographing helped the 16 member drill unit to win awards at every competition — ranging from third place to sweepstakes. This was extremely impressive considering the team had only five returning members. There were eleven first-time freshmen. Nichole Romant served as captain, Lisa Melgaard as co-captain, and Diane Kim, Olga Sandoval, and Michelle White acted as drill lieutenants. The Tall Flags unit also enjoyed an exciting season. First time Captain Stacy Cooper and Co-captain Leigh Brown led the experienced 18 member unit to place in number of competitions. Some of these included Claremont, Norwalk, and Chaffey. Along with performing at half time and competing in field shows, the Tall Flags unit shared the honor of hosting the annual Covina Christmas Parade.

COVINA FIGHT SONG

Fight, Fight, Fight
We're going to win tonight
Score, Score, Score
We're going to score some more.
We're going to win, win, win
And that is why we sing.

We sing our praises
To the sky aye, aye, aye.
Go Colts go, we're going to win tonight
Look, Look, Look at the score
V-I-C-T-O-R-Y We're going to Win this game tonight!

ALMA MATER

Here's to our dear Covina High
Here's to the Red and White
Here's to the boys who won the game
Who fought with all their might.

Here's to the girls forever true,
True as the stars above.
Here's to our dear Covina High,
Here's to the School we love.

We're So Excited. The exhuberance that the many girls on the pep squads have is radiated by the individuals, Claudia Autran, Hydee Pricco, Kim Sehnert, Brandi Foster, Becky Parker, who make up the varsity and JV units.

"Did You Ever Wonder What It Took To Be A Part Of The Pep Unit?" Tanya Leavitt

Each of the enthusiastic members had to meet six separate criterion. First was grade point. Each member had to have at least a 2.0 when she tried out and she had to maintain it for the entire year. Second. All citizenship grades had to be satisfactory. Third. You had to attend all workshops. The workshops were held in the gym each night and attendance was mandatory. These workshops began in April the year before. Fourth. Screen outs were conducted by three paid judges. Fifth. You had to perform and be selected by the student body at large. The scores of both the judges and the students were totaled and the winners were announced at the Inaugaration Rally at the end of April. Sixth. then the work really began.

'Drama Is An Opportunity To Meet People And To Get Involved.' Evelyn Ramirez

If acting was your thing then the Speech and Drama was your club. Some people said that this club was only for students in drama but that was not true. The members welcomed anyone who wanted to give acting a try. Not only did they perform for sell-out audiences everytime a production was put on, but they also performed at competitions offered by Cal Poly Kellogg University, University of La Verne and Cal State Fullerton. The Christmas extravaganza for the elementary and junior high students was one of the biggest hits of the year. They had fundraisers all during the year to be able to fund their productions and the entry fees at the competitions. During Spirit Week they were able to 'rack' in money with their booth. Under the leadership of President Julie Sherer and Vice-president Jim Peterson the club was off and acting. Speech was a separate part of the club and it managed to have all the fast talkers on campus. With Jason Matthews as its leader, the speech club led the way to many honors. Jason Matthews received extra kudos when he won the Southern California competition. Between the two clubs they boasted more than ten first place honors and more second and third place awards than could be enumerated.

'Did You Know That Going To High School Is Really Fun At Christmas?' Workman Kid

The Children's Christmas Theater production was a collection of poetry, music, dances, dramatic readings, and one act plays for young children. The two plays were "How Santa Got His Christmas Tree." The second play was "Angels With Paper Wings." Four hundred and fifty children from Workman, Rowland, and Manzanita attended. The children were so thrilled with what they observed that they sent the cast thank you cards decorated and signed by the young students themselves. During the same week the music department held its Christmas concert and for the first time in many years right on campus. The concert was given to a sold out house.

Trouble In River City Eric Smith. Professor Hill, warns everyone of the terrible 'Demon' entering the River City by the name of 'P-O-O-L.'

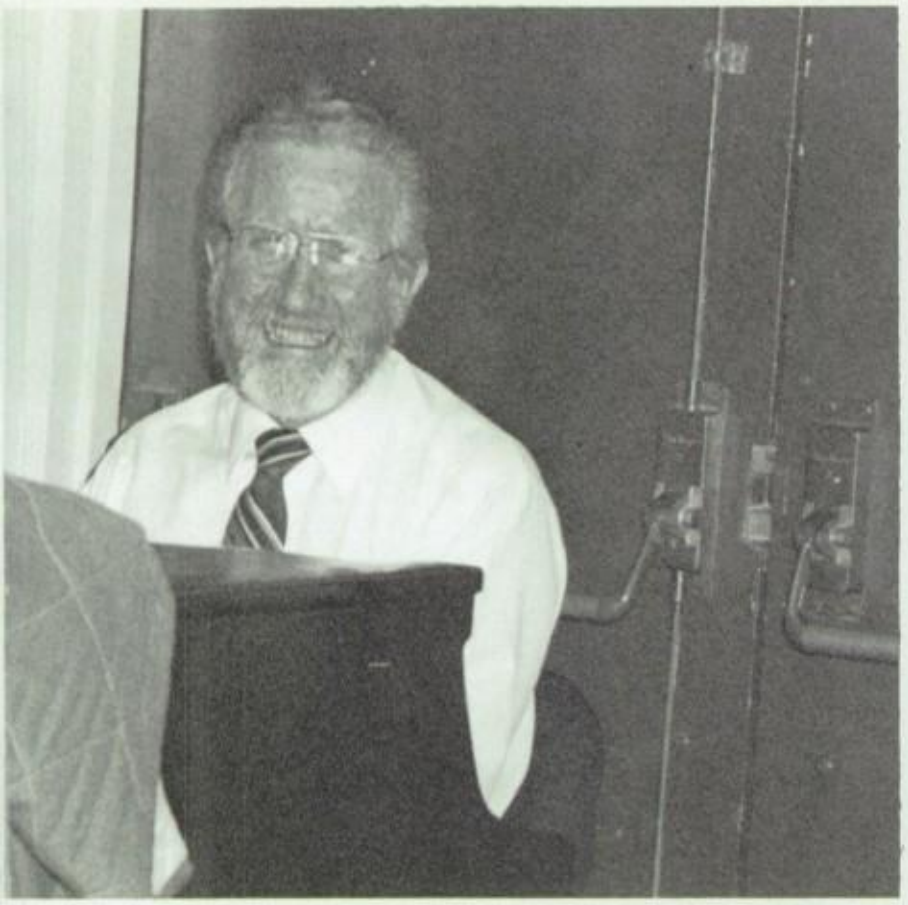
Hit The Right Key. Dr. Bacon-Shone provides the marvelous musical background and dialogue for the musical.

Hey Brother Aren't You Worried? Professor Hill tells River City citizen, Todd Zerbel and Michelle Vanderpool about the devil coming to town in the guise of a pool table.

The Sadder But Wiser Girl For Me. Hill refuses a date with the Sunday School teacher, David Wingfield's girl friend sister.

Oily-Tongued. Professor Hill sells his view to the naive River City residents with his 'slickery' words.

Good Night My Someone. Jenny Smith, Marian the librarian, dreams of that perfect someone who will come along someday and sweep her off her feet, while Heather Bacon-Shone, Amaryllis, dreams of Winthrop.



'. . . One Of The Best Performances I've Seen In 10 Years.' M. Watkins

Seventy-six trombones led the big parade right to room E-4 as the Choral Department presented another musical, "Music Man." The musical starred Eric Smith as the fast-talking band salesman, Professor Harold Hill, and Jenny Smith as Marian the prissy librarian. This exciting production was a HUGH success, but it did not just happen over night. It all started in early February with the tryouts when over 50 students tried out for all the various parts and almost everyone made the cast. In addition to regular class time, throughout the February, March and April the cast put in three more hours a day of rehearsals. They realized that all of their hard work paid off when the show was sold out for all four performances. The main plot is centered around Professor Hills attempt to sell bogus boys' band instruments and music and skip town once he has collected the money, but first he had to keep the music teacher who is also the librarian off balance. The Choir room provided the perfect 'intimate' theater setting for the outstanding cast to recreate the feeling of River City, Iowa in 1912.

'They Sound So Good, I Think I'll Join The Band.' Kevin Hwang.

The Thirty-sixth Annual Mid-Winter Concert, A Musical Extravanganza, was a great success. Each year, Triad Council organized this marvelous event. Under the baton of Mr. Jadrich, the concert band, jazz ensemble, wind ensemble, and soloists made the evening a very memorable one for all those who attended. The night started with the band performing their version of the national Anthem, followed by the 'Invicta.' They also played something that the audience could remember, 'Rhapsody of Reruns.' The program also envolved the performance of the soloists and the jazz band. Solos done by Cynthia Bailey on tenor sax and Pete Garcia on the drums during the jazz performance heightened the excitment. They had the audience taping their toes and fingers and shaking their shoulders. The excitement was prolonged with their encore performance of 'Rock Around The Clock.' The tremendous success was evident from the resounding applause that issued from the beautifully decorated gym.

'I Came In With My Camera And Walked Out With The Award.' Mrs. Watkins

SPECIAL was the perfect word for the Girl's League Mother-Daughter Banquet. According to many, this banquet was among the best. It was held at Griswold's and the attractively decorated room added to the ambience of the evening. The black-and-white theme was carried out with white carnations and black satin bows. Black-and-white balloons added to the decor. The flowers at every place mat set the mood for this unforgettable event. The Mother-of-the-Year Award was given to a twenty-one veteran teacher Mrs. Watkins. She has taught English, advised the C & W, the Cardinal, and Girls' League. The look alike award went to Mrs. Oaks and Joy Oaks.

As the year began, both the members and Mr. Chedester did not really know what to expect. He was both surprised and pleased to find that FFA was one of the most popular clubs and everyone was ready to make the effort to make it the best. The club continued to do the small things that beautified the quad. They even added some other projects, including potted plants in the outside bricked areas. In addition to the everyday work, the pride of membership expanded as they placed in every contest they entered. FFA has always been a club famous for its leadership and it was no different this year. The club continues to grow and produce fine members under the enthusiastic rule of Mr. Chedester.

'What Do You Do When The Lights Go Out?' Mary Letourneau

GIRLS' ATHLETIC LEAGUE had an interesting year. One of the best or worst was the night that the lights went out at the winter formal when there was a big storm. This was one of the largest and most active clubs. To be a member of the LETTERMEN'S CLUB required a varsity letter. The major job of this club was to raise money for the 'extras' in sports. For the last few years MODEL UNITED NATIONS members improved their knowledge of world problems by attending MUN conferences. JUNIOR STATESMEN OF AMERICA was an organization that had only been on campus for a couple of years. JSA was comprised of students who were interested in history and politics. ASIAN CLUB. If you were interested in the cultural and ethnic differences of the East, then this was the social club for you. The BASEBALL FAN CLUB was just fun. Here was the place to be if you were interested in speakers, attending games or just sitting around talking sports.

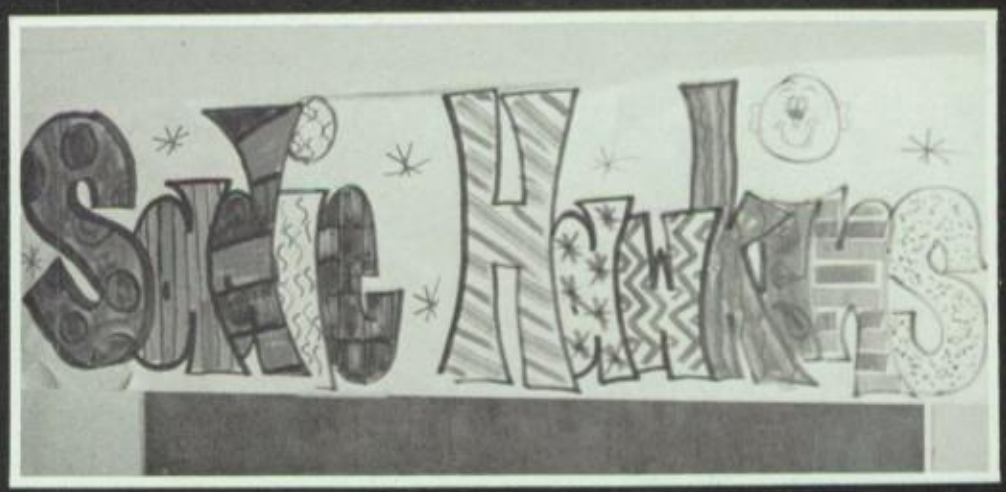
'It Was A Lot Of Work, But It Was Worth It.' Diane Kim..

With the theme 'Ghost Town,' the Alcyonians created an authentic setting for the traditional Sadies dance. They had to create a town that was spooky, yet comfortable at the same time. The 'town' included a jail and a wedding chapel (where couples were married for only a dime and later divorced for just a nickel). This dance took not only a great deal of cooperation, time, and hard work, but also dedicated people. In order to prepare for the dance, the club members worked hours after school making posters and blowing up balloons, but it all came down to the day of the dance. Early in the morning, the members arrived one by one in their sweats and T-shirts to make the final preparations. They had to put up posters, streamers, balloons, and all the other lavish decorations. Remember: It was the girls who did the decorating and planning when no one was watching that really got the dance off on the right foot.



Where's The Music? Monica Montoya, Amy Smith, Sachi Ezaki. and Lisa Melgaard enjoy putting up the jail 'bars,' but do they need some music? Out Of Breath. Blowing up balloons Natalie Rodriguez and Diane Kim use all their avilable hot air.

The C & W Really 'Does Care.' Stephanie Nearill

One of the many ways of acquiring the latest news was the Cardinal & White. While the bulletin and gossip filled in the absolutely latest information, the news paper endeavored to make students aware of the latest breaking news that effected their lives. Led by co-editors Stephanie Neavill and George Gonzalez the C & W staff provided both up-to-date news and entertaining articles. The paper was published each month and it brought all the sports into focus along with the news and editorials. It certainly wasn't a dull year and a column headed, "Do You Care?" certainly stirred up some antagonism. The staff was happy for any kind of response and allowed everyone on campus to publish a refutiation of the rather humorous remarks. The most popular edition of the year was the traditional Senior Edition with its wills and favorite picks. This last edition of the year held all those most memorable moments of the year. Every issue contained an editorial that commented on the HOT subject of the moment, but not all agreed with the comments. Through the paper, students were able to express their own opinion without a hassle.

'What Are You Doing Here? Oh, I Know! You Must Be The Bad Kids.' Traweek Kid

Late nights, early mornings, and weekends — these were the hours kept by the Cardinal staff. There was always a deadline past due and a new one coming up in a few days. Lost copy, missing pages, forgotten clubs, and ruined photographs were only a few of the problems that were solved along the way to producing another great yearbook that told the story of the year. One Saturday some young Traweek students shouted in the door at the hardworking staff that they must have done something 'awful' bad to have to be in school on the weekend. Imagine having Mrs. Watkins on your back day and night accepting nothing but the very best pages you could do. When you weren't laying out pages you were busy selling ads to whomever you force into buying one. The one battle that was never quite resolved was whether channel 4 or channel 7 was the best for 'soapies.' There was some time to have a few laughs when your section was finished and you could kick back and watch someone else caught on the head of the mad scientist's pin. But all good things come to an end and the book was put to bed and a deep sigh of relief could be heard everywhere.

What kind of people made up CHS? That question was not easy to answer considering the diversity of the students. SENIORS were always considered the leaders. Four years had built well-educated, proud SENIORS with a sense of accomplishment. The ability and willingness to work hard was what made JUNIORS a vital part of the Colt world. Underclassmen were still learning. Energetic and friendly were words used to describe most SOPHOMORES. More confident than the FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES were just beginning to make their mark. Timid, shy, and impressionable were tagged on FRESHMEN and while some were true for a short time FRESHMEN found their own notch. Most of these underclassmen seemed anxious to get involved and play a part in all that went on. The students were distinct individuals with an incredible feeling of spirit and pride in their class. We're movin' on up. While the Juniors did not seem as spirited as they had been through their freshmen and sophomore years, they came around when it was time for the color rally. All in all, the Juniors had a fabulous year. They put their hearts into everything they did and devoted most of their time to preparation for the prom. Between planning fund raisers such as car washes, game shows, and candy sales, they barely had time for anything else. A unique class that stuck together is what made the JUVENILE, JAMMIN', JOYFUL, JUMPY, JAZZY JUNIORS one of the most devoted and energetic groups in years.

Juniors were always on the go and what better way to kill time than cruising around with friends. To a junior, his car was his life and being stranded on the weekend without it was tragic. Whether going off campus for lunch, parties, or the beach, getting where you wanted to go was of utmost importance. Sometimes it was by car, scooter, or even a skateboard. "Cruising in my VW" was the best way to get around in Hydee Pricco's opinion. "Going Cruising in a mini truck to Hollywood" was Nish Raja and Ruthie Gamez's mode. The class of '89 made sure wherever they ended, it was the happening place to be.

"Jumpy" was the perfect word to describe the juniors. The class of '89 was full of energy and creativity. Juniors were also known to be a little jittery and excited about receiving new privileges as upperclassmen (number one being able to leave campus for lunch legally). Still most could not wait to be seniors. Debbie Kavanaugh admitted, "I was really excited during my junior year, but my senior year will be the best!" Junior spirit and dedication were unbelievable. They also proved to be one of the most outgoing and friendly classes on campus. "My Junior year was the best so far," said Melissa Fobel, "because I met a lot of new people." Juniors had every right to be a little "jumpy." After all, they're what made Covina a little more interesting.

During the school year, the freshmen were shy and timid, the sophomores were self important, the almighty seniors were stuck on themselves, but the juniors were right in the middle and were most often described as full of life and joyful. They were not quite yet to the stage of thinking they were the greatest. The class of 1989 was one of spirit, laughter, friendship, and kindness. A few Juniors were oh so anxious to express their feelings about their class. Brian Gillum said, "The best thing about being in the class of '89 is that I only have one more year!" "The greatest thing about the class of '89 is that I get to come back next year and play football and baseball because we are going to CIF," said Randy Solar, and Michelle Ingrim piped in, "Everyone in our class is so friendly!"

Juniors, were often juvenile in the way they would do just about anything to have a good time. Denise Happe and friends like to be creative, "When a group of us gather at Tami's house, we do all kinds of weird things like serenading Amber." Most juniors had overwhelming spirit and pride in their class. According to teachers, juniors were the easiest and most entertaining classes to teach. Part of high school is being able to act crazy. Boredom was something not to be taken lightly and was combated by such erratic behavior as "Flicking yogurt at people and cars," according to Mary Elliot and Crissy Demming. Juniors seemed to like acting a little wild and seemed not to mind being tagged as somewhat "juvenile."

"A battle of the stations" described the junior class. KROQ, Power, KLOS, and KIIS encited many differences of musical taste. Whether a new waver, hesher, death rocker, punker, disco, or mid-stream listener, each student stood behind their style. According to Eric Sanderson, "People should listen to the music they like." Blasting car radios, singing in the hallways, and drumming in class were ways students attracted attention to their music and to themselves. Folders had groups and songs scribbled on them and sometimes pictures, too. Don't forget the ever-popular T-shirt with your favorite group emblazoned across the front or back. Juniors' taste separated the many musically influenced activities Some students played in bands or listened to thei friend's jam sessions. Favorite dance places wer Marilyn's, Florentine Gardens, Fashions, o amusement parks. "We have a sense for the best o everything," according to Tami Anguil

What was so great about being a sophomore? EVERYTHING! This dynamic group was one of the most spirited classes during the '87-88 school year. Their enthusiasm clearly stood out at the annual color rally where they made their part of the gym look like an ocean of blue water. They had a better sense of belonging now that they were no longer referred to as "squids." The sophomore's determination to be remembered as a great group of kids was surely demonstrated by the entire class. Although when looked up in the dictionary the word "sophomore" meant "wise fool," the sophomore class of '90 gave it a new meaning. To them, when someone said the word sophomore, all they could think about were SUPER, SPIRITED, SOCIABLE, STYLISH, SUPREME, and SENSATIONAL kinds of people.

The members of the class of 1990 were very dominate their sophomore year. They had a supreme football team that went undefeated and they were proud of it. Having an undefeated football team made all the sophomores excited and they couldn't wait until next year. School wasn't only football for them though, they also got an education while they were having fun. A good thing about being a sophomore was that you were no longer a 'squid.' A bad thing was that you couldn't leave campus for lunch (legally), and you had to be asked by a junior or senior to attend the Prom. They weren't quite upperclassmen yet, but this all would come with time. School was, finally, to be enjoyed and the sophomore class did an excellent job of it.

Sophomores

Somehow sophomores had always seemed lost at the big rallies, but not this year. The first class of the 90's continued what it had started as freshmen and got carried away with spirit. At every rally they gave it their all. Everyone in the sophomore class basically had spirit. Spirit was a big deal at school and the more students got involved, the more they enjoyed school and the more often they attended. The sophomores were very daring. At every rally someone would volunteer for class competition, which was a funny treat for the school. Without spirit, school would be dull and uninteresting, but with spirit school was entertaining and the class of '90 added to the good times.

The sophomores started the year off with a big roar. Their strong voices stunned everyone during class yells and their extraordinary ability earned them spirit points on their quest to beat the seniors. When it came down to football nothing slowed them down. Every game they won gave them more motivation. They strived to be undefeated and finally ended taking first place and living up to the name of league champions. A great class, the super sophomores dedicated themselves to their school by participating in many sports, clubs, and activities. So one could say that the "super" sophomores made it a year to remember.

Sophomores proved to be sensational. The guys gave up their nondescript clothing and switched to the popular 'Bones' and "Jimmy Z" Tees, and carried expensive skateboards; while the girls stopped wearing all-black clothing like Robert Smith of 'The Cure' and began to imitate the senior girls. Where could you find a sophomore? On the Senior Quad of course. According to Jeff Seymour, "The '87-88 Covina Colt sophomores will be remembered as one of the best, if not the best, class in the history of Covina High." What truly made them sensational was the fact that they were PROUD Colts!

Sophomores had a unique flair with clothing and added a touch of variety with their new concepts. No one could say they didn't know the raging new styles. Comfortable yet stylish became the sophomore motto. They discovered an array of new fashions and accessories and used them to their full potential. From jumpers, to jeans, to skirts, to shirts, they kept the clothing basic and added to them with shoes, belts, suspenders, hats, and jewelry. Taking items such as suspenders and creepers, they created the 'sophomore look.' Acid-washed denims, peach colored clothing, and Jimmy Z shorts were popular among them.

When you were one of the underclassmen on campus, it helped to have friends in high places. Sophomores knew exactly how to boost their status and make friends at the same time. For the most part sophomores had no trouble getting to know the upperclassmen. This way they could kick back in the senior quad and have rides to and from school. On the other hand, sophomores were equally excepting of freshmen. They sympathized with them, having just graduated from being freshmen themselves. Unlike the upperclassmen, who tended to ignore the freshmen, sophomores could be seen with the new recruits. Being "social" meant that sophomores made friends with everybody. They were young enough not to be conceited, but old enough to have confidence in themselves. This was part of what made the sophomores popular to all the classes.

Freshmen

Where ever you went the first week of school, there were lost freshmen. Coming from junior high they were like lost souls entering a world of pep rallies, football games, and lots of homework. Being a freshmen was something that everyone had to live through at least once. It was a time to learn from your many, many mistakes and to accept new responsibilities. The freshmen went out of their way to get attention from upperclassmen because they wanted to fit in. The biggest difference between seniors and freshmen was seniors knew when to keep their mouths shut and freshmen never stopped talking. The freshmen were more commonly known as "squids." It had always been the tradition to tease the incoming freshmen but it was all in fun. The freshmen showed great school spirit during the color rally. Although they took last place their spirit shone as the majority wore green proudly. Freshmen were FABULOUS, FANTASTIC, FASCINATING, FASHIONABLE, FRIENDLY, FESTIVE, AND FLASHY.

Freshmen were unique in their own way. The way they handled themselves during an embarrassing moment, their fabulous personalities, and their great way of dressing stood out. These things and a whole lot more was what made a freshman fascinating. The fashion trend was important to freshmen and every year it seemed different than the year before. Whether they wore T-shirts with a picture of 'Bones' on it or carried a skateboard didn't make a difference to them, they wore what they want to wear. The way they acted was the most interesting part about the class of '91. Since it was their first year, the freshmen did actually come with their own unique sense of self-importance, but they soon learned to blend in with the rest of the Colts.

Freshmen

With a twinkle in their eyes and ambition that would not quit, members of the Class of '91 were truly fantastic. "Some people thought freshmen were dumb and lacked intelligence, but as a matter of fact, we knew the same as everyone else," said Lydia Guevara. In fact, freshmen were rather interesting and exciting. Whether it was at the rallies where they shocked everybody with their unique vocal cords, their attitude of not wanting to be freshmen anymore but sophomores, or their incredible talent in sports that were just waiting to explode. The freshmen fascinated everyone with their 'high jive macho talk,' and the fashion trend they started for others to follow. They had extraodinary ambition and wanted to show everybody how they operated and how good they were. Even for those who did not participate in everything found places to excel.

Freshmen

Festive freshmen were just exactly that. You easily found them on campus in their bright-colored clothing and their equally bright-colored hair. When the year began freshmen showed up on campus with beautifully spiked and lacquered hair. Not only was the hair rather interestingly done it was also interestingly dyed. In fact, the dye jobs looked as though they had been done by amateurs and not too carefully done. The hair was streaked, mottled, and just plain erratic, but actually it was just the way these squids intended it to be. The patches, streaks, and streamers of off color produced the exact effect of festiveness that marked these underclassmen as freshmen.

Freshmen

Being a Freshmen was never easy so a good attitude always seemed to help break the ice with upper classmen. It took a lot of smiles and friendly faces for the Freshmen class to finally become a welcomed part of Covina High. Being warm hearted and kind seemed to come naturally to them. Freshmen were often known to be a little restless and rowdie, yet these were unimportant qualities compared to their kindness. They quickly became well liked by the teachers as well as the students. They left a feeling of relief for the teachers because these Friendly Freshmen would be around for the next four years.

Freshmen

Freshmen gave a new meaning to the word "fabulous." They worked extremely hard on their academic classes. When asked how the freshmen acted in class, Mr. Ihsen stated, "They are very motivated for success." They strived to be the best on campus. The amount of work they did for their classes was very surprising compared to the reputation that freshmen usually had. There were many other reasons why the freshmen were so fabulous. One of the major reasons was their spirit. They had the spirit that Covina had not seen for quite a while. Another reason was that they had great personalities. Their smiling faces seemed to brighten everyone's day. The class of '90 was truly fabulous and the upperclassmen had a very hard time competing with them.

Freshmen

Being a Freshmen guy once meant being dressed funny because Mom wouldn't buy good, name brands. Yet today's freshmen knew exactly what they wanted to wear and how to wear it. Jimmy Z, Vision, and Bones — these were the labels worn. Skateboards and skateboard active wear were the major fashion statement. What kind of 'trucks' were on your Vision board. What color grip tape you had and if you had rib bones or mini rib bones made or broke you. When looking around at the freshmen on campus their individuality yet their unity could be seen if once in a while you stopped to look around. Being a freshman meant trying to fit in. If you were noticed, even for a moment, by an upper classman for a reason other than being in the senior quad three years too early or tripping over the cracks in the sidewalk then your attempt was deemed successful.

For freshmen the first few weeks and months were the longest and hardest ever endured. One reason was that you were exposed to a lot of new situations and experiences that were far different from those of junior high and you had to be flexible in order to adjust to the new environment. But the process of being familiarized began almost immediately (remember the freshmen orientation before school even began and all the little talks by the principal and the deans?) and with the ability to find the library, cafeteria, and career center and knowing the rules came the feeling of belonging. The sense that you really belonged to that special group called the COLTS.

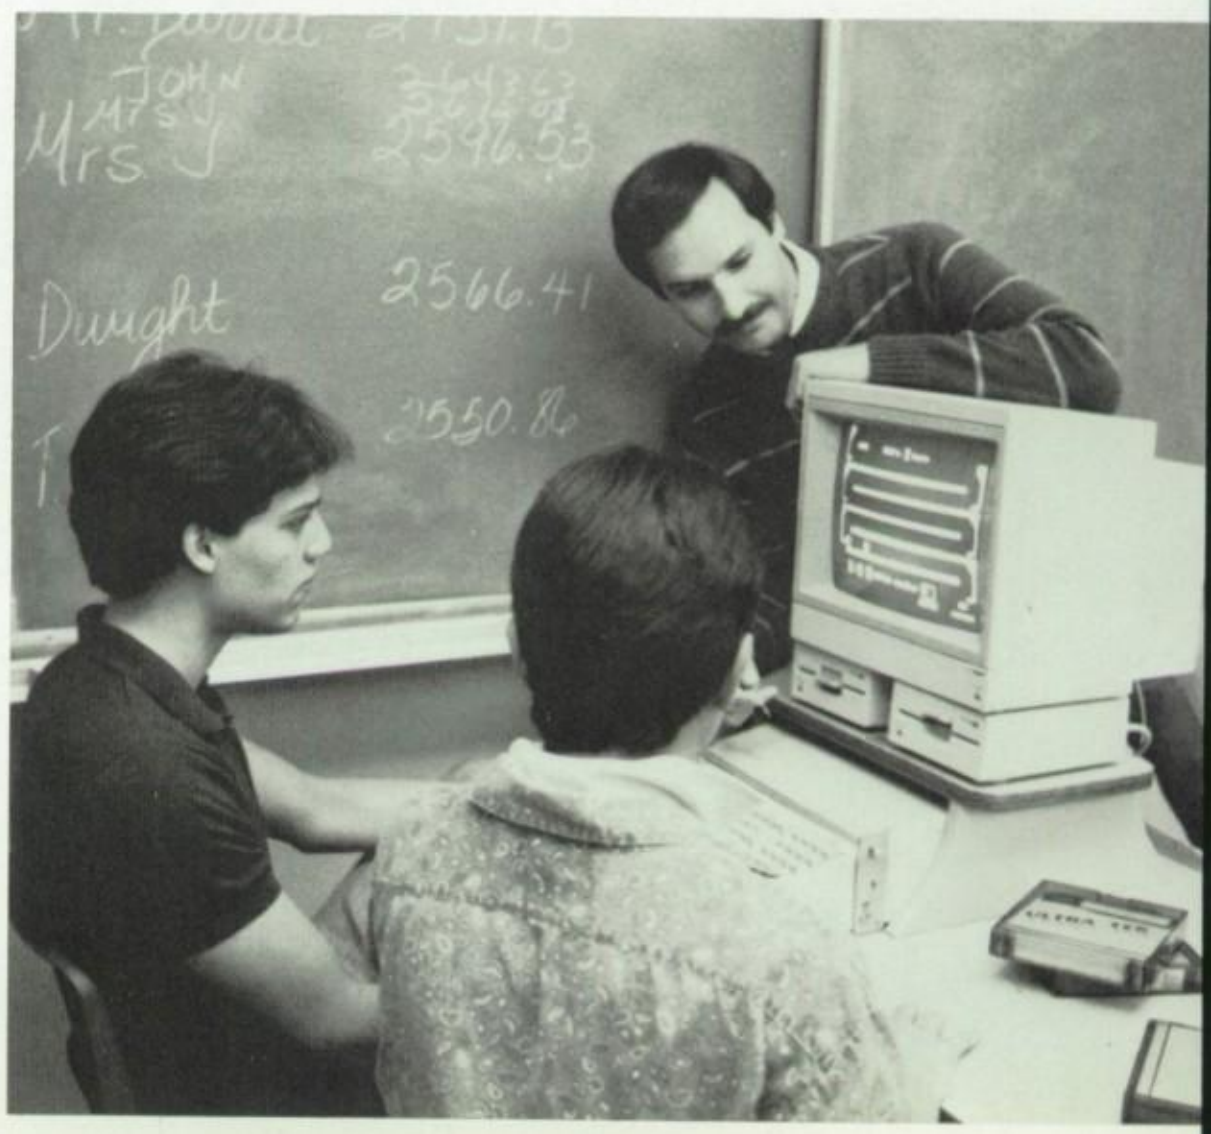
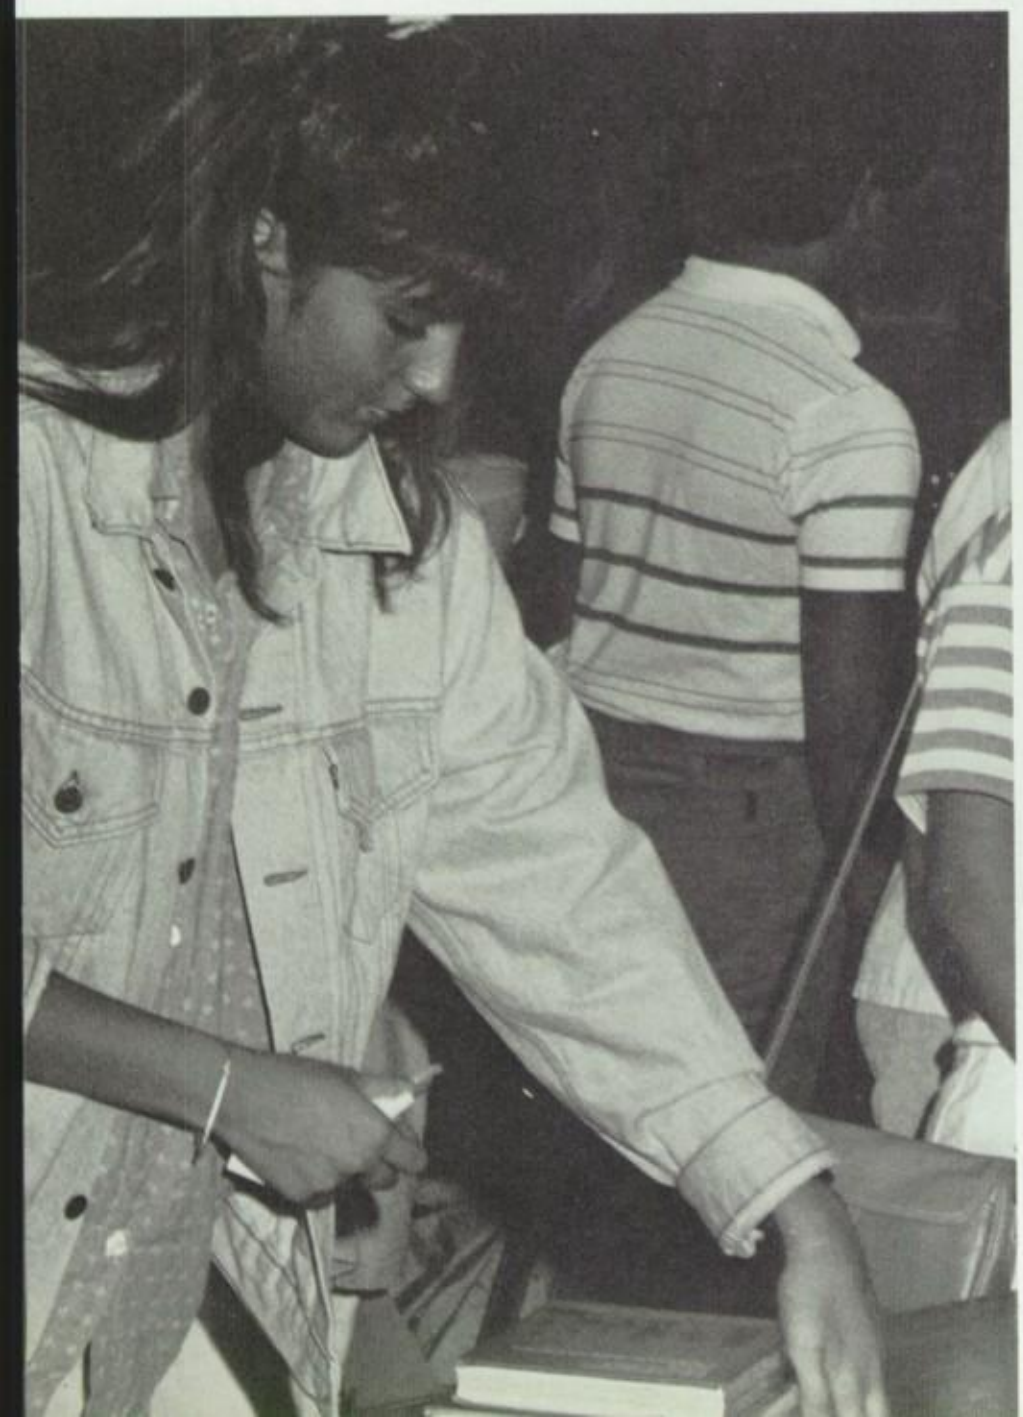
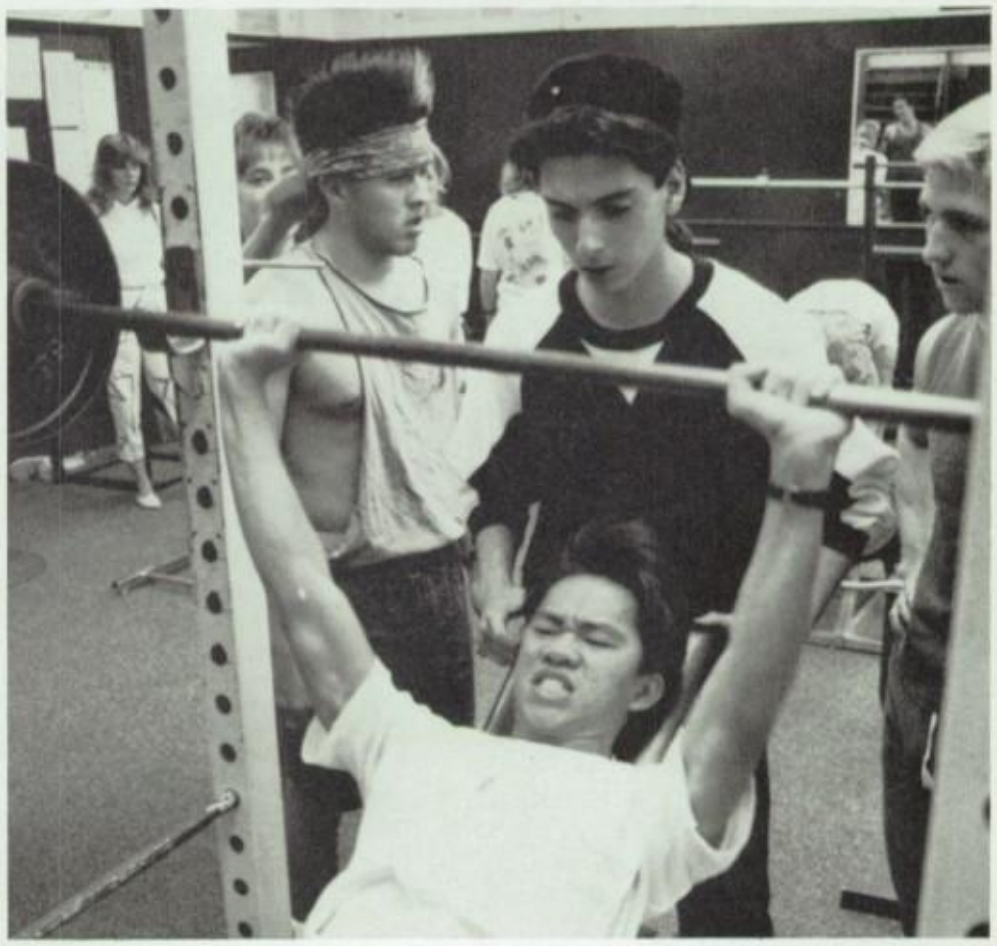
eXCel in ACADEMICS AND FACULTY

In 1942 there was a new class on campus and it taught a student how to pack oranges. An interesting class to add to the curriculum at that time when almost all of the young men who would have done the job had the much more passing job of defending our country. In 1985 new classes in computer and computer processing were added to the curriculum to bring us up to date in this modern world of hard- and software. Neither academics nor faculty had to be a scary word. And academics didn't have to be long hours of screaming, tedium, and pulling out your hair over the continuous homework. Instead you could make it fun. Faculty were available for after hours study and help students with a lot of energy expanded their academic studies by actively taking part in their classes. But even if the homework seemed like a trip to the end of the world and back 'twice' the thought of graduating made it worth the effort.







Computers Everywhere. Mr. Barret uses computers every day to help instruct Dwight Barela and Dan Barber in the basics and not so basics.
Double Vision Three Times Over. Classes in some of the old-fashioned arts of sewing and cooking are still popular.
What Am I Suppose To Do With These? Andi Trujillo wonders if she's ever going to have time to read all these books.
Ughhh! Ryan Tsan works out while Raul Herrera, Luis Esparza, and Ron Bobick lend only moral support.

Born Leaders, Independent Original, Strong-Willed

Aries' symbol is the ram, also is known as the 'leader of the flock.' The Ariens intelligence helped them plan their future in one way or another. They had only to be careful not to overdo the planning. Mrs. Blair and Mrs. Tolar were natural born leaders. They were the campus supervisors who made sure that no one left without a pass. Coaches Collins, Contreras and Yerkish had positive and aggressive attitudes on the field or court during a game. When it came to conversations, Mr. Ihsen was the best entertainer. His warm heart made him a good friend to others. One of his main interests was travel, and his slides relayed that to all. He was adventurous and liked to explore everything. On campus, Mrs. Tovar had plenty of work piled up for her. Color - fiery red. Stones - fire opal, amethyst, diamond, moonstone, bloodstone. Flowers - anemone and buttercup.

Head Honcho. School Superintendent Dr. Jack Rankin always had time to lend a helping hand.

Administration
A=Well-Run Shop

The main man of administration was Dr. Jack Rankin. Superintendent Rankin kept track of all the aspects of running all the campuses in the district. Mr. Robert Earl, principal, and Mr. Gale Cluff, vice-principal, were in charge of the running of Covina High, the faculty, the staff members, the students. Their jobs required patience, but they managed them with a great deal of assurance. Working closely with students and the administration were the counselors. Mrs. Beverly Hertel, Mr. Boyd Smith, and Mr. Mike Bell shared the duty of satisfying students and helped them reach their goals. The deans Mr. John Bachman and Mrs. Joan Delzangle were in charge of any serious or not serious problems of students. If anything were to happen to the any of the students, these deans would lend a helping hand. The Director of Student Activities, Mr. Dave Sanderson spent most of his time working with the students in ASB. He was responsible for all of the student activities.

Simple Agility = A Harmonious Blend

Juniors and seniors were able to take an unusual class for their physical education, called Weight Exercise taught by Mr. Haygood. In this class students enhanced their muscle tone by doing push-ups, bench presses, sit-ups and leg squats. For the underclassmen, there was a survey course of all the many different sports. When the football season ended, the pep units and marching band members moved out to the gym yard and took a physical fitness class for the last six weeks of the first semester and all of second semester. A class that increased a person's experience in business was typing shared by Miss Hockenberry and Mr. Sena. This class enabled students to learn the right techniques in typing. Students learned the "home key" position and tried to increase their words per minute. Students were tested every Friday on their speed. Woodshop was a very a diversified class, not only guys took interest in making shelves, girls were anxious to learn how to construct a jewelry box. Mr. Kemp was the head of the department, he taught his students how to work with wood and to use the different types of tools. Some students went far out and made intriguing sand boxes, some even made wall units. Another artistically oriented class offered was printshop or Graphic Arts. Mr. Clark was the adviser and under his supervision students learned to use the offset printing press and the camera room equipment. At Christmas time students have to turn in a project. Each student had to design and create a Christmas card. The advanced students were part of the production crew; they were in charge of printing the Cardinal and White newspaper and all other programs and materials used to run the various offices.

Steadfast, Reliable, Patient, Loyal, Careful, Self-Reliant

Taurus are solid, strong people. Mr. Cluff, vice principal, was this and more. He had to deal with a lot of pressure. Working with the principal, Mr. Cluff made important decisions regarding the faculty and staff. He was always on top of things. True to this strong, reliable sign were the head of counseling Mrs. Hertel and Mr. Bachman, Dean of Students. Mrs. George chaired the Social Science Department. The quiet lady that was in charge of the textbook office Mrs. Bass knew most of the students because she had seen their names either on a book card or on the charges list. The pep units were under the strong hand of Mrs. Letourneau. Mrs. Tobia knew her stuff about the food she served in the cafeteria. She was picky about the food that you purchased from her in the snack bar lines, only the best would do. Color - red-orange. Stones - Amethyst, Moss Agate, Topaz, Emerald, and Coral. Eternal Change, Fast Talker, Eager, Sympathetic, Outgoing, Friendliness

Gemini's symbol is the Twins, two personalities bound together in one sign. The Gemini is always changing - your mind, the subject, your opinions, your home. You are a fast talker and always on the go like Mr. Dole who is the Biology teacher and tennis coach. In his spare time, Mr. Dole enjoys jet skiing and being a river bum. Being a very busy person makes you extra progressive in doing or learning more than one thing at a time. An example of this Mr. Jadrich, the band director, who plays every instrument in the orchestra and teaches English as well. Travel was a primary interest of Gemini people and Mr. Wilson surely proved that by running in the Boston Marathon. His versatility was evident in his skill at coaching a winning track team and teaching both honors and regular English.

Mrs. Dahlberg showed the manual dexterity of the sign since she taught both art and ceramics while Mr. Hoag spent every minute not in his art classroom traveling to Europe. Both English and history were the double interests of Mr. McAllister. Color - orange. Stones - emerald, tourmaline, beryl, sapphire, marcasite. Flowers - lily-of-the-valley, myrtle, bittersweet.

Tenacious, Resourceful, Secretive, Curious

Cancer's symbol is the crab and only two members of the staff shared this symbol, Miss Hockenbery and Mrs. Watkins. Mrs. Watkins, just like the crab was a tenacious person. She sometimes was known as a hermit because she liked to stay indoors only going out to 'shoot' for the yearbook or to watch sports events or productions. She had a strong sense of curiosity and was always involved in something new. Miss Hockenbery was quiet and sensitive and was an exacting and orderly as possible. She spoke softly and you knew you needed to improve when she smiled and winked. Color - yellow-orange. Flowers Moonflower, Wallflower. Stones - Aquamarine, Crystal, Moonstone, and Sapphire.

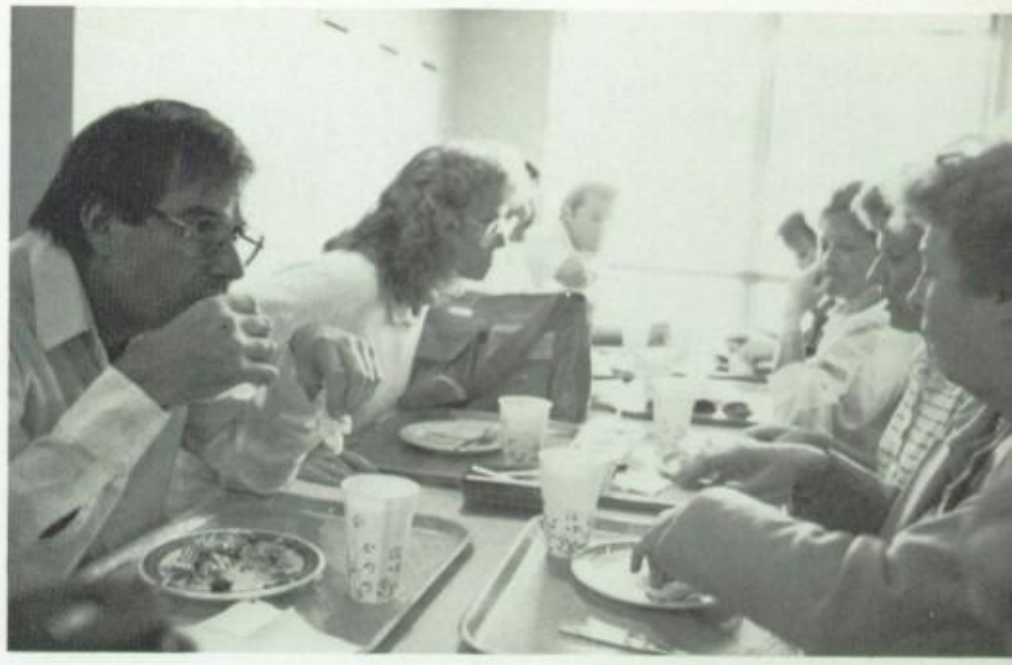
Teaching Can Be Fun. Finding time to talk to students, Mrs. Florence Taslitz is amused by her students' philosophy.

The Long Journey. ROP students travel from five other schools to work in the auto shop on our campus.

Who's Next? Mr. Bob Casper patiently waits his next victim.



Excuse Me. "I hate to leave this great company," says Mrs. Pennell, "but I must get back to the gym."

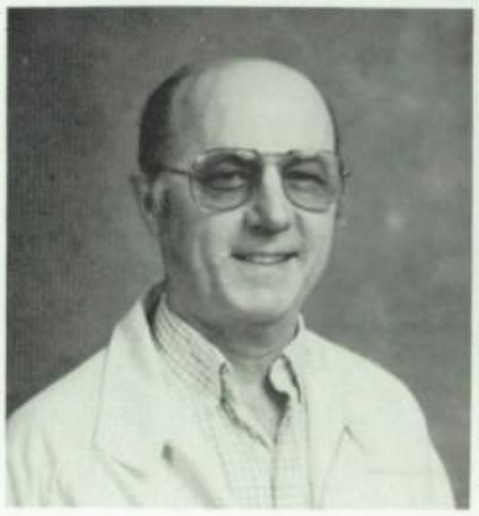
Swamped. The work piles up, but Mr. Earl cooly and efficiently manages to keep on top of it.

The Printers On The Blink. Mr. Clark helps Martha Rosales put the press back in working order.

It'll Grow Better. A short explanation by Mr. Chedester to Tom James clarifies the reasons for this particular fertilizing procedure.

Regal Dignity, Lionhearted Courage, Vitality, Masterful Personality

Leo is the Lion, better known as the 'King of Beasts.' Regal and born to lead were some of the traits Mrs. Agobian and Mr. Sanderson shared. Mr. Sanderson efficiently ran the ASB - rallies and all that fun stuff - he was an organizer. Mrs. Agobian advised the junior class to a marvelous prom, published the C & W, and taught English. Mrs. Charolotte Art, a very warm-hearted person who had a nice word for the students in the Deans' Office. At times, Mr. Josselyn had a tendency to show-off his talent in Spanish, because Leonians are show-offs but courageous. And a faint heart was not what Mr. Campbell had, not in his classroom. The Math Department was led by Mrs. Hackwell, Mr. Sugita, and Mr. Spadaccini all Leonians - strong, courageous, and true. The tiny Mrs. Jenson was one of the corner stones of Special Education. Color - yellow. Flowers - marigold, peony. Stones - ruby, diamond, lodestone, onyx, emerald.



A Special Talent = Things To Remember

Social Science was a large department. The department contained United States history, GSR, Man and His Environment, World History, Law and You, Economics, and Government. Every student was required to have three years of history and government. Another large department was English. Students in this department were required to take three years of core program (Comp/Lit 1 to 6) and then were allowed to extra classes in this subject to suit their special needs to add to their own growth and interests. These included creative writing, journalism, and yearbook. For those with more talent in verbal skills, there were drama and speech classes at several levels for both the experienced and inexperienced thespians and orators. Music was another of the offerings that catered to the special interests of various talented students. Music could be learned from the bottom up and yet there were advanced classes in jazz and orchestra. French and Spanish were still offered as languages for those interested in acquiring these special skills. At times they seemed very closely related to English because you were taught proper grammar, punctuation, and spelling.

Sharp-Intellect, Clear-Eyed, Cooly Practical, Undemanding, Unobtrusive, Thoughtful

Virgo's symbol is the Virgin. The symbol of the Virgin stands for purity, innocence, and the freshness of just beginning. If you are a Virgo you are a person with a quick mind, and you tend to be less emotional, variable, and sentimental. Mr. Haygood developed the ability to see the world neither prettied up by rose-colored glasses nor dimmed by prejudice and cynicism. Both he and Mrs. Grimley see things as they are, not as others pretended or tried to persuade you they were. Mr. Karr liked to find things out for himself, and tended not to be one of the common herd. To others, the cooly practical Virginian seemed cold, his self sufficiency made him seem unapproachable, not much of a mixer and very choosy about his friends. But those who did know Mr. Beal best could have told you that he had genuine warmth and friendliness toward those who managed to make him a friend. As far as mental work goes no chore was too big or too difficult. Their physique was built for maneuverability and not for hard work. They had a bright sense of humor and they were perfect guests. Their sense of humor was very bright, but at times they could get too wicked. Color - yellow-green. Stones - blue sapphire, sardonyx, diamond, lapis-lazuli. Flowers - azalea, lavender, bachelor's button.

Experiments= Some Knowledge

One of the departments with really interesting classes were those taught by Mr. Chedester. What were they? Agriculture and Horticulture. Even though Covina was right in the middle of a large urban section (Los Angeles) it still had a truly agricultural tradition. There were several sections available including Animal Science, Horticulture, and Ag. The prize winning live stock (animals) on the farm belonged to the students who attended these classes. With the new graduation requirements came the necessity to take more science classes - one year at frosh/soph and one year at junior/senior. There were plenty to choose from including chemistry, physics, biology, physical and life science. For some these were two of the hardest years spent in class. Through the years we have all been through at least two of them. Mr. Dole made biology an interesting time of day with his droll sense of humor, and Mr. Casper was perched and ready to answer questions. Mr. Iverson taught chemistry while Mr. Karr, Mr. Yerkish, and Mr. Chedester taught Life and Physical Science.

Unique Talent = A Better Project

Art gave students a chance to shine. For those less adept there were beginning classes in art and ceramics. For those who had well-developed talents there were advanced classes in both art and ceramics. Mr. Hoag's advanced classes in art included a class that allowed the individual to develop a personal portfolio that could be submitted for advanced placement credit. Ceramics, taught by Mrs. Dahlberg, had an interesting vocabulary including clay slabs, silverware, engobe and kiln. Students were instructed in how to shape, glaze, fire. Not far from the art department was the business department. Here it was not greenware that one worried about but software and hardware. Along with the accounting and business machines you were able to take word-processing classes. Mr. Sena was in charge of the word-processing sections and the regular typing classes. Miss Hockenbery also taught several sections of typing on the brand new electric typewriters.

Whimsical, Understanding, Compassionate, Devoted

Those born under the sign of Libra or the Scales were dedicated to balance, justice, and harmony. A Libran was a person who tried to straighten out everything. Mr. Barrett was one who worked at straightening out problems in the learning world and problems on the baseball diamond. Remember every time a conflict occured, he included himself in the making of a solution. Speaking of problems, Mr. Krimmel was always working on one answer or another in his math classroom. But when it came to a real 'solution' chemistry was the place for it and Mr. Iverson was just the man to come up with the perfect 'valance' or do we mean balance? When not working — all these Librans were really kick back and relaxed people, and their main objective seemed to be peace and harmony in all things. Color - green. Flowers - foxglove, violet, daisy. Stones - pink jasper, diamond, sapphire, carnelian.

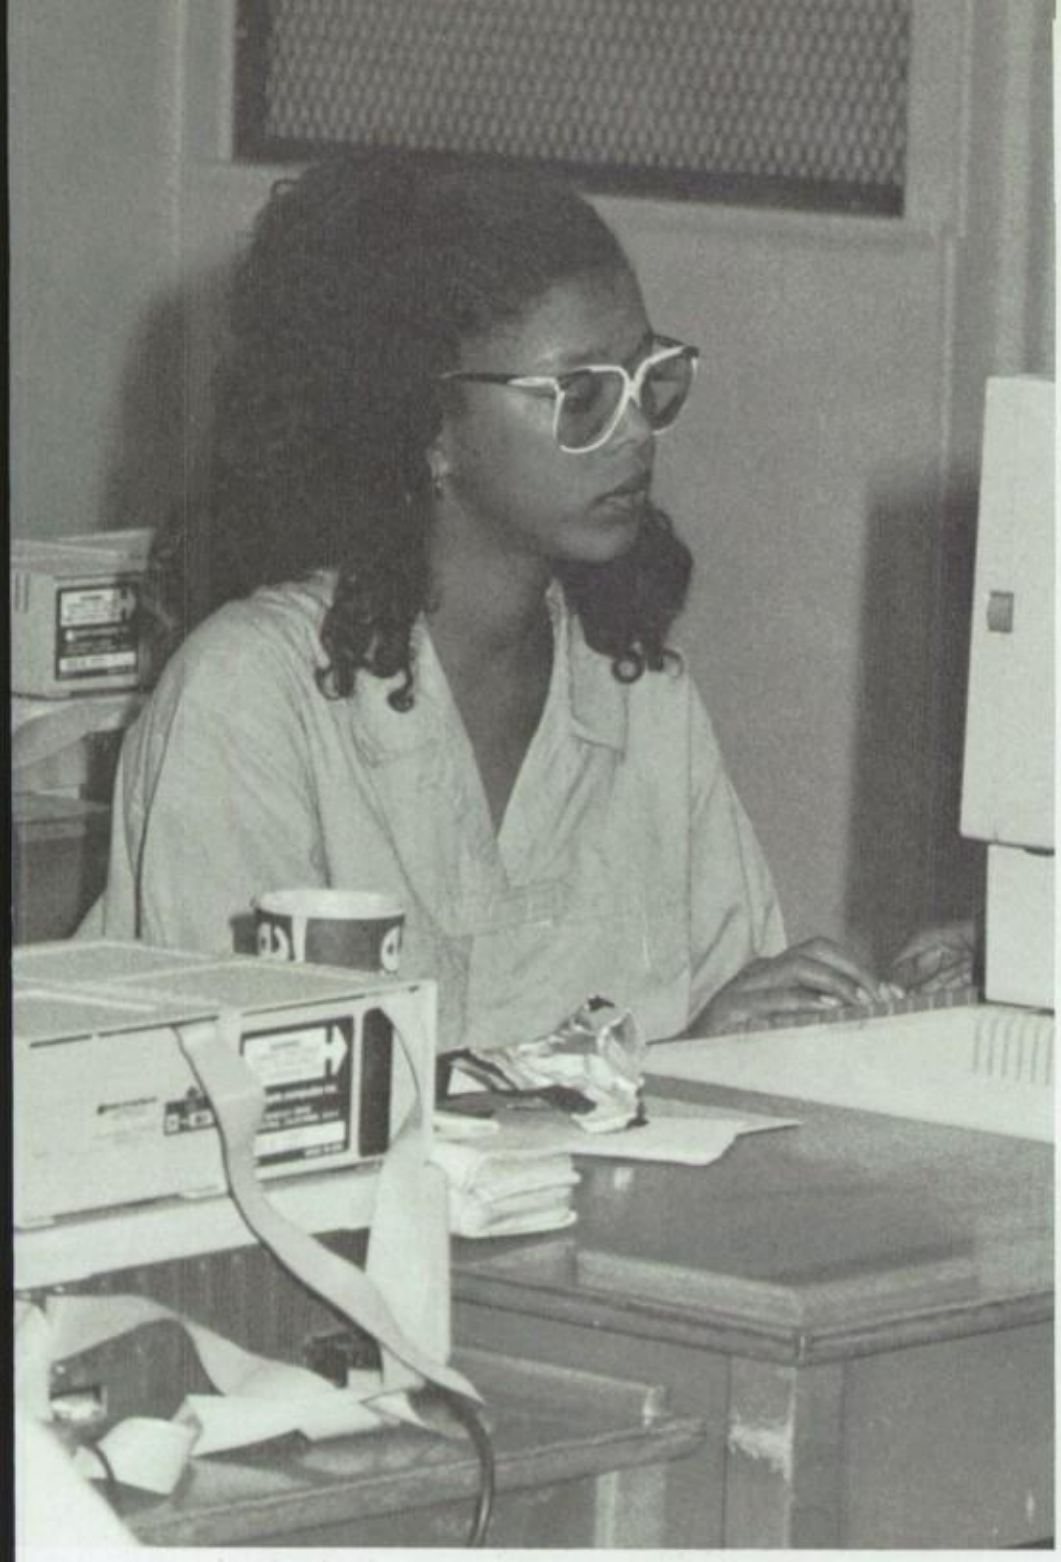
Stop Clowing Around All these papers seem to be piling up says Mrs. Fraijo.

Amiable, Patient, Bubbly Good-Natured, Enthusiastic

The common symbol of the Sagittarian is the Archer. Being born under the sign of Sagittarius means you had a sharp mind and quick wit. Mr. Chedester certainly was quick of mind and sharp of wit. He had to be both to keep the farm and classes running smoothly. And talk about quick, Mrs. Mary Ann Fraijo had to bright-eyed and brilliant just to be able to make all the class counts come out even in counseling. Mr. Lester was another with a quick witted talent and he could tell interesting stories full of humor all during his classes and never repeat one. Mr. Chedester was a wonderful friend and a good neighbor who saw no evil, spoke no evil, and heard no evil. Mrs. Payne was famous for her organizational mind and she ran the Career Center in an orderly fashion. Color - blue. Stone - turquoise, diamond, carbuncle, and amethyst. Flower - goldenrod.



Intense, Dynamic, Purposeful Farseeing, Secretive, Bright

The fearless Scorpio (symbol - Scorpion) had strict beliefs and worked hard to defend them. Once they set out a plan to do something, they pulled it off no matter who or what tried to stop them. Did you know that Mrs. Kearney was a Scorpio and she did her best in attendence. No wonder no one could get away with 'ditching' or a forgery. Mrs. Durr, the principal's secretary, worked with the all of the staff and faculty members and was trusted by them to keep all of their secrets. Mr. Russell had thoughts that were brilliant but since he, like all scorpios, was a quiet controlled being many people did not realize what a lively conversationalist he could be. The look of a philosopher was the general appearance of Dr. Bacon-Shone and that occasional hum was probably some new piece of music, because these people are bright and original. Mr. Madison was certainly original, just ask about his marvelous history tests and his even better government tests. Mr. Smith always had a new program arranged if you did not like the first he made up for you and he worked until everyone was happy with his/her program. All of these people had the ability to be successful in work and didn't let anybody stop their endeavors. Color - blue-green. Flowers - honeysuckle, carnation, and gentian. Calculations = Varied Interest

Students had many classes to choose from depending on their mathematical ability. There were classes in calculus and remedial arithmetic. Where ever you needed to be you could find your niche. If math really was a serious problem for you there was always someone in CSF who would be glad to help you through the tough spots. Extra time tutoring was also popular because it was offered by the instructors within the department. If you managed to finish your math, science, English, and history homework one of the places that you probably used was the library. The doors opened at 7:30 in the morning and remained open until 3:45 in the afternoon. Mrs. Taslitz and Mrs. Wheeler were there to help you find what you needed. When all the work was finished the Career Center was one of those places you could find all the up-dated materials on college entrance requirements or job availability. One last class you could take was WEEP or work experience. You actually received credit for the job you held down after school.

Organized, Industrious, Eager To Learn
Self-Reliant, Iron Constitution, Ambitious

The symbol for Capricorn is the goat. Just as the mountain goal leaps easily and surefootedly from crag to crag of an alp, so do you have the tendency to leap upward, independent and sure of yourself. Mr. Bell was certainly one of those self reliant people who kept an accurate timetable for all the things he needed to get finished and in counseling there were many. Imagine a library that was not well organized. Well that was not the case since Mrs. Taslitz was the person in charge and well-ordered schedules were what she kept. One of the most practical people on campus was Mr. Golley and since practicality was a watch-word of the Capricorn personality the class in practical mathematics was what he taught, he seemed to be well placed. Remember too that Mrs. Foss was a clerk in counseling were organization really counted. The ASB was a busy place to be and it took a well regimented person to run the office efficiently and that certainly was Mrs. Parker. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Teunisse lightened the load for Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Jensen. If you wanted food on time you relied on Mrs. Carry in the Cafeteria. You were fortunate if you were able to earn the friendship of any of these people. They were thoughtful and sharing not only in the good things but if you had a problem they were there to help you. Color - deep blue. Flowers - poppy, holly. Stones - garnet, onyx, moss agate, emerald.

Joking, Mystical Tranquil, Near-Perfect

Aquaruis, "the sign of the genius," is the water bearer. In fact, "As the Aquarian thinks, so will the world think in fifty years," says Linda Goodman. If you didn't think so all you had to do was ask Mr. Casper or Mrs. Pennell. Both had similar interest on the playing field and each enjoyed his separate speciality, science or English. An Aquarian like Mr. Earl, our principal, was one of those who brilliantly led the school. The Dean Dr. Delzangle tried to help people by raising their hopes. Mrs. Smith was the dynamic leader in the fields of both drama and speech. If anyone needed special time, she always found some way to help. Mrs. Parkyn was a friendly person who made sure that only the best was served in the cafeteria. Mr. Kemp like a typical Aquarian liked to work on puzzles to exercise his brain, and he had ample opportunity in wood and metal shop. Teaching shop took many hours of time and skill. Color - blue-violet. Flowers - tulip, pansy, daffodil, primrose. Stones - jade, sapphire, beryl, carnelian, marcasite.

Boundless, Ever-Changing Sentimental, Imaginative

Pisces symbol is the two fishes, one of fish swimming upstream and the other gliding downstream. Mrs. Bertoglio has that characteristic of boundless energy and it is absolutely necessary since she was in charge of the student store and all of the things that were associated with it. She had the cheerful personality that was thought of when you thought of Pisces, but you never really got to know her well because she was a private person. Just like the saying, "Still waters run deep." Mrs. Wendt had no trouble adjusting to working with the students and all of their excuses in the attendance office. She adapted very well. A Piscean was said to often play the mirror image of someone else that they personally adored. Did you ever notice that Mrs. Purington was almost a Greta Garbo in her little side office where she was often found alone. They are also modest people. If something spectacular were to happen in your life you will try your best not to brag about it. You're a helpful and caring person. A good hobby for you is reading. Color - violet. Flowers - mignonette, jasmine. Stones - pearl, chrysolite, amethyst, crystal.

Excel in SPORTS

It took many things to make a team a very good and prominent one. Besides having a good coach and talented players, what it really took was true dedication, a lot of determination, and good sportsmanship. To some, winning was the ultimate goal but to others just having a great time playing and representing your school was reward enough. Whether it was a season of winning the league title and breaking records or a season of disappointments, only the team knew how it played. There were some who could say 'we are the champions' and there were some who could not, but a team could not be judged on its record or its performance on the field alone but on the true dedication that it took to go out and play the best of its ability.

A Long Season-A Tough Season

Hopes and expectations of winning the league title did not seem too distant a dream when the season opened. The team had not won the league in over 20 years and this could have been the season to finish first. With a new coaching staff and hopes running high, the Colts began pre-season play against Baldwin Park and were made aware of the problems they would face for the rest of the season when they lost 37-0. There was improvement at the Bonita game, but again the Colts fell 16-6. When the team finished the last pre-season play against a highly favored Gladstone with a 10-10 tie, the players felt they were on their way. While the Colts lost to the Walnut Mustangs, the play was exciting and crisp. With a few more breaks the game win could have swung to them. Coming from behind to tie the strong Edgewood Trojans, 13-13, the season seemed to be in full swing when disaster struck. The next five encounters were dropped to superior play and the Colts lost the drive necessary to have a winning season. Nevertheless some really bright moments sparkled during the season's play. The riflelike arm of Mike Solar continued to fire both long and short passes, and Chris Hunter streaked his way down the field. Even though the season did not go as well as planned, a complete turn around was expected for the returning players and the new players from the league winning junior varsity team.

New Coach-New Way to Play

When Coach Brown left Covina to ke a job in Carlsbad, a new varsity otball coach had to be located. The olts were lucky when they "snagged" ne of the coaches from Gladstone igh. Coach Mike Collins was a young nthusiastic addition to the regular culty. There was a small problem ecause it took several months to find im and the spring practices and mmer workouts were put off until he officially joined the staff. Coach Collins did not come onto campus until three weeks before the football season began, four weeks before the semester actually began. With little time to prepare, Coach Collins had to teach the Colts a whole new offensive and defensive system. They had to work very hard before the first game against Baldwin Park, but as the season progressed some of the more experienced players were knocked out for the season because of injuries and grades and a tough season was made even more difficult. Coach Collins said, "Everyone played well and with more time to work on the basics we will improve dramatically next season. While the team did not have the season they hoped they would have, the excitement of playing added to the character of all the players.

An Open Spot. Richard Ward picks up first-down yardage against the Gladstone "Gladiators."

Tug-O-War. With tremendous drive Andy Paredes moves the ball upfield against a tough South Hills defense.

Undefeated And On Top Of The World

At the beginning of the season the young Colts of the JV team had their sights set on something very special to them — the league title. With a little luck and some of the best talent on the JV circuit their goal for a second straight league title was almost at hand. While the pre-season did not start the way that the team had planned, one win and one loss, Coach Haygood knew that someone would break loose and show off his talent. What happened was that the entire team broke loose and victory followed victory for the rest of the season. During the rest of league the coaches and the players knew that this season's team was one the best in recent years. "With a little determination and practice, we knew we could be really good," said one player. It took more determination and practice than anyone realized it would because the team had only 28 suited up for each game. But consistency and last second heroic play brought the team through. The truly exciting part of JV play was that in both the West Covina and South Hills game the team pulled off an upset in the last sixty seconds. In fact, South Hills was defeated in the last nine seconds and West Covina in the last forty seconds. While the team was small in number and beat several opponents in the last few seconds, it was big in heart.

Oh No You Don't. Sillfull maneuvers are part of Ernie Trebizo's act as he sidesteps an opponent.

The Chase. Quarterback Steve Chadwick cuts with lightning speed as he out distances the opposition for a touchdown.

A Sure Thing-Team Spirit

When the word excitement came up the JV team popped into your head and when the word determination was used you thought of the freshman team. JV always played with intesity and enthusiasm and won those very close games. Coach Haygood and Yerkish excited the players and the crowd with their magical and unique play calls. Excitement radiated from the sidelines and the players and the crowds were both stimulated by the electricity in the air.

According to Coach Haygood, "Twenty-five kids with a lot of heart and desire is ninety percent of the game." How right could anyone be. The guys on the JV team played with so much excitement that they took the league title for the second straight year. "We had the desire to be Number One and we achieved that goal," said Jim Mahan and his comment reflected the feeling of the rest of the team.

According to one of the young freshmen football players, "We may have lost games, but we were never losers." The freshman team had a disappointing season winning only one game during the pre-season and one game during the regular season, but it did not reflect the work and time spent. Out of the losing season came a determination and experience that will help them build a better team.

The Season Was Tough, But Rewarding

Before school even began its new year, one sport had already begun to practice with precision, timing, and coordinated efforts by running hundreds and hundreds of miles a day trying to build their "leather lungs." The boys' varsity team felt it had a very good chance of placing well in league because of the talent of the returning runners — Adam Shanks, senior, and Jorge Santana, junior, who led the team in experience. Being ranked eighth in Division II as the season opened seemed to confirm a top position until crushing losses by Walnut, La Puente, and South Hills occurred. The disappointed runners managed to hold on to a fourth place in league.

A very young girls' team also finished fourth in league. According to Coach Hackwell, "We were weak at the beginning of the season, but finished with several resounding wins." With a team of all freshmen, sophomores, and juniors and very little experience among the six girls, it was surprising that they had the heart and confidence to run so competitively throughout the season. "We're on our way," said one of the female leather lungers and with the expert coaching of Mrs. Hackwell the 1988 season should prove what heart can really do for a team.

Not Simple Bumps And Grind. Jennifer Kendrick bumps up a perfect hit for the front line setters.

They Didn't Let Anybody Down

Another exciting season. The defending league champion girls' varsity volleyball team was "high" and expectations were great and they didn't let anybody down. The Colts were the team to beat in the Valley Vista League and their performance was nothing short of absolutely perfect. After losing the season opener to Edgewood, the team came back strong and pulled off a clean sweep of the rest of the league teams. The second half was a carbon copy of the first half as the Colts again fell to Edgewood but came up victorious over all the other contenders in league play. Players Jennifer Kendrick, Mary Letourneau, and Kristine Trumble initiated many strong plays and their height was an added asset to the team. Spiking was the special talent Mindy Marasco added. The serving skills of Monique Serna, Sherrie Ward, and Sachi Ezaki were definite pluses in times of need. The depth of the bench was the final contributor to the superb season in a tough league. When players had to b spelled or replaced because of injury there were Michelle Villa and Nicole Costigan. Pride was the hallmark of Coaches Bastion and Ihley-Goyvich the girls entered CIF play beating both L A Baptist and Capistrano Christian. After a tremendous effort the team fell in the quarter final's round to a well-tuned Western Christian.

Close To The Top-Always Learning

The JVs learned along the way. Led by Captains Kelli Butler and Debbie Lochridge their overall performance was impressive. The long hours of practice and sweat paid off at the end of the season with a 9-3 record that earned the young dinkers a second place slot in league. The team was more than a group of individuals they were instead a unit of players that fought for a victory until the very end. Bump, set, and spike was the game plan and the team held to it and won. Strong setters like Mary Elliott and hitters such as Crissy Deming and Leslie Harder rounded off an excellent team.

While the frosh team struggled throughout the season, coming up with a few wins at the end, they had strong setters like Tiffany Estrada and Denise Cadenas as well as talented hitters Cindy Cagle and Tanya Dobszewicz who helped round out the team. The girls made great improvements all season long with help from their new coach Lana Leamer, a former CHS student and an ex-member of the 1985 varsity volleyball team, and although they were winless most of the season they came up strong in the end.

Not A Disappointing Season

A much improved Girls' Varsity Tennis team had a rough start this year, but according to Coach Dole the team was the best and the hardest working team in over ten years. The premier singles player was senior Cathy Chang and the number one doubles players were Michelle and Sandra Bedrosian. Other singles players were Phong Tsan, Kim McGowan; and the doubles players were Ayumi Shiroma and Evelyn Ramirez, Sangita Narang and Jane Kim. The girls had some very disappointing losses to rival schools in the first round causing them to fall short of making CIF. Though they had struggled at the beginning of the season, with hard work, determination, and team support, they pulled their game together and by the second round made a strong come back and showed the league what fantastic, eager-to-win players, they were. Coach Dole believed they could have "easily made it to CIF if the season has been longer." Unfortunately time ran out for the Colts. Unity was another characteristic the team built throughout the season, which helped to keep this team striving for victories. After a tough day out on the courts you might have seen the team stuffing their faces at Flakey Jakes or eating pizza, which Coach Dole bought, after the Colts won three games in one week. You might also have seen them walk proudly off the courts after finishing the season with 8 wins 1 tie and 5 losses in league.

Frustration! Not Able To Get It Together

The boys had some problems to work out before their first game of. With only one returning starter and three returning players, Coach Contreras had to deal with players who were new to varsity level. Even though the squad was inexperienced, there were players who really stood out because of talent. Eric Rowe led the team with a total of 246 points after 14 games, an average of 18.3 points per game. Other well-known additions were Mike Quinn and Steve Barron. As a junior, Mike was fascinating to watch because of the exciting plays he created while on the court and Steve led the team in 3-pointers. While the offense seemed mediocre at times, the Colts also had their share of problems on the defensive end. On Tuesday, February 2, the boy's did something that they haven't done in quite awhile - they won! This game proved that the team could, in fact, be a very strong team, all it took was a little confidence and patience. Eric Rowe led the team with a game high 29 points and Mike Quinn also helped by chipping in 24 points. One very strong point about the team were their enviable style of shooting free throws. Whenever a point was needed you could count on them to make the shots from the line. For the players, the season has proven not to be a very happy one, but it was a season of experience and excitement that they will never forget.

Experience For A Better Season

All through the season both the JV and Frosh team struggled for decisive victories and position. According to Coach Casper, "This season was a mixture of success and disappointments. Basically it was a fun season even though we had our ups and downs." The JV team played with a very unique, strange and exciting style. At times they played absolutely brilliantly, and their shots would hit the hoop every time. Of course, there were times when they played out of sync. One of the games when they did perform poorly was the game against La Puente, who in the first round beat the Colts quite easily by an astonishing 34-point deficit. At the beginning of the second round the much improved team had their sights on playing a better offensive and defensive game. And according to Coach Casper the practice and the hard work really paid off.

Throughout the season Coach Casper hardly used the same 5 players. All thirteen players had a chance to prove to the coach what they could do and with every person trying their best the Covina team got better and better. The story of the frosh was almost parallel according t Coach Beal. "When we were good, we were very good, but you know how the rest goes."

Double Teamed. The Huskies unsuccessfully try to 'sandwich' the sparkling play of guards Sachi Ezaki and Tanya Stephens.

When the girls took the floor, it was 'showtime.' The Colts were talented with lots of depth. They ran an amazing fast break, executed flawless offense, dominated the boards, and out hustled their opponents. This team was united and a high five for good play was common. They began pre-season by taking third in the Azusa Tourney and first at Charter Oak. Captains Sachi Ezaki and Tanya Stephens were named to the All-Tournament team. During league play, the team battled against many of the Valley's top-ranked. The Colts were ranked eighth in the Valley by mid-season. Guards Sachi Ezaki, Cassey Hollister, Mindy Marasco, and Tanya Stephens racked up the points by racing down court for the easy fast break bucket or by swishing a three pointer. Michelle Baker, Nicole Costigan, Mary Letourneau, and Jenny Smith shared the responsibilities of the forward position. Filling the elite position of center were Tracey Budge Jennifer Kendrick, and Bonnie Parker. Their contribution was to bring down rebounds, power the ball to the hoop, and outlet the ball to the guards for the fast break. This team knew how to play aggressively and were dedicated. They wanted to win and it showed on the court. The dreams of their potential became a reality when they continued their fine play in the CIF championship rounds.

A Slow Start—Great Finish

A dream came true for the varsity basketball team. As the members walked into the gymnasium for their game against La Puente, they knew they had to win to tie with West Covina for second place. Filled with energy the Colts were able to end the game victoriously. Now they moved on to their next challenge. Since they were a wild card team to the CIF playoffs, the opposition would be all the top-seeded teams. First Rosemead, whom they polished off in fine style and then went on to play Hesperia. Known as the underdog, the girls proved statistics wrong and upset the Scorpians. Although the next game was in Indio, a hundred miles from home, the team as well as Covina's true blue supporters kept up the spirit of the first and second games. Indio fell in the last 12 seconds. Before moving on to Chino a brunch rally was held to show the girls the school was behind them. As the team took the floor the only thing on their minds was winning.

Throughout the game the Colts trailed by approximately ten points, but they never gave up. It was definitely a battle of the teams. During the last minutes of the game the Colts trailed by three points. Down to the last seconds, the crowd was excitedly anticipated the outcome. Although at the game's end and the scoreboard still showed a 3-point deficit everyone was proud to be represented by a team who was ambitious, strong willed, agressive, and played with class.

Young And Aggressive—Shaking And Baking

The JV team was a group of players who began the season enthusiastically, which helped them to gain wins in their first three games. Even though a key player, Jenny Smith, was unable to play for the rest of the season, due to a broken leg, these young players didn't let this hamper their performance on the court. From the beginning they never played as individuals but as a coordinated unit. This helped them to gain the title of a 'come back team.' Being almost unschooled in basketball, Coach Yerkish dedicated his time to educating his players on the fundamentals needed to be a winning team. Rebounds and aggressiveness were always essentials to being a victorious team. Now, how does playing basketball under the scorching sun or in the freezing cold sound to you? Because the gymnasium was always being occupied by the upper level teams, the frosh was subjected to playing and adjusting to the constantly changing California weather. This made every day a challenge for the girls. Another hardship the team ran into was that they had an almost winless season but, they never let these problems bring them down. These young players were strong willed, aggressive and dedicated. They were also always eager to learn from their new coach Lana Leamer. Learning was what the Frosh level was all about and whether the scoreboard has been filled with wins or losses you had to call it a productive season.

A Great Year-Pinned To The Mat

With hours of stretching, drilling, and conditioning, the team wrestled its way through the early part of the season with a competitive performance. The strong points of the team were that they gave each other spirit by cheering on their teammate who was wrestling an opponent to the mat. With eight returning players: Rich Reyes, David Carraveo, Walter Bergman, Eddie Moreo, Colin Gallagher, Gary Kirk, Ralph Deligio, and with the absence of Tony Trujillo (separated shoulder), the team faltered slightly, but had the ability to improve as the season progressed. Tony, who could not wrestle for the next 3 matches due to a pulled shoulder during practice came back to wrestle at the Canyon Varsity Invitational to take first place at the 108 pound weight, was a league champion and wrestled his way to first place in CIF, first place in the Masters Tournament and first place in the California State Championship. Richard Reyes, Walter Bergman, and Gary Kirk also placed 3rd in league.

Looking back at the season, the team had its exciting and challenging moments, but the year was tough for the team. Individuals sparkled, but the team could not jell at some of the meets. The team had its ups and downs, but finished well and has half of the weights returning to form the core for a powerful varsity in '89.

Elbow Room. Heavyweight wrestler Arthur Crunk uses all his might as he overturns his opponent.

A Hard Landing. David Caraveo desperately works to undo the clutches of the opposition.

Rubble Down. Collin Gallagher uses the experience he has gathered through the years to pin a Huskie to the mat.

Reaching Out And Almost Grasping It

JV wrestlers shocked a good many people with the milestone of five straight league championships, the last two undefeated. However for the '88 season with the majority of the players moving to varsity, Coach Kikunaga had the enormous task of rebuilding the team. Under the leadership of Captain Ken Johnson, Pete Duenas, Gary Favero, Andy Munoz, Kevin Romero, Jeff Smith, and the coaching staff the team proved it was a force to be reckoned with. The pressure for the Colts to do well got too big to handle as they bowwed and had to settle for a second place finish. When the team took the mat, it seemed as though nothing was going to stop them. With very impressive wins over Nogales, Walnut, and Workman the dream of six consecutive league titles seemed almost at hand. Trouble began when several key players on the varsity team were injured and some of the best wrestlers on the JV team had to move up to fill the spots. With several key wrestlers missing the Colts barely beat a strong West Covina team 33-32, and they had to settle for a 30-30 tie with Edgewood. They suffered their first defeat against South Hills 21-36. While the young wrestlers had their ups and downs, the one good thing that did come out was experience and this experience will help the wrestlers to start another streak, a streak that no one can break.

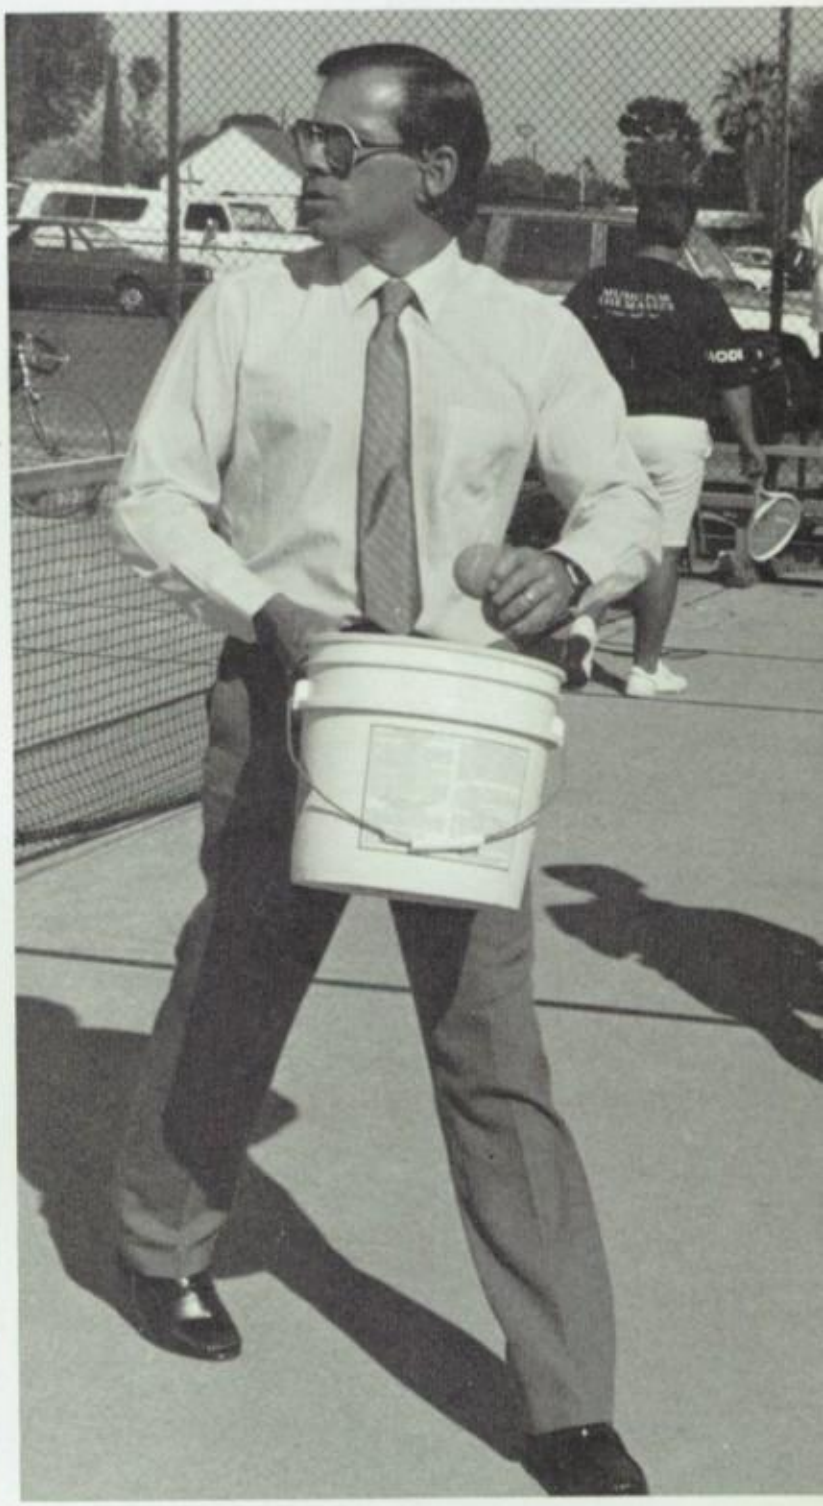
Hey, That's A No-No. Coach Dole warns the guys not to hit the ball at him.



Practice Makes Perfect With Every Swing

If you could serve an ace, hit a olley over the net, and play on a ment court for 20 to 30 minutes en tennis was the game for you. ennis was one of the most opular and exciting sports on mpus. To the many returning ayers Ruben Amador, Marf orf, Adrian Rangel, Brandon orye, Rick Silaphet, and Jim Yi, inning was the ultimate goal, but aving a good time on the court nd playing consistently roughout the season was a condary goal. Even though the season began in early March, the very talented and experienced team had been practicing since the summer before. Much of the credit should be placed on the natural talent of the players and the many hours that they spent practicing. 'We would all meet on Saturday morning and stay until just before it got dark. During the summer, we would play until who knows when,' said Tom Santos. True dedication, excitement, competitiveness, and a desire to win were the backbone of the team. When it came to league, Covina was in top form with South Hills its only real adversary. The Colts had built well and an end to second place finishes was definite. With all the polish of the varsity team, the JV's, according to Coach Kikunaga, were sitting in a powerful position and behind the inspired play of Captain Ettore 'PJ' Santos and Paul Thomas a good season was assured.

Something Powerful This Way Comes

For whatever reason badminton as not, until recently, been onsidered a difficult or taxing ort. Everyone seemed to feel at badminton was an easy high hool activity you played (really nda goofed off at) in your PE ass not a serious, demanding ort. That was one of the reasons at the Covina Colt Badminton eam had to prove to themselves, students, and to other schools at they were the team to beat.

With three league championships in the past five years, an undefeated league record for both varsity and JV, which was happened twice in the past three years, and with an overall record of 19-2, and a runner-up finish in 3-A CIF play during the '87 season the Colts were off and marching. Under the guidance and experience of returning players Eileen Tang, CIF mixed doubles champion and girls' doubles league champions, Charlene Castro, fourth in girls' singles, Gary Huang, third in boys' doubles, Martin Weinreb, Marck and Martin Sanchez the Colts were ready to maintain their Number One status. Add to this the expertise of two fine coaches Mrs. Pennell who polished up the varsity members and Mr. Haygood who worked on technique and game play at junior varsity level the team was almost undefeatable.

Always Extend Your Arm. After being told to follow through Larry Sroka does it forcefully.
I Got It! I Got It! Gary Huang calls to his partner Cameron Aveson to step out of the way.

CIF-A Challenge And A Promise

"This was a very good year for both the varsity and JV. I really looked forward to CIF because I knew we could do even better than '87 and that was second in CIF. I knew that the dedication and the strength of the returning players made our program stronger than it had ever been and we had always been great," coach Pennell said. Badminton is a very high-tech and competitive sport. With a tournament practically every weekend and this years' team practicing two to four hours a day five to six days a week the badminton squad had high hopes for the '88 season, which came true especially another undefeated league championship and the pleasure of being crowned CIF champs. The marvel of these teams was that not only was the varsity a fine team the JV were also undefeated and played with all the enthusiasm of their older counterparts. The season for JV fortold another good year to com for the varsity in '89. Taek Lee was growing as a singles competitor along with Mark Hendrickson, singles; Robert Arc singles; and Irene Obradovich, singles or doubles. All in all one of the finest teams sent on the courts by CHS.

Injuries, Ineligibilities-Double Bogey

The start of a new semester meant a fresh new year for the golf team. Problems with team spirit and all-around know how put the team at the bottom of the standings last year. But the team hoped to bounce back and pull together for a great season. Unlike other sports, golf had to be played off campus. Even their practices were held quite a distance away at Marshall Canyon in Laverne.

Since the league did not consist of the usual Valle Vista teams, the team had to travel to Chino, Upland, and Alta Loma. The team consisted of returning players with an injured Mike Shaw acting as team captain. Frank Sanchez, co-captain, was a match player seeded anywhere from number two to number four. Both Dana Ohanessian and Tracy Shaw, the only female golfers in the league, were back. The fight for the fifth and sixth position was between Reyonld Texeira, Scott Morrison and Jeff Barker. The goal was to win league, go to CIF, and send three players to CIF individuals, but with both the problems of injuries and eligibility this was a dream that would not be fully realized for at least another season.

Fly Like An Eagle. Sachi Ezaki after the second hop, finds the strength on the third hop to leap to victory in the triple-jump.

Two Year Defending League Champs

As the '88 season rolled around he defending Valle Vista League rack champions had only one hing on their minds - repeating s champs for the third year. aced by the thought of holding he league trophy for two years, he thought of giving it up never rossed the minds of the energetic nd talented runners and field vents competitors. With the help f Coach Wilson and several key thletes Jim Sullivan, Marcus)avis, Derek Mason, Adam hanks, Chris Hunter and Tim Kearns the Colts were off running, jumping, sprinting, pole vaulting and throwing. With the league championship on the line many of the seniors wanted to make this the most memorable season ever. And under the tutelage and leadership of Coach Ray Wilson this squad of fine athletes was up to the task of showing who was boss and repeating as champs once again. Just waiting to be loose to show their stuff were seniors Brandon Starkey, Marcus Davis and junior Chris Hunter, who were kings of the short and fast sprint races such as the 100, 200, 400 meters and the 400 and mile relay. Kevin Berko who proved he was the one to beat in those long distance runs and Tim Kearns and Adam Shanks who were practically unbeatable in the 800, 1600, and 3200 meter races. Because of the performances of all the competitors from all levels another fantastic season was added to the collection of many track awards.

GIRLS' VARSITY TRACK: Brandi Foster, Becky Mellace, Tanya Stephens, Nicole Costigan, Sachi Ezaki, Coach Hackwell, Deidre Ford, Melanie Candelaria, Denise Cadenas, Kim McIlwain, Alissa Flores, Julie Payton, Jenny Smith, Bernadette Madrid, Tatiana Ramirez, Becky Cook, Toulla Christou

Runners Ready? The gun sounds and Toulla Christou leaves the block cleanly and quickly.

Taking The Lead. Hanging on to her lead, Kim McIlwain pushes to finish first.

Big Dreams And High Hopes

The girls' team had a dissapointing season in '87, and a season of close calls in '88. With talent, experience, and effort as the main key of their success in both the running and the field events, the girls sent out a message to the rest of the league that they were in contention for the league crown. While they did not always win because of the small number of girls competing, they were always in the race and lost several meets by only one event. Behind the leadership of Coach Diane Hackwell and returning players Tanya Stephans, Sachi Ezaki, Tatiana Ramirez, Julie Payton, Becky Cook, Jenny Smith, and Kim McIlwain, a strong finish in league was in the bag. Even though the team was missing several athletes the lady Colts never gave up. In hurdles, Tanya Stephans earned the title 'Queen of the Road.' The young hopefuls were sophomore Becky Cook and freshman Nicole Costigan who ran the sprints. With the experience of cross-country behind them, Jessica Houltram, Julie Payton, and Ki McIlwain were the runners who ran those long distance events. Sachi Ezaki, one of the fastest i CIF competition, was at the height of her performance as sh outran and out distanced all of her competitors in the sprints, long jump and triple jump. The spirit of the girls' team seemed very high all season long and w true spirit and dedication comes big dreams and high hopes.

Soaring High. Over the top goes Chris Smith in the vault event.
At The Finish. Pressing hard to the end, Chris Hunter finishes in record time.

Competition. With an opponent right at her heels, Tanya Stephens battles to finish ahead in the hurdles.
Pushin' It. On the last leg, Adam Shanks has the look of a determined winner.

With The Speed As Fast As Lightning

Some thought that track was nothing but running and field events, but to the young hopefuls on the JV team it was an experience they would never forget. Since many of them had not run against competitors before, the excitement was sure to push them to the best of their ability. Hard work, concentration and full devotion to each athlete's events such as pole-vaulting, shotput, discus, hurdling and, of course, running paid off with a tremendous feeling of accomplishment and pride. Track required a great deal of commitment and to the younger sprinters, long distance runners, jumpers, etc., it was no problem. It has been a long time since many of the future track stars had an enthusiastic and promising look on the future especially for a good league finish. The success o the team did not surprise the members but did surprise its opposition because no one expected the Colts to be a factor for the league crown, not even th Colts themselves. With strong returning players back in the lin up and the influence of Coach Wilson the team was about ready to take on any task.

On Your Mark! Alf Butanda concentrates on the track while waiting for the gun to sound.
Technique And Strategy. Jason Alvo and Chris Klich coax each other on down the stretch.

Stretch Down The Way Jason Sherman fully extends his body to gain a few more inches.
A Perfect Exchange. Yelling for Marcus Davis to take the baton, Brandon Starkey passes off on the way to victory.
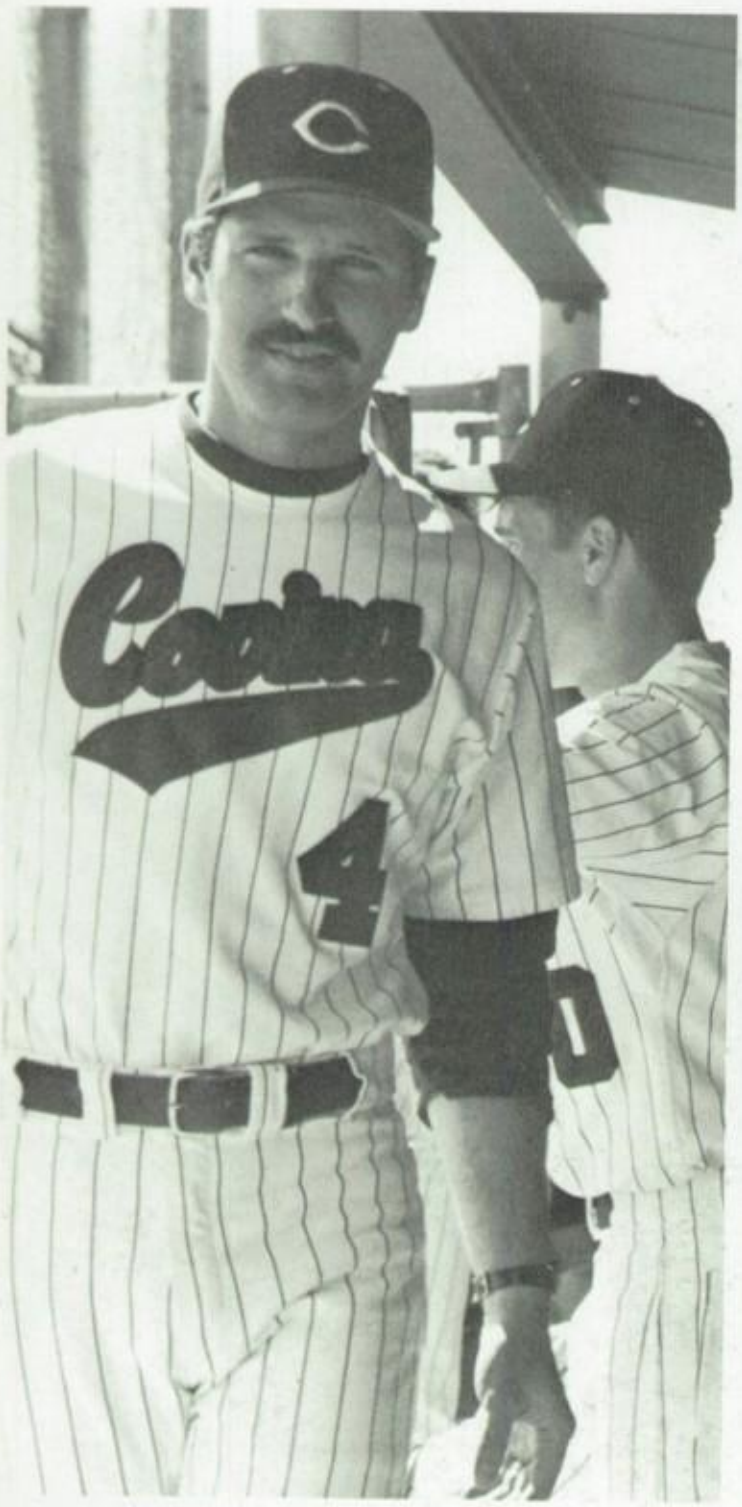
In The Lead Again. Kevin Burko leads the pack down the straightaway.

A Genius Of Strategy. All teams reflect the ability of the coach and Coach Barret was at his best during the '88 season.

Safe! The second baseman loses the ball in the dust as Jim Holmes steals second.



Play Toward A League Championship

Under the leadership of Coach Barret and returning fielders Jim Holmes, Mike Solar, and Ron Lashly, the varsity baseball team had another one of its many winning seasons. With the strength and experience of these returning players and the addition of Ricky Steed, Jason Patten, Steve Barron, and Randy Solar, who were brought up from the JV team, the Colts romped their way through the early part of the season, especially the opening double-header victories against Temple City and Rowland. With pitching sensation Paul Branconier and a maturing Peter DeSimoni, the Colts were a new force to be reckoned with. In their contention to be league champions the Colts proved to themselves and to their competitors that Covina was still the power it had always been. With much practice for the development of their ability, a combination of power hitting, speed, consistency, and a desire to win, a good season was assured. Much of their success was attributed to spirit, dedication, and several players who played outstandingly in more than one position. This was a team that truly learned how to maintain a goo attitude and improve as a single wel oiled unit to the league championship.

Stretch! Eric Rowe who plays first base, puts his all into the stretch to catch the ball.
Strike Three. Covina's new pitching sensation Paul Branconier makes his magic move to the plate.
Great Form. The team benefitted from the superb relief pitching of Jason Patten.

Nice Curve Ball! Ricky Steed, a breaking ball pitcher, strikes out another opponent.
Smash! Jeff Wasserman hits down the line for a single.
Round Tripper. The team enthusiastically greets Steve Barron after he hits a homerun out of the park.

Three Outs To A Championship!

With the ncessary potential, enthusiasm, promising attitude, teamwork, and great hustle, the Covina High baseball team succeeded in completing one of its finest seasons. With Coach Barrett, one of the most successful coaches in the league, leading the way with experience and leadership, the highly regarded Colts were off to the races. Everyday, armed with a clipboard, Coach Barrett taught fundamentals, how to get the most out of your swing, sliding correctly, making a diving catch, how to improve your speed from base to base, and how to throw that perfect strike. He kept track of his most promising players' progress and he was excited when a player succeeded in reaching the goal the player had set for himself. He coached game strategy and taught good baseball philosophy. In order to put something back into the community that has given so much support, the team held its annual baseball camp for the third time. Little leaguers from all over the San Gabriel Valley spent a day learning the basics from the players. Later, Coach Barret conducted a clinic for little league coaches and managers. Even though the camp was always successful, the team would like to se more participation in the clinics because to them its getting to the heart of the matter that's half the fun.

Hitting The Dirt! Ron Lashly slides into home plate to add another run to the Colts score.

Twin Killing. Steve Barron averts the intentional take out and completes the double play.
Packing Heat. Pete DeSimoni effectively uses his fast ball to stun the opposition.

JV Baseball Team: Glen Romero, Kevin Cable, Sergio Williams, Gene Escamilla, Steve Chadwick, Coach C. Beal, Todd Henry, Ernie Trebizo, Christian Perez, Gary Favero, Coach D. Beal, Gabe Rodriguez, Fernando Gallardo, Andy Paredes, Roland Barrio

What's The Score? Coach Beal checks the scorecard as he wonders how well his team is doing.
90 MPH. With perfect form Gene Escamilla throws yet another strike.
Oops, Now That Was Great. After missing the line drive Sergio Williams stretches to catch the ball as Andy Paredes great attempt falls short.

The Last Few Words. The coaches take time to give a few last minute tips to the frosh players before the first game.

A New Team Coming Of Age

According to the junior varsity and freshman baseball players the season was a long, difficult one, but well worth it. With victories in the early part of the season acting as an incentive, the Colts were almost unstoppable. Led by expert ball player Coach Beal, who's knowledge of baseball was phenomenal, the young JV team was on the road to another of its many successful seasons. With the impressive finish of last year's team the tone was set for the new one. With the tough practices in hitting, fielding, and other basic fundamentals, the inspiring cheers and winning plays of Coach Beal the Colts did nothing but improve with every game. The freshman team, however, had a slow start but under the leadership of Coach Casper the Frosh changed dramatically. With a good hustle and several key players who switched positions the team was roaring to go. Practices were grueling at times with the ball players working meticulously on the basics and with the coaches contriving new game strategy, the JV's and Frosh perfected their gameplay. With the vast improvement in all phases of the game, the season, according to both coaches, gave great promise of a fine varsity team to come.

Hey Batter, Swing! Improving her batting average, Jackie Lewis gets a base hit.
Safe By A Mile! After getting a good jump Mindy Marasco slides safely into a second base.
Good Game. After the Colts win, Kristine Trumble sports a winner's look.

Pitching Sensation. Going through her wind-up, fans know that once the ball leaves Mary Letourneau's hand it will be a strike.

Strike Three. Catcher Kellie Krager does an exceptional job handling the smoke that Letourneau fires.

Sacrifice. Squaring around, Sherrie Ward readys to lay down a bunt.

Power Plus Determination Equals Glory

Both the new and returning players on the varsity softball team were excited when the new season began. Because new head coach Rocky Buccola and assistant Ralph Benowitz took over a talented group of girls and worked with them using an extremely positive approach. Their first expectations were for the team to (1) Be on time, (2) Follow directions, (3) Give a consistant effort. Excitement was in the air because the team was ready to push themselves to the very edge to win the league championship. With all the talent and experience of returning players, Kellie Krager, Colleen Alvo, Sherrie Ward, Kristine Trumble, and Mindy Marasco, to educate new players who filled half the field positions. The exceptional pitching of All CIF pitcher Mary Letourneau the season play was destined to be the finest the Colt girls had ever had.

The goal was not just a vague idea it was a deep desire. Quickly, each player, like ingredients, blended together creating a perfect recipie. Starting the season off with a 1-1 record the colts knew there would not be room for any more losses. It was time to get serious and play to their full potential. From then on when they took the field they looked 'hot.' The team ticked just like a fine precision clock.

Go Colts! While Tina Bond and Lori Campos cheer on their teammates, Heather White and Denise Fadales intently watch the game.
Line Drive. Putting in all her strength Patty Murphy drives one down the third base line.
Need Help? Coach Yerkish lets stat keeper Heather Banner know what's going on.

Continuing A Strong Tradition

A good mix of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors were represented on the junior varsity football team. The roster was largely new faces with only three returning players, but each girl had an opportunity to contribute to the teams continuity. At first, things did not look good for the team since it was short of pitchers; but with the commitment of the coach and the players this setback was overcome successfully. Before pre-season games even began, the new crop of Colts spent their Saturday mornings improving their batting skills. Slap bunts and hit-and-run were great assets to their games. They were an aggressive team who ran at every opportunity. This type of play allowed them to score well even when the bats were not as hot as they would have liked.

Tough, error free defense kept them in the games that were closely contested. The members o the team got along well with each other even if there was an error. The girls managed to learn from their mistakes and would give one another encouragement to shake i off and come back strong. This kind of relationship made for a strong young team.

Shotgun Release. Patty Murphy comes in to relieve the pitcher and maintains control of the game against the Aztecs.
Time For Celebration. With ease Jonee Schott makes the catch for the third and final out of the game.

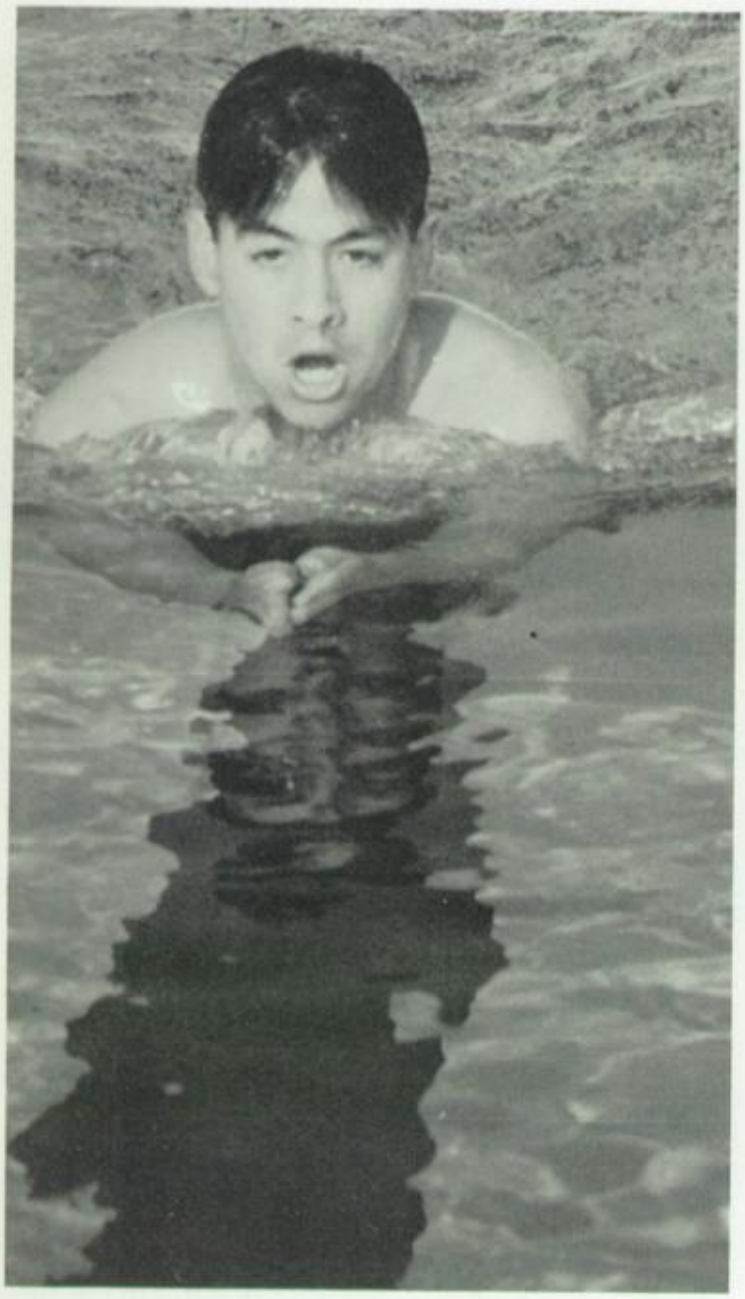
Smooth As Silk. Chris de la Garza moves through the water during his event so easily that he does not even ruffle the water.



Winning Doesn't Come Without Work

Spring sports were about to arrive and although the weather hadn't yet warmed the Boys' and Girls' Varsity Swim Teams were preparing for what they knew would be a successful season. During the week, Coach Scott Davis, who took over the varsity teams, held practices rain or shine from three to five thirty every day. In addition there were three mandatory morning workouts, which began at five forty-five.

Morning workouts consisted of swimming approximately two thousand yards and daily workouts any where from four to five thousand. Each day they gave all their efforts to perfect each stroke. Combine these and you know that the word dedicated truly refers to this group of athletes. Even though they had only a few returning swimmers this did not effect the boys. Excellent performances by Chris De La Garza, Victor Ramirez and captains David Diaz and Mario Valdez led the boys team. Becaus the girls were a small, but select team they were not able to compete as successfully as they would have liked to in such a tough league. Individual girls, Holly Hartman's all-round swimming talents, Meagon Cooper's butterfly and breast stroke, made the girls a major threat for next year.

Winging it. Captain Mario Valdez pushes himself to win the butterfly event.
On Your Mark, Get Set ... David Diaz and Raul Herrera are ready to go as the gun sounds.
Great Finish. Getting one last breath, Meagon Cooper adds another victory in free style.

For the past ninty years, patrons have supported the Covina Cardinal with spirit and money; and we'd like to say THANK YOU. Whether a business, parent, club, or student ad, without your support we wouldn't have the materials to make the best possible yearbook. Because of your contributions the Cardinal staff is able to make their concepts "come to life." Donations of the businesses in the Covina and West Covina area are appreciated and we hope you gain part of the special Colt pride. We thank all parents who added a tough of sentiment to the yearbook with their messages of love. The Cardinal staff would again like to say "THANK YOU."

Congratulations to the Owner of this car

To AMBER and STEPH. We go to you for advice, friendship, laughs, and a shoulder to lean on. We have gone many places together and hope to continue our adventures after you graduate. Good Luck with whatever you set your hopes on.
Love and friends always, DENISE and TAMI

The reason why we're such good friends
Is very plain to see
I understand the things you do
You have respect for me.

Although not always we agree
We strive to make it better
We talk it out and mend our wounds
We always stick together.

No complicated folk are we
No striving to be clever
Yes, friends come and friends go,
But we'll be friends forever.

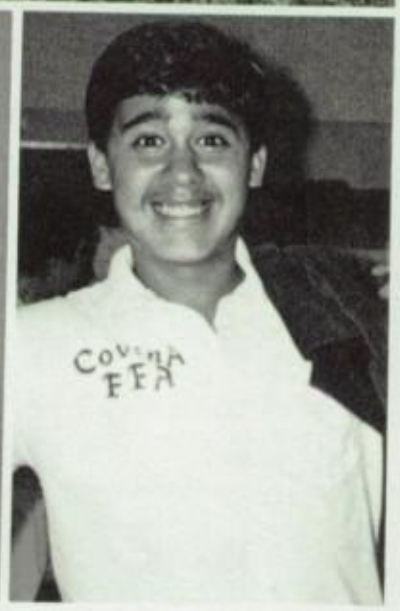
Covina's Future Farmers Of America Has A New Look

FFA
AGRICULTURE'S NEW SPIRIT
FFA and high school agriculture . . . here today to make sure American agriculture is here tomorrow.
SUPPORT HIGH SCHOOL AGRICULTURE



REAL LIFE, REAL EXPERIENCES

Your high school agriculture class is different. It's not just for students preparing for college. And it's not just for students planning to get a job right out of high school. It's a hands-on program that teaches real skills for real-life situations . . . for everyone.

In Ag class you might work with computers and accounting, plants and animals, or mechanics and sciences as you learn useful, problem-solving skills.

Your high school ag class is a "learning by doing" lab that includes demonstrations, experiments, public speaking, field trips and your own projects that let you put to use what you learn. It's not your average high school class!

IT'S UP TO YOU

So what will you do with your four years of high school? Would you like to try something with challenges and rewards?

More than 400,000 FFA members know there is a lot available in the world of agriculture, and they wear those blue and gold FFA jackets with pride. They're part of the excellence, made in the FFA. And you can be a part of it too.

Talk with the high school agriculture teacher, or ask your counselor about the classes available. Then get ready for some of the best years of your life.

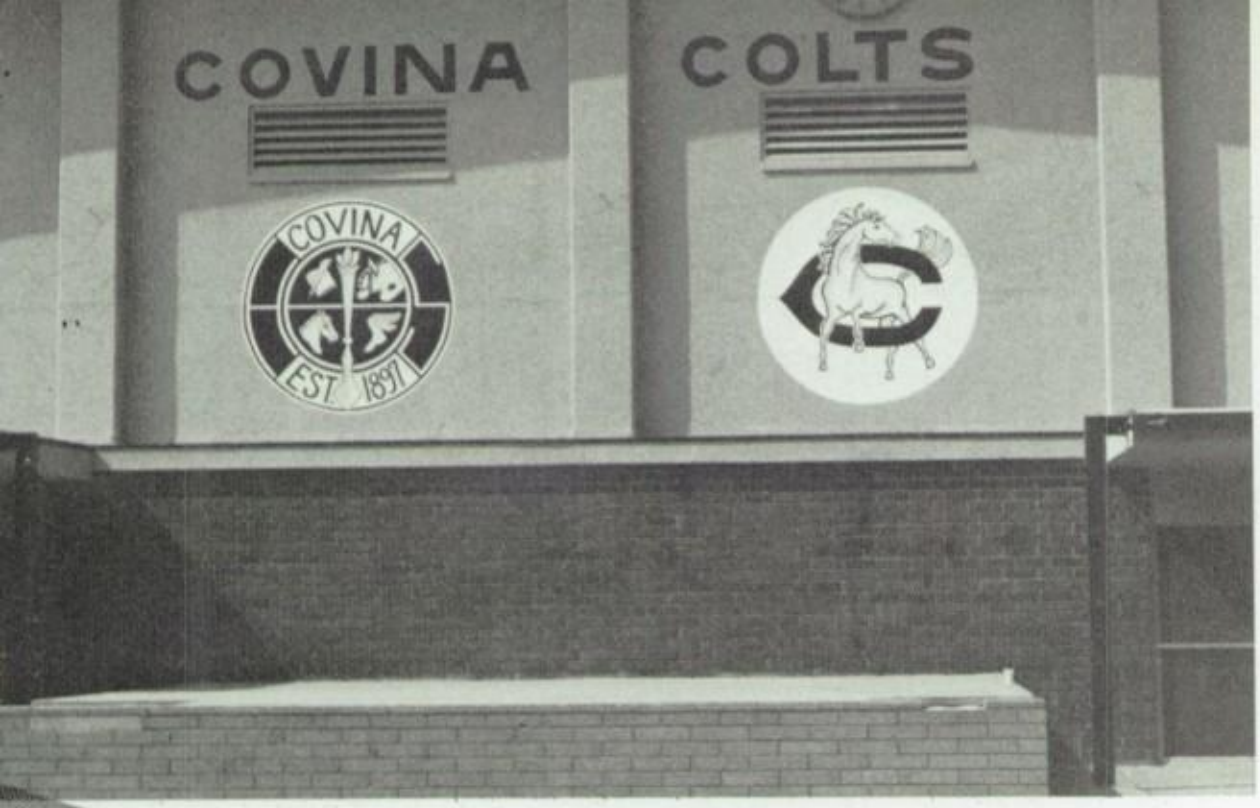
Get To Class. Last minute munchies are the absolute must for Toni Gibso and it's especially tough when you have only 10 seconds left to make class.

Home Sweet Home The Colt sign proudly stands in front of school welcom ing all who enter.



Colt Symbolism. The great Colt symbols reign over an empty campus and keep it safe until next September when a new group of students appear.

A Touch Of Sadness. With the end of any school year there seems to be a feeling of nostalgia and it's reflected on the faces of Ryan Tsan and Hoi Yn.

A Work Of Art. Designing an masterpiece takes time and German Marquez's works diligently and carefully to create the very best.

This year was my birthday and I'm now ninty years old. As time has passed many things have changed; poodle skirts to leather skirts, straight hair to colored, curled, and crimped hair, tie's and tucked-in shirts with bell-bottom pants to tight jeans and cool T's. Yes, times have changed and I think of it not as the time moving over my head to where I don't know what's going on, but to keeping up and knowing that while every student was different still every student was the same. It doesn't really matter what they wore students were students. Over my 90 years changes were constant. But that is now in the past and I'm looking forward to the future. I will be quiet for just a short time until summer is over. When September comes, I will be full of new and old students. My campus will be filled with spirit and liveliness again. My party is now over and in my memory rests the excitement of the great 90th' year, 1988. Some of students Andi Trujillo, Liz Hernandez, Debbie Kavanaugh, Mellissa Fobel, and Shari Ward sadly take down the birthday decorations knowing that the party has finished. There may have been some dissappointing days when I looked at faces that seemed so sad, if it were a loss over a game or a broken heart. But I'm happy to say that there were days when it was terrific to be here. Now the time is over and I will rest until it's time to start anew. You will remember this year of my special 90th birthday until you put the book away. But if you ever forget you don't have to worry because I will be here for a very long time to come. I am happy that I was able to share this special year with my faculty and students. The best present I received was that it was an exceptional year — A YEAR OF CELEBRATION.
